DESERT GEMS

The Pima Air and Space Museum was founded in 1966 and opened to the public as part of the United States' Bicentennial celebration in May 1976. From the beginning the museum featured nearly 50 aircraft gathered from the US Air Force storage yards in Tucson, and from other sources as far away as India. Over the next 42 years the museum worked to gather one of the most diverse and largest aviation collections in the world. More than 350 aircraft are displayed in five exhibit hangars and on 80-plus acres of outdoor display grounds. These aircraft range from 1920s era biplanes to examples of the latest aviation technology such as a Boeing 787 Dreamliner. The museum also hosts the independent 390th Memorial Museum dedicated to the Boeing B-17 Flying Fortress and the World War II 390th Bombardment Group of the Eighth Air Force. Additionally, the partner Titan Missile Museum is housed at the site of a decommissioned Titan II Intercontinental Ballistic Missile silo in Green Valley, Arizona approximately 20 miles south of Tucson. www.pimaair.org
