

Making Sense of the World Today

Understanding Trump, Brexit and the Apparent Brokenness of Everything

INTRODUCTION

ONE COULD BE FORGIVEN for regarding the world today as confusing, to say the least. The turmoil in which we find ourselves is shocking for many, in a Post-Traumatic Shock kind of sense. I see people everywhere reeling about world events like skittles in a bowling alley. But frankly, this is a time during which one should be able to keep one's head when all around us are losing theirs. For that to happen, it is necessary to see the Big Picture; and here, right at the outset, I'm going to say that it is impossible to properly understand what is happening in the world today unless one realizes that there are supernatural forces at work. Whatever happens in the world, for good or apparent evil, is the result of movement by either the powers of darkness or the forces of Light. If that idea is alien to you, please hear me out. Even without the spiritual information, I'm sure you will agree that extraordinary things are happening. In fact, we are today in the midst of a vast spiritual battle, of which most people are entirely unaware. There is a great deal of wilful ignorance too, by which people refuse to believe what is staring them in the eyes. It is this exercise of wilful ignorance which is at the root of most of the turmoil in the world around us today.

One would have to be braindead to fail to see that there has been a huge acceleration in this turmoil in the last nine months. Since the UK referendum vote to quit membership of the European Union in June 2016 (Brexit), a kind of madness has broken out across the world. This madness was tweaked with considerable intensity after the election of Donald Trump as President of the United States of America in November 2016 and subsequent inauguration in January 2017. Since then, all hell has been breaking loose. When I have tried to discuss with people the issues which form the subject of this article, I have been greeted by many with utter disdain and much calumny. ["Calumny" is a word with which one needs to be very familiar today. The dictionary definition is "A false accusation of an offence or a malicious misrepresentation of someone's words or actions". Many seem to have no conscience about committing calumny, so long as it buttresses their beliefs or ideology. Its use has become endemic and the ends, it appears, justify the means].

The excessive overreaction of so many in the world and on social media to both Brexit and the presidential election of Donald Trump — which culminated in an utterly bizarre series of demonstrations in which most of the women involved wore homemade "pussy-hats", a kind of vagina-coloured beanie hat — have made a deep impression on me concerning the current state of the world and where it is heading. During the last nine months, I have had something fully confirmed which I've had intimations about for a long time: That if ever I had to appear before a higher court of law, I wouldn't want the vast majority of people in this world to be on that court's jury. For it seems that so many have lost the ability to think rationally and logically, allowing the analytical part of their brains to be ruled not even by their hearts but by their totally out-of-control, wayward emotionalism and presumptions, of which the most part have been programmed into them through decades of social engineering via the education system and the media (mainstream and so-called "alternative", for both are essentially tools of the power-elite).

One night I woke up with the thought that it is almost as if a worm has been eating into people's brains, rendering them clinically insane and incapable of anything other than cognitive dissonance. My mind went right back to a book I read nearly fifty years ago, called "The Mind Parasites", by Colin Wilson. It was a novel set in the future (which is actually about now!) in which it was discovered that for some time the human mind had been hijacked by discarnate beings and the book tracks the attempt to eradicate those beings from human consciousness. It was a kind of "H.P. Lovecraft meets Gnostic archons or post-Christian demons". In the book, Colin Wilson writes: "Man is a continent, but his conscious mind is no larger than a back garden" — meaning that human beings limit the scope of their consciousness and allow themselves to be so much less than they could be in terms of development of that consciousness and also in regard to their ability to overthrow and rise above dark forces and degenerate obstacles. Wilson was an extraordinary writer whose book, "The Outsider", is one of the very few which have had a huge influence on my lifepath. One literary critic said about him: "The twenty-first century may look back on Colin Wilson as one of the novelists who foresaw the future of fiction, and something, perhaps, of the future of man". So when I pictured the present world situation as being almost as if a worm was eating into people's brains, it dovetailed completely with the idea of mind-parasites or archons — dark entities which undermine the growth and development of human consciousness on an individual and mass basis. And that is indeed what we are dealing with today. The failure to implement this in one's thinking and act upon it is to leave oneself wide open to powerfully destructive influences. Such are the times in which we are living: Momentous times.

Related to this, I have had the increasingly unnerving experience of meeting people, then — if the conversation turns to the matters which are the subject of this article — a kind of mist immediately forms over their eyes and one can almost hear a switch going "Clik!" as if they've been pre-programmed to filter out any verbal or sensory information which undermines that with which they have already been brainwashed. It is against this backdrop that my passion has been directed to pen this piece of writing. In making this article, I am not holding my breath to change anyone's mind or thinking. Things have gone way beyond that now and lines have been drawn in the sand — battle-lines, if you will; for, make no mistake about it — this is a battle of immense spiritual proportions. Changing minds is not the name of the game; but reaching into hearts with Truth and Light, so that they will change themselves. That is my passion. But how can one change the mind of someone who is wilfully ignorant — who even revels in their ignorance, as so many do today? There is no greater arrogance than wilful ignorance — than people who think they know it all but — having never looked further than the end of their nose, or beyond their social conditioning, or merely at what they can see in the physical realm — in reality know nothing.

I started writing this article some time ago, but kept putting off its completion because I knew it would inevitably become far more than a mere analysis of the public reaction to Brexit and Trump. In fact, it could easily have become an entire book about the state of the world as it is today. I also needed time to think through the implications carefully. I believe that those implications are far-reaching and harbingers of the rocky future on which we are about to embark. For we are at a crossroad in world-history and we must choose our highway carefully.

It may be that these words will seem so controversial that the vast majority who read this rather inadequate little article will be highly offended. So be it! If one wishes to avoid causing offence these days one would have to bury oneself in the middle of the Sahara; and even then, someone would probably still get bent out of shape by it! Maybe you will tentatively read a few lines or a paragraph or two and then reject the rest of the article without giving it a chance. All I'm trying to do is to provide my analysis of the direction in which the world is heading through examining the reactions of people on a mass and individual basis to the events of the last nine months. It builds to a conclusion which, if you walk away right now, you will miss. The article must not be judged by a few words with which you may disagree but by the whole of it — for it does form a contiguous and congruous line of ideas. I do not shy away from your disagreement but hope that it will be a springboard for you to think 'outside the box' rather than hunkering down into safe ideas with which you are familiar. There is an old saying: "One has to crack some eggs in order to make an omelette". One has to break down the old in order to build up the new. This is a law of life (and death). New wine doesn't taste good in old wineskins. So please don't knee-jerk react at one thing you don't immediately agree with here; but instead please think through all the implications. I make no claim to be “right”. This isn’t about being right or wrong. It is about ripping open a bunch of old wounds which are a worthless gash on the face of humanity and then finding a way to heal them so that all that is left will be a scar as a reminder of what once had been but cannot be anymore. I am merely a little cog in a process which will hopefully encourage people to exercise their minds and go to places in their heads where they have not necessarily been before. So... let’s get going right now.

There are two reasons why the developments of the last nine months have been happening and those reasons lie completely outside the physical realm of public elections and referendums. For any mass developments in this world of physical matter also involve spiritual agencies. As Saint-Exupery’s Little Prince said: “That which is essential is invisible to the eye”. Never a truer word was said. I mentioned a spiritual battle earlier. There are two key elements involved in this spiritual battle — one powered by darkness, the other a manifestation of Light — and they have each been at work behind the scenes with their own agendas based on the character of their respective mission.

The first of the two key elements of the spiritual battle is the human power-elite — unelected powermongers who work behind the scenes influencing and enacting the flow of history through politics, the media, corporate corruption, fiscal institutions, militaries, intelligence agencies, social engineering, coups d’etat and wars. If one examines their role throughout history and their known connections to satanic and archonic evil, one can clearly see that they are enabled and sustained by spiritual powers of darkness. For anyone who doesn’t doubt the presence of a power-elite such as I describe but who doubts the supernatural nature of this, or who feels uncomfortable with my use of spiritual language, if you really look into what lies behind their lives and influences: their complete disregard for life and humanity, their sexual perversions (e.g. paedophilia), their prosecution of serial wars, the gross and bizarre diabolical rituals in which they indulge, you will have to conclude that there is an element beyond the merely physical at work here — something from the dark side which is the very antithesis of Light.

The second of the two key elements of the spiritual battle is the supernatural forces of Light which lie behind the existence and upholding of everything and to whom we should give our allegiance if we wish to develop and grow in knowledge, grace and understanding. Let me go into all this more deeply as the backbone of our explorations here; for grasping these two aspects of life is the key to understanding the world as it is today. The way I want to do this is, first, to examine the role of the dark power-elite in the events of the last nine months and, second, the role of the forces of Light in overruling that darkness with deeper and more powerful elements of goodness and illumination.

1. WHY THE POWER-ELITE ALLOWED BREXIT & BROUGHT TRUMP INTO OFFICE

One would have thought, if one was thinking purely in a linear sense, that the power-elite’s choice of outcome for the UK Referendum and the US Election would have been to remain in the European Union and for Hilary Clinton to be elected (she being part of the power-dynasty of political mafia and also corrupt enough to be able to control). However, although those two directions would appear to have been a smoother fulfilment of their interests on one level, the fact is that the directions in which they went were more preferable for them than many may realise. Let us examine what those could be. The first reason why the power-elite allowed Brexit and brought Trump into office was:

1) To Divide People and thus More Easily Control them

An entity of power only rules fully when the people are weakened by the debilitating influence of division. With divide-and-rule policies in place there will be no social cohesion and therefore no credible resistance to hegemony or outside control. Therefore, divide-and-rule has always been one of the go-to strategies of any dictatorial entity — whether in small groups or mass populations.

Picture, if you will, the revealing scene near the end of the 1962 film, “Lawrence of Arabia”, when the Arabs had been handed Syria on a plate by an eccentric English military officer (nicknamed “El Aurens”) and a few local warlords. Their time had come to run the country. All the leaders met in a makeshift Arab Council in Damascus. Within minutes, the place had descended into uproar and the meeting came to nothing. Why? Because they were divided by tribe and sect and could only see their petty cultural, bloodline differences rather than any imagined common humanity which they shared.

This carries the invaluable teaching that division creates confusion and, ultimately, chaos and thereby inaction. After that 1918 Damascus Arab Council debacle, the British were able to take the control they had always aimed for (having used Lawrence to that end) and, in fact, gave Syria to the French (much to the disdain of Faisal I, who they later made King of Iraq). Thus, the power-elite maintains control, dispensing its booty to whomever it wishes through the creation and maintenance of a climate of confusion and chaos everywhere via the undermining process of division. In their strategy, the people of the world must be made to feel that there is no hiding place from this confusion and chaos except in the safety that they alone can offer. We can call this the security of surrender, when people submit entirely to the power of the state as their nanny, guardian and overseer.

Thus, for every element that that the power-elite creates and controls, they also ensure that its opposition is in place which they then control too. This is the work of divide-and-rule. In this way, they control all political parties, whatever the colour, all major religions, cults and even cult debriefing networks. When they create wars, they create anti-war movements too, compromised by their infiltrated assets. When there are peaceful protests (even if instigated by them), they will create trouble and even riots through covertly infiltrated agent provocateurs to wreck those peaceful protests and thereby influence the dumb wax nose of public opinion. When they create pedophile rings to suit their purposes, they also infiltrate child protection agencies in order to intercept any potentially troublesome exposés and ensure that the true extent of their exploits never comes to light. (They also occasionally throw a few low-order paedophiles — e.g. Jimmy Savile, Rolf Harris, Max Clifford, etc. — to the dogs in order to deflect public attention from the real perverts in high office in politics, the judiciary, the military and law enforcement agencies).

Division is the perennial key to the successful ownership of the people by the power-elite. In this way, the Brexit vote and the thrusting of the ebullient Trump into the presidency has been the perfect strategy. For many women, Trump’s presence has reinforced the divisive gender war which the power-elite fostered in the first place (more on this in the later section on neo-feminism). By both events, the lefties and today’s liberals (what I call “pseudo-liberals”, as I will later explain) have been plunged into a hysterical and divisive turmoil and are thereby as easy to control as mice in a shoebox. Families have been torn apart. Work colleagues have been pitted against each other. Friends have become sworn enemies. There is no end to the divisions which the events of the past nine months have created. The power-elite must be feeling very satisfied.

However, just to conclude this subject of division, as a footnote, it has to be said that not all division is bad or serves the power-elite. There is a natural type of division which is inevitable in this twisted world. It is the division brought about by Truth. Truth sorts out the wheat from the chaff. Truth exposes and sets apart liars and their lies. Truth is the great revealer. It is a primary service of the Light. The Light shines in the darkness and unveils it for what it is. The division caused inevitably by the appearance and existence of Truth is a wholesome one, as natural as a sieve which removes rocks from powder — as natural as a filter removing impurities from a water source. Such a division I welcome, for it is conducive to the right development of this world. But I will never concur with those artificial disunions concocted by the forces of evil which are currently in control of human affairs and which have duped so many with their dark divisiveness.

Another reason that the power-elite allowed Brexit to go ahead and Trump to be elected as president is:

2) To Mess with your Head

I have had a long curiosity — going back to the 1980s — concerning “psychological operations” (known in the trade as psyops) and mind-control programmes run by intelligence agencies at the behest of the power-elite who really control this world (or think they do, for their power is only temporarily permitted by the real Overseers of this Universe). The enforcers of the power-elite’s psychological operations programmes love to mess with your head bigtime. I mean really mess with it. They have so many ways of doing this, of which most people are blissfully unaware. In a later section of this article, I will show how they achieve this with a barrage of disinformation and falsehoods through the mainstream media; and in the last nine months, it is clear that Brexit and the election of Trump have formed a major part of their global psyops.

Have you ever seen the way that the police will mess with criminals’ heads to break them down and confess by utilizing a “good cop – bad cop” strategy? They keep switching from one to the other. The bad cop roughs you up, shouts at you, threatens you. Then the good cop comes in and says: “Wow! He’s a bit of a lad. Sorry. Here’s a fag” and offers you a cigarette. Then it all starts again. Well there’s a lot of that in the presidential arena too. You have Bill Clinton with the glintin’ teeth, playin’ a sax like a cool guy, getting blowjobs from his interns, Mr Silver Fox who is into human rights and other chic stuff. Then suddenly, the next guy, the uncouth George W. Bush, takes the US into an illegal war, keeps saying “No, you can’t!” and is unable even to string a few decent words together coherently. Then, into the spotlight steps a very smooth-talking Chicago lawyer who is black with an exotic name, who keeps saying “Yes, we can!” (though they can’t) and gives eloquent speeches (even wins the Nobel Peace Prize before he’s done anything — and, in fact, never does anything to deserve it!). Then, suddenly, into the spotlight steps a guy with no written speeches, no political experience, totally rough around the edges, makes verbal gaffes constantly, has no finesse, upbraids the assembled media, just says whatever is in his head with no diplomacy whatsoever, has even spoken in the past about grabbing a woman by her fanny. One extreme to the other. Man, does that mess with your head! It’s like one big psyop.

The placing of Trump in front of pseudo-liberals is like an Italian gigolo blowing smoke-rings into the faces of the members of a small-town public morals committee. :-) His very existence is an affront to them. It was always going to be explosive. One cannot deny that the forging of Brexit and then Trump as president has messed with a lot of heads! It must make a very interesting study in mind-control on the part of the power-elite. Heck, even I’m fascinated by it! :-D

Another reason that the power-elite allowed Brexit to go ahead and Trump to be elected as president is:

3) To Generate Chaos, Insecurity, Fear, Cognitive Dissonance & Destabilisation

These generated elements, closely-related, are in the power-elite's best interests because this is how people can be controlled. The more they generate, the greater their level of control. It is a psychological operation (psyop) on the part of the power-elite to generate these things. They are accomplished masters of it. They have been experimenting with such mind-control techniques for a very long time and especially using their vast resources in the so-called "intelligence community". (Only very little research is needed to discover this, by the way. It is not "conspiracy" but proven fact, though most people don't want to hear it).

A major sign of the countdown to the end of this dying aeon is the release of all restraints on the human ego, so that men and women will be seen for who they really are and no longer will be able to hide behind their "sweet" disguises and virtue-signalling. The human being who has no interest in "spirit", or who has a false interest in it, will become unreservedly narcissistic in an increasingly grotesque manner. Those beings who can see nothing beyond themselves will develop an inflated sense of their own importance; and a kind of insecure chaos will deepen until the world will cry out for a solution and in will step government with the ultimate solution. They want to drive people so crazy with this chaos and insecurity and instability that they will fall right into the arms of the state begging for security and a solution.

Chaos, crazy chaos everywhere. We see much of this around us already. People think they can decide for themselves their own gender rather than sanctify the one with which they've been sacredly gifted in this life. Psychological conditions and perversions are manifesting on a widespread basis, the symptoms of which are accepted as "normal" and, in some cases, even desirable. The huge prevalence of what is known as Borderline Personality Disorder (mainly among women) is a classic example of this. Similarly, the big rise in sociopathic behavior is the counterpart of that in men. It is as if a vast proportion of the world's population suddenly developed a major dose of cognitive dissonance and is unable to recognize in any way the illogical nature of their beliefs and behavior. In fact, one of the key outworkings of the power-elite's strategy to generate chaos, insecurity, fear and destabilisation has been the mass outworking of cognitive dissonance — the ability to hold contradictory thoughts in the head at the same time, coupled with a complete inability to think logically and linearly.

As an example of that cognitive dissonance, it is strange that so many should suddenly develop a fierce conscience at the prospect of Donald Trump's immigration policy, yet have shown no concern whatsoever that "the Obama administration has deported more people than any other president's administration in history. In fact, they have deported more than the sum of all the presidents of the 20th century". This is a fact. Yet the eyes of the cognitively dissonant pseudo-liberals of today will just fog over if you tell them that. Even if you direct them to the source of that remark — a news report from last August on ABC News which you can find here: <http://abcnews.go.com/Politics/obamas-deportation-policy-numbers/story?id=41715661> — they will still not believe it. They want to play the victim, to have something to complain about. They are like toddlers who have a tantrum if their toys are taken away from them.

The cognitively dissonant morality of pseudo-liberals is so narcissistic that when it is revealed that Trump crassly spoke in the past about grabbing someone's "pussy", the women went into total meltdown, many of them so triggered that they booked sessions with their "coaches" and therapists! (I kid you not!). Yet when Obama's administration breaks a record in presiding over the sale of weapons around the world which has been more than any other administration since World War II, they do not find that at all obscene and, in fact, wilfully refuse to believe it. See [https://motherboard.vice.com/en\_us/article/obamas-administration-sold-more-weapons-than-any-other-since-world-war-ii ]. You will see the same selective blindness in Sweden. There the myth is that Sweden is an exemplary loving country of peace and neutrality, when the reality is that a huge number of the world's battlefield weapons have been manufactured by Saab-Bofors Dynamics at Karlskoga in Sweden. The world is drowning in a poisoned sea of hypocrisy and stupidity.

I watched with much bemusement so many profile pictures changing to a US Statue of "Liberty" (now there's a joke in itself!) crying into its hands. Virtue-signalling how they despise "sexism" and "racism". Crying over Trump's use of the word "pussy". What hypocrites! Who are these snowflakes with an ersatz social conscience? They suddenly get all bent out of shape, making a noise all over social media, because someone they don't like got elected as president. Opposed to racism? Seriously? Where were they when every president since they've been alive has been bombing the fuck out of brown and darker people around the world — not to mention subverting foreign governments and plundering their natural resources. That is what the presidency has been based on throughout their entire lives! Where were they in April 2003 when the British Prime Minister, Tony Blair, conspiring with U.S. president George W. Bush, was declaring an illegal war using outright lies as a premise to do so? [When I and others were writing articles in 2003 proving that there were no weapons of mass destruction in Iraq, most of the lefties and pseudo-liberals we knew were either totally silent or accusing us of being conspiracy theorists!]. Where were they when scientist, biological weapons expert and U.N. weapons inspector, Dr. David Kelly, was cruelly assassinated in July 2003 for blowing the whistle on the lies on which that illegal war was based — a war which is really still being prosecuted by the US government to this very day? Where were they when a degenerate imbecile such as George W. Bush was elected for a second term of office? Why weren't they on the streets then in silly hats? Why were they recently campaigning for a woman who is part of a dark political mafia around whose family heaps of corpses have piled up during the last 20 years? How come they want to apply standards to Donald Trump which they have never applied to any politician or president before him? Most of all, how come they are utterly incapable of seeing their own hypocrisy and double-standards, which they won't accept even if they are pointed out to them? By what kind of madness have they been afflicted?

The unmasked truth about pseudo-liberals is this: They don't really care about anything or anyone except themselves and their own sensitivities. They have no real concern for social justice — as evidenced by the highly selective nature of their professed concerns. They only virtue-signal their bleeding hearts when people they hate do bad things. They will keep totally quiet while their fellow pseudo-liberals are doing the same things that they condemn in their enemies. These are proven facts that they will never admit. If you try and discuss this with them, gently showing them the illogical nature of their ideas and actions, they will change the subject or become exceedingly angry. When I'm dealing with pseudo-liberals, I usually feel a great sense of compassion for them as they are plainly deeply emotionally disturbed and have taken on the "caring" mantle of pseudo-liberalism to protect themselves from pain. Liberalism today is not a political position; it's a psychological condition! I always want to say to them: "It's okay. You're safe with me. You can take off your burden and unload your heart here". But their wall of defence means that the chances of them recognising their affliction is virtually nil. They will always shift the attention off themselves by blaming others. Pseudo-liberals excel at blaming others. In spite of recognising the tragic damage which they have deeply buried within themselves, I have to say that they are out-and-out hypocrites who are a dark stain in the envelope of the earth. A pseudo-liberal is even more dangerous than a psychopath because pseudo-liberalism wears a disguise to hide its malice.

In many ways, all this has been socially engineered over the course of the last few decades by the power-elite. It forms part of their strategy to generate chaos, insecurity, fear and destabilisation. A demoralized people suffering from cognitive dissonance is one which will be very easy to dominate and tyrannize. When darkness reigns then the people will seek shelter from any source. They will then conclude that only their corrupt government can provide the kind of security they think they need. Like Winston in Orwell's "1984", they will finally "love Big Brother" (actually, they already do but their cognitive dissonance hasn't let them realise it yet). This is the darkness which will come to prevail — yet with such hideous deception that the people will think the darkness is the light and they will even rejoice in it.

Another reason that the power-elite allowed Brexit to go ahead and Trump to be elected as president is:

4) To Further the Strategy of Distraction

It is as clear as a bell that in any US presidential election (or anywhere else for that matter) we are dealing with a warped "cult of the personality". Party loyalties and unswerving ideological shibboleths seem to determine how people will vote. But here's the interesting thing: So many were horrified at the prospect of Trump in office, yet they would have been perfectly happy to have as an alternative president someone who has not only proven to be dishonest but is part of a corrupt and murderous establishment mafia. They madly virtue-signal to each other how outraged they are by the campaign of someone they regard as "sexist, xenophobic and racist", yet they have no problem with a candidate who is corrupt and dishonest (not to mention being part of a family around which a suspiciously large mountain of dead bodies has piled up over the years, known for at least two decades as "the Clinton Body Count"). Where is the consistency? Talk about cognitive dissonance! It is clear therefore that those who lament the day that Donald Trump was elected did not desire Hilary Clinton as president because of her morality and innate abilities. It is simply the cult of the personality. Because of that, the whole run of a campaign for president is like one huge distraction of people's minds away from the matters which count.

Distraction serves two purposes, in that it is both preventative and proactive. It prevents subjects from questioning their position in this world as an owned slave (body and mind). It also prevents them from ever connecting any dots and tracing them back to truth and reality. At the same time, it proactively maintains people as mindless drones while inducing a hypnotic, lifelong, clarity-clouding anesthesia. The fact is that whoever seduces the eyes can own the whole soul — which is how governments have come to own the souls of their subjects. They distract them first.

Vacuous women's magazines, movies and awards ceremonies already distract the mass of people. So-called "celebrities", the media, television, artless pop and rock music and much more suck them into a state of moral catatonia. A year-long election campaign is also perfect fodder for the mass of minds to distract them from truth and reality. The seemingly endless sniping about Brexit and at Trump is a further distraction of people's minds away from the real issues of this world. All this is perfect for the power-elite who desperately desire the state of sleepwalking in the world's populations.

Those are just a few of the reasons why the power-elite have allowed the Brexit vote and the election of Donald Trump. Now we turn to another, higher, perspective and examine:

2. WHY THE SUPERNATURAL FORCES OF LIGHT HAVE ALLOWED BREXIT & BROUGHT TRUMP INTO OFFICE

Although the power-elite had been implementing this strategy by stealth, this is now — along with so many other evil influences — being exposed to the light. For the power-elite and the powers of darkness which lie behind them can never “pull a fast one” on the forces of Light. On the contrary, the former is under the control of the latter and are only able to implement their evil by permission. You may ask why such darkness should be permitted in the world at all. It is because only in the presence of resistance can human beings develop from soul-immaturity to full-realisation. This world is one vast school of souls and each of us is being honed from naivety and ignorance to the completion of our beingness. It has been designed for us to go through the long, seemingly-dark way of misdeeds, trial and error, folly, stupidity, challenge, testing and death, in order to grow in self-discovery and find our way to completion. This is the case on both a personal and universal level. Meditate on this: Angels have not had to go down this route and they are utterly fascinated by our progress, which they have been assigned to assist.

Thus, while the power-elite and their originating powers of darkness revel in bringing out the worst in people through their strategies, the forces of Light will use that in order to reveal the darkness behind it — if only people will open their eyes. This is precisely what they have done with Brexit and the bringing of Trump to office. Here are some of the ways that this has happened.

The supernatural forces of Light have allowed Brexit and brought Trump into office so as:

1) To Pre-empt and Expose the Counterfeit Oneness of Globalism and Pan-Europeanism

The idealistic and left-leaning liberal mind wants the world to be as one. The same goes for the “alternative” kind of person, of whom there are many amongst my friends — both virtual and in real life. They want to see individual nations dissolve and a global oneness flourish. Well, so do I. Any moral, decent thinking human being wants to see a coming together of the whole world in peace and unity. However, although the world is eventually heading for such oneness — in its own time, when the moment is truly right — the alleged oneness being forged through the bidding of the power-elite by ideologues and political movements at the present time is not the real thing but is a counterfeit. It is most important to realise this.

Separate nations have existed and continue to exist for a very good reason: It is to prevent the world from a premature oneness being forged by people of darkness who are not aligned with the Light and who are forging this oneness for very different ends than those which are in the minds of the idealistic left/pseudo-liberal/alternative people who are supporting it, who have not realized how they are being duped. They are supporting a oneness which is not being manifested mystically by the forces of Light (as the true oneness will be) but is instead being enforced politically to fulfil the interests of the power-elite. The two onenesses — counterfeit and real — are as different as chalk and cheese. Let me go into this a little more so we understand the significance.

Until the present world-system of corruption and evil has been dissolved, separate nations play an important role in preventing a premature (and counterfeit) oneness from occurring. But there is currently a process occurring by which the power-elite is trying to undo the current, necessary separation of nations through the creation of multinational superstates (of which the EU is a prime example) — which will eventually merge into a single world government. They are also fulfilling this through bringing in vastly more immigrants than these EU countries are able to handle. This is like a twin-pincer movement to destroy the integrity and independence of European nations: 1) from the outside, with superimposed legislation and rulership (in the case of the EU, from Brussels) and 2) from within, through an insanely huge influx of destabilizing immigrants who do not integrate, create a crime-wave and cause fear on the streets and whose culture is totally alien to the host culture (although the nations doing the importing of the immigrants are in total denial about the ticking time-bomb within their borders).

This isn't to say that everything about separate nations is all good. They are merely a temporary "holding pattern" until the time has come for the true transformation of the world as it transitions from the old aeon to the new. Of course, there are bad aspects when separate nations are taken to such extremes that they become harmful. I'm speaking here of "my country right or wrong" nationalism, in which the country is viewed in some weirdly mystical way as "the fatherland" to which one pledges blind allegiance. This kind of jingoism and dewy-eyed patriotism often becomes an extreme harbinger of division in the world and leads to wars and bloody revolutions. But because there is the potential for that kind of distortion of a single nation this is no excuse for trying to create an artificial oneness across the world, based on coercion and for the convenience of control. Yet this is what we are seeing. We are being told by a dark power-elite that separate nations are bad for the world and that the whole globe needs to come together as one. But the oneness they are proposing is infinitely worse than the current situation of separate nations because it is being forged solely as a means for greater control. The power-elite is not truly interested in overcoming separation and making the world as one out of idealism and universal vision. That idea is laughable. For them it is a means to an end — a dark end in which we will all be enslaved to a world government with extreme powers of control. The starry-eyed lefties and pseudo-liberals of today do not understand this and have thus allowed themselves to be seduced by globalism and pan-Europeanism as some kind of utopian dream. From that illusory standpoint, it is easy for them to see Brexit and Trump as a terrible betrayal of that dream. This is why they portray Brexit and Trump as retrogressive, xenophobic, fascist-nationalist and dangerous. They are unable to see that integrity is actually being preserved by higher powers in order to prevent fraudulent world events from taking place. This is why it is so important to have one's eyes opened to the reality of the world today.

The counterfeit oneness manifests right now as United Nations Globalism and the Pan-Europeanism of the European Union. Left-leaning, pseudo-liberal and alternative people imagine that the United Nations and the European Union are breaking down national barriers to create some kind of one-world hippie utopia. Thus, the appearance of Brexit and Trump on the radar appear to them like impediments to their dreams. They then speak about these developments as "a return to the conditions of the 1930s" with Nigel Farage and Donald Trump caricatured as incipient Adolf Hitlers. This is the height of naivety, for what they fail to realise completely, in a stroke of irony, is that the REAL fascism and totalitarianism has already existed for a very long time in the machinations of the very power-elite which they refuse to acknowledge.

The United Nations and the European Union are a joke. They have nothing whatsoever to do with unity, peace and freedom. All the left-leaning, pseudo-liberal and alternative people who look upon the European Union as a manifestation of loving oneness designed to counteract fascist nationalism have been duped into confusing the EU with Europe. They are not at all the same. Mistaking the EU for Europe is like confusing sex with love. They are worlds apart!

Some of us have been watching the Euro-experiment for decades, many decades. Starting out as a rich man's club, then carefully positioning itself in one of the most corrupt cities in the world (Brussels), where paedophilia is endemic in the establishment and practised with impunity (as indeed it is in Westminster too — for anywhere that “suits” congregate there will be much in the way of corruption and deeds of such darkness that to speak of them would offend even the angels, who know much more than we do). For years, Brussels has gradually been accruing increasing power to itself while arrogantly pretending that the EU is Europe (rather than just a monolithic institution deceptively called the “European Union”). Yes, some of us have been watching this gathering deception for decades, never being fooled by what it represents and where it is all heading. For the European Union is one of the superstates which will one day morph with a handful of other superstates around the world to form a one-world government under a single leader — the culmination of the counterfeit oneness which is being forged today before our eyes. Although, to the blind, that one-world government will look like the fulfilment of a utopian dream, it will be the start of a global nightmare. This is why it is so important to have the scales fall from our eyes so we can see what is really happening.

It should come as no surprise that the principal UK architect of the European Union in its earlier phase was the former British prime minister, Sir Edward Heath, who has recently been publicly outed by a senior British police officer as a serial paedophile. Paedophilia has been endemic in government circles for a very long time. This is one of the main ways that the power-elite manipulates politicians, many of whom are sexual perverts. They can then, through the coercion of blackmail, be made to enact any policy which the power-elite wishes to see imposed. This is just as true in the USA as in the UK. Many have known this about Edward Heath and the prevalence of paedophilia in government circles for some time but they have always been laughed at as conspiracy theorists. Yet it is all starting to come out now. The chickens are really coming home to roost. Just as fast as the powers of darkness enact their dastardly plan of a counterfeit oneness leading to a one-world government under the guise of world unity, the forces of Light are bringing their exposure of this darkness to fruition, to those who are willing to see. But a feature of the present time is that many will be hardened in their delusions and would rather believe the lie than Truth. This is what makes it so difficult to discuss these issues with most people. They either close down, as if controlled by some other force (which indeed they are), or they become extremely angry and abusive. I am very careful these days who I engage in conversation on these matters. One needs to use a great deal of intuition and listening to the music which cannot be heard. It will not be long before many you may think of as your friends (and even your family) will be betraying you to their governments under the guise of your needing to be reeducated. For in their minds we are dinosaur subversives who stand in the way of planetary and universal progress.

So the UK/EU referendum vote and the Trump presidential vote have been two key ways that the forces of Light have been preempting and exposing a premature counterfeit oneness, even though at the same time the power-elite had very different aims in bringing these things to pass in their own way.

Another reason that Brexit came to pass and Trump has been brought into office by the supernatural forces of light is:

2) To Continue and Intensify the Bringing of Darkness to Light

This is a most important and dynamic process on the earth at this time. At the beginning of 2016, as part of my New Year Resolutions, I publicly wrote the following words:

“A great many aspects of society are going to unravel in this year of 2016. Just as they did in 2015 but even more acceleratedly so. This is another year in a degenerative process which has been increasingly active on an open basis since the 1960s. Yet, unravel they must! I welcome the unravelling, for it is a necessary precursor to the regeneration of the world and the initialising of a new aeon. There can be no regeneration without this unravelling, for it is transitional — the bridge between the birth-pangs of the new aeon and the death-throes of the old aeon in which fractured consciousness and uninhibited vanity have been the leading principles. We should do all that we can to ensure that we are not surprised by what will be its ever-increasing ferocity. Please understand that to speak of such unravelling has nothing whatsoever to do with being “negative”. It is the natural undoing of the skein of darkness by the power of Light, which is about as positive as it can be! Just as a seamstress has to untangle a ball of wool so she can knit her pattern into the perfection of an item of clothing or a bedcover, so the Light has to unravel the darkness in order to regenerate all matter into its next higher state of being. This is ultimately why we need not fear the chaotic elements, confusion and disorder which will characterise 2016 and beyond. There is a hidden beauty to that outward upheaval which sensitive (inner) eyes will see and which will rejoice to see it.”

That is what I wrote more than one year ago. And so the unravelling has indeed accelerated. Perceived by many as chaos (but seen by those with eyes to see merely as “the natural undoing of the skein of darkness by the power of Light”), I welcome the acceleration. This will intensify even more this year. A slang phrase I keep using is “We ain’t seen nothin’ yet!” And this is true. But this is also why we must be informed, educated and bathed in the protection of the Light; for if we are not, we will be susceptible to deception and open to incursion by the forces of darkness. Very often that darkness actually poses as light. This is an element of world life which very many people have refused to discern. So exposing darkness to Light is a very necessary work right now and should be pursued with vigour by the bearers of that Light. This is actually a general influence which the forces of light have been bringing to pass recently. But certain events are accelerating it and will do so increasingly in the coming months and years. In fact, as darkness increases over the earth — as it is doing — parallel to that will be the exposure of that darkness in the light, revealing its true nature. Those who have eyes to see will see.

Many people look at Trump today and think that he is the epitome of evil (partly stirred up by the media lies about him). But they’ve been so brainwashed that they haven’t got the faintest idea how evil operates today. It rarely comes with arrogant bluster and obvious malice. Instead, evil comes with a smooth smile and empty slogans (e.g. “Yes, we can!”). We’ve reached the stage where evil people with a fake smile take everyone in and can do whatever they want, kill whoever they want, make war with who they want, lie to who they want, invade any country and much more, while the pseudo-liberals will ignore those actions and defend those who commit them, simply because they’ve been done behind a smile. That has been the aim all along; and most people fall for it, believing that darkness is light and light darkness. But this pseudo-light is now being exposed today in so many areas, if people will only develop the eyes to see it. The time has come for the houses of hypocrisy to fall. Here are some of the ways that the forces of Light are exposing darkness at the present time. The first is:

A. Revealing the Hypocrisy of the Mainstream Media and those who Defend it

Almost everything in the material world today is fake; but you need a new pair of eyes to see that. Deception is one of the leading characteristics of our time. In almost every field of life today we are being “played”, taken for a ride, treated as though we are fools — deceived, hoodwinked, bamboozled. Once you realise there are forces at work using every trick in the book to control your life, your mind and your very soul, to their advantage, you have to pull back and look out across the world at the Big Picture with wisdom and insight, seeing clearly the patterns of psychological operation and mind-control. With practice, this will become a sacred game: An eye-opening one. To this end, it is essential to be objective and non-reactionary, coolly assessing the flow of the world with analytical prowess. If you do that, you will not only see the oneness of everything but you will also see the disjointedness which obscures that oneness, with everything being downgraded from multi-dimensional possibilities to a lowest common denominator ego-tripped-out myopic delusion. In other words, we could be SO MUCH more than we are and understand so much more than we allow ourselves to know!

One of the fruits of developing ourselves beyond the standard myopic vision which seems to make up the average human character is to be able to see through bullshit. In fact, I would say that there has been no real inner or spiritual development if one continues to be able to be deceived by the deceptions of the world. One of the first insights when a soul begins to wake up and become conscious is the ability to discern the utterly fake nature of the media. There are no official media organisations that I would trust to report the truth on any major issue, whether mainstream or “alternative”. We live in an age of deception which is accepted as being “normal” or barely even noticed. Governments specialize in it. Political parties excel in it. Corporations tout it (known euphemistically as “PR” and “advertising”). Military and intelligence agencies are outstanding at it (after all, that’s what they DO). The corporate media are the servants of it, deliberately keeping truth from the masses while daily pushing outright propaganda in our faces and dumbing us down by maintaining our interest in superficial claptrap, diversionary nonsense, or pretentious blather. Our own silly egos — if not imbued with wisdom and insight — willingly swallow and wallow in all that deception, given the least opportunity, in order to maintain a falsely optimistic and “positive” outlook on life. Such deception travels under many names besides outright lies: Propaganda, disinformation, chicanery, hoax, imposture, fraud, subterfuge, artifice and so on. All this should not surprise us, in view of the growing role of deception as the end of the present aeon grows closer and the birth-pains of the new aeon take hold.

Most of the mainstream media — the newspapers and television/radio stations to which you turn every day for your news — are not bastions of truth and elucidation but are lying mouthpieces of the power-elite, run by intelligence agencies, pushing conformity, stupefaction and disinformation. The New York Times, Washington Post, Guardian, Times, BBC, ITV, CNN — you name it, all of them and more — they are telling you lies or bending your mind every day. There are very few independent-minded investigative journalists left. They are now mostly “presstitutes”, avidly regurgitating whatever is fed to them to brainwash the masses, selling their journalistic souls to prop up the system for an inflated salary and a pat on the back. How often does one see real corruption — heart of government corruption — properly exposed in the mainstream media? How often does one learn about what is really going on in the world from a mainstream media outlet? One generally finds in the mainstream media a plethora of disinformation, dilution and diversionary articles.

The Washington Post, New York Times, Newsweek and Time Magazine, for example, have been known for decades as CIA mouthpieces. This is common knowledge amongst media mavens. How anyone takes them seriously I do not know. They have to conform to the will of the masters who control the media. When will people get it into their thick heads that the media does not exist to keep you up to date with what is really happening. Neither does it exist to chase down the truth and expose evil. Its sole purpose is to act as a mouthpiece for government, intelligence agencies and the power behind them and to make money. There is also no such thing as “a liberal newspaper”. They are ALL compromised. They will all fall in line to propagate official disinformation. Take the Guardian, for example — a well-known UK “liberal” newspaper. At the start of the Iraq war in 2003, they were also publishing the same lies as every other paper about weapons of mass destruction in Iraq as a pretext for war. This was without any hard evidence. The whole basis for the war on Iraq was a fiction, backed up by a massive no-dollars-spended propaganda campaign via the media and the threat of assassination if anyone broke ranks. Captain Eric May, a former US military intelligence officer who became a whistleblower, approached Fort Stewart colleagues in 2003 to ask about the war. He said of that meeting: “This was a big war, they explained to me. They were going to control what we see, feel, and do, in that order, and if anybody got out of line they’d get whacked”. For “whacked” read assassinated. [See the complete interview with May at: <http://www.veteranstoday.com/2011/05/14/ghost-troop-the-art-of-info-war/comment-page-1/> ]. For me, the prosecution of that war and the media furore surrounding it was the turning point in knowing for sure that all the media are compromised and corrupt mouthpieces of the power-elite. A solitary journalistic voice of Truth was heard in the USA in 2003. Robert Scheer (now editor of TruthDig), writing in his regular column in the LA Times on 8th July that year, said: “The world is outraged at this pattern of lies used to justify the Iraq invasion, but the U.S. public still seems numb to the dangers of government by deceit”. Herein lies the heart of the problem. The US public is indeed “numb to the dangers of government by deceit”. Robert Scheer was sacked in 2005 from the LA Times for his exposure of lies in the war on Iraq and his questioning of 9/11. He wrote in 2005 about his sacking in this vein:

“On Friday I was fired as a columnist by the publisher of the Los Angeles Times, where I have worked for thirty years. The publisher, Jeff Johnson, who has offered not a word of explanation to me, has privately told people that he hated every word that I wrote. I assume that mostly refers to my exposing the lies used by President Bush to justify the invasion of Iraq. Fortunately, sixty percent of Americans now get the point, but only after tens of thousands of Americans and Iraqis have been killed and maimed as the carnage spirals out of control. My only regret is that my pen was not sharper and my words tougher”. see [http://www.huffingtonpost.com/robert-scheer/on-leaving-the-la-times\_b\_10509.html ].

That is precisely what is needed today: A sharpened pen and tough words. To date, for perpetrating that genocidal warcrime known as the Iraq War, no heads have rolled in the political scene and there has been no front-page headline in any newspaper saying: “We lied! Please forgive us. It will never happen again”. Why are the pseudo-liberals not putting silly hats on and demonstrating about that? Another example of their highly selective sense of social justice.

Today, not just the public of the USA but the world public is mostly mesmerised by media lies on all fronts. Why do people foolishly imagine that they have a free press? Consider this quotation: “You could get a journalist cheaper than a good call girl, for a couple hundred dollars a month” [“Katherine The Great: Katherine Graham and Her Washington Post Empire,” by Deborah Davis, Acacia Press, 1991, p.131]. Now that comes from the mouth of a CIA operative in discussion with Philip Graham, former editor of the Washington Post, on the availability and prices of journalists willing to peddle CIA propaganda and cover stories. Even Philip Graham himself had been an intelligence operative in the 1940s (OSS, Special Branch) and he continued to have strong connections with the CIA throughout his life, as shown in the above book by Deborah Davis, which is recommended reading for the student of world developments.

The Washington Post itself has long been a central stronghold of CIA propaganda and disinformation. Even the Post’s well-known former executive editor and former Vice-President-at-Large, Ben Bradlee, had a proven CIA background [See <http://spartacus-educational.com/JFKbradleeB.htm> ]. The current owner of the Washington Post, Jeff Bezos — who is the owner of Amazon — also has a strong link to the CIA in that his company, Amazon, does all the “cloud computing” for the CIA as a result of a $600 million dollar contract struck with the agency four months after he bought the Washington Post in 2013. Conflict of interest for a newspaper owner? I’ll say! It’s just one more solid link to the CIA which has been behind this newspaper for decades. The control of the world’s media has always been — and continues to be — a major element in the success of the CIA’s control of information. [If you want to know more about the suppression of heroic investigative journalism, the myth of press freedom and the control of the press by government intelligence agencies, read the essential Kristina Borjesson (Ed.), “Into the Buzzsaw: Leading Journalists Expose the Myth of a Free Press”, Prometheus Books, 2002. See also the article “Operation Mockingbird — The Subversion of America’s Free Press by The CIA”, which can be found at the link <http://www.rense.com/politics6/mockingbird.htm> . See also: <http://spartacus-educational.com/JFKmockingbird.htm> . See also “Journalism and the CIA: The Mighty Wurlitzer” by Daniel Brandt at <http://www.namebase.net/news17.html> ].

The intelligence agencies even control the film side of the media. Did you know that the CIA bought the film rights to George Orwell’s “Animal farm” from his widow before the author was hardly cold in his grave so that they could rework the ending? This was arranged by CIA operative E. Howard Hunt, who later achieved notoriety for his role in the Nixon Watergate scandal. The CIA then went on to change the ending of the film version of Orwell’s “Nineteen Eighty-Four”, so that it would not bolster the prevailing belief that both “sides” of the so-called Cold War were on the same evil wavelength [for details, see the revealing book by Frances Stonor Saunders, “The Cultural Cold War: The CIA and the World of Arts and Letters”, New Press, 2000, essential reading!]. Such blatant social engineering could have come straight out of the plot of one of Orwell’s own novels. This is the media which Donald Trump is rightly calling out as “fake news”. And this is the media all the pseudo-liberals soak up like an old piece of blotting-paper, defend to the hilt and want us to believe. What a joke!

The power-elite is not merely duplicitous, for that would be an understatement. Duplicitous means acting in a double-handed manner, as in two-faced or double-dealing, so one is carrying out a strategy in two opposing ways. But the power-elite is much more than duplicitous. It is multiplicitous! They are perfectly capable of coming at you in multiple ways which are mutually exclusive, not merely to confuse you but to ensure that they fool everyone across the board. However, it is not enough for the power-elite merely to control people and the way they think and act. They want to control people in such a way that those people do not even recognise it as control. It is even better if they can get people to welcome that control! One of the ways that this happens is through the media (which is owned — lock, stock and barrel — by the power-elite). The mainstream media — in spite of their arrogant sense of entitlement — serve corrupt masters whose aim is the very Globalism and Pan-Europeanism which Brexit and Trump have been appointed by the forces of Light to expose. The media must have been quaking in their (jack)boots and filled with rage when Trump spoke about “draining the swamp”. It’s like a horror-movie, with the media as some of the main “creatures of the swamp”! The last thing the media wants is the poisonous swamp which they inhabit to be drained! Where else would they swim?

So it has been a refreshing experience to watch Donald Trump call out the mainstream media as “fake news”. No other president has done this. Few people ever find themselves in the position where they have the crème de la crème of the world’s press assembled in front of them to be disciplined and called out as being fake; though I must admit I have fantasised about doing it many times in my life! :-) So I took a vicarious delight in seeing him put all those self-appointed arrogant media-whores in their place. However, most extraordinary of all in the mêlée which has surrounded Trump’s bloodying of the media’s nose has been the way that so many pseudo-liberals have come to the press's defence! This is a perfect example of what I mentioned above in terms of the power-elite getting people to welcome the control which they have over them. The slaves are rejoicing in their slavery! It is also a perfect example of the way that the forces of Light are using this whole episode to expose so much darkness and hypocrisy for what it is.

On social media recently, someone wrote: "Who does Trump think he is, speaking to the press like that? He needs to have some respect". What? Respect for the media? Never! You have to earn respect. These people are now being exposed for who they really are. For they have sold their souls long ago in the service of compromise and refuse to see the way that darkness operates disguised as light. This is another example of a worm eating the brain. I have sometimes tried to reason gently with these people but they become very aggressive and begin ranting about fascism and how Brexit and Trump remind them of conditions in Germany in the 1930s. It would be understandable if by "fascism" they were referring to the power-elite which they ignorantly serve. But they don't even acknowledge the existence of a power-elite and see the world solely in terms of getting a political party in power to change the world. So naturally, they wish to defend especially the left-wing or pseudo-liberal press against any exposure of its fakeness.

Maybe you were shocked by my use of the term "media-whores" above to refer to the press. A whore is someone who sells his or her body for money. I am using the term in a metaphorical sense about the media to refer to people who — instead of pursuing their work objectively and independently to report truthfully and fearlessly and risking life and limb for that truth — sell their talent to push whatever their bosses approve of or commission. This is why so-called journalists today (most of whom do not even deserve to be called by that term) are known as "presstitutes". Normally, a president brown-tongues (ass-licks) the media in a very fulsome sense, which I have always found nauseating. A classic example of this is the annual White House Correspondents' Dinner, which not only hosts the president and the world's media but also has many so-called "celebrities" and "film-stars" present. It is like one huge mutually back-slapping club of smug society people, with the president giving a stand-up style speech to curry favour with the assembled gathering. A real convention of media-whores and presstitutes. [BREAKING NEWS! It has just been announced this morning, February 26th, that Donald Trump has pulled out of the White House Correspondents' Dinner this year, which was due to be held on April 29. Rightly so! No man of integrity should be seen within a million miles of that parasitical junket].

To take on the media, as Donald Trump has done, is to commit professional suicide. Anyone who does so will soon find themselves on the receiving end of smears and calumnies in a tornado of character assassination. They rule the roost. This is precisely what has happened to Donald Trump. You cannot call CNN "fake news" (which it is) and hope to survive. Nobody says in a press conference "there's another beauty" (meaning there's another beautiful example of fake news) to the snooty, entitled royalty of BBC correspondents, such as Jon Sopel, as Donald Trump did. That just doesn't happen... yet it did! I was open-mouthed when I saw that and was cheering Trump on! Jon Sopel's only publication in book form to date has been an utterly sycophantic biography (more like hagiography!) of the British Labour Party politician, Tony Blair, entitled "Tony Blair: The Moderniser", who went on to become a war criminal prime minister not long after it was published. So, yeah, fake news, Jon Sopel! When I have been watching the press conferences of the new White House administration, I have been amazed at the dumb and boring questions that they ask, hunched up in their chairs like self-appointed pundits. Their questions are the ultimate in bathos and seem to have no real purpose other than blether (great Scottish word for gibberish and drivel!).

I freely admit that Donald Trump is exceedingly gauche and unschooled in diplomacy. But this is the beauty of it. Imagine, if you will, a bull in a china shop with Asperger's Syndrome! That is how I see Donald Trump. He is like those awkward, socially-inept types who speak their mind to the extreme embarrassment of all around. He reminds me of the child who asks his parents' friend at the dinner table why she has an ugly face or a hairy wart on her nose. I believe that Trump, in spite of all his imperfections and vanity, is being used by the supernatural forces of Light to show up much of the dark bullshit in the world. And it is very interesting and often hilarious to watch. There is something Hogarthian about him. (William Hogarth, 1697-1764, is my favourite British artist, known for his risky, challenging and often satirical works of art). He has no finesse whatsoever, is unrehearsed and doesn't consider his words carefully. Yet he challenges many of the pet ideas which pseudo-liberals and other hypocrites espouse. He is rough around the edges, quite vain and does not express himself very well, which gets him into trouble with the media who are looking at every jot and tittle of his words to pull him down and expose him. For example, when he said in his speech in Florida: "when you look at what's happening last night in Sweden", it was assumed he meant that some terrorist event happened in Sweden the previous night, so then the media dived on that to "prove" he is a liar. But he should have said "as I saw on a TV programme about Sweden last night". He needs to consider his words much more carefully because they're looking for any way to catch him out and will go all out to bring him down on any premise. It is a feeding frenzy that they call "press freedom". But that is just a buzz phrase they bandy about to make themselves seem worthwhile. For they do not use their alleged freedom to do anything of worth. In truth, they merely want carte blanche to continue working for their masters and spreading party-lines, lies and disinformation. Though they are so blind and narcissistic that they cannot even begin to see it like that.

I believe it is clear that Donald Trump is being used by the forces of Light to expose the lie at the heart of the establishment today and it is typical of the forces of Light that they would use such a flawed human being rather than some shining guru bathed in light. Perfect. The fool on the hill. The child who dares to shout out: "The Emperor is naked!" Either you understand that or you don't. This interesting and even amusing process understandably triggers the anger of every demonic element in the Universe and every institution presided over by those demonic elements. The mainstream media — with all their arrogant sense of entitlement — serve corrupt masters whose aim is the very Globalism and Pan-Europeanism which Trump has been appointed to expose. All the supercilious pseudo-journalists, pseudo-liberals, lefties and alternativos looking down on anyone who opposes the counterfeit oneness of Globalism and Pan-Europeanism are deeply ignorant of spiritual reality. And this is where they become unstuck.

Thus, exposing the fakeness of the media is one of the ways that the forces of Light have been using even a very imperfect man such as Donald Trump to expose the darkness in this world and those who defend it.

Another way that the forces of Light are exposing darkness is in:

B. Unmasking the Stalinesque Nature of Pseudo-Liberalism

Do you know when and in what context the term "politically correct" was first coined? It was part of Chinese and Soviet Communist ideology. Nikita Khrushchev used it publicly in his speech to the 20th congress of the Communist Party on February 25th 1956, when he spoke of Stalin as not "proving his political correctness" as a good Communist. The following year, Chinese Communist leader, Mao Tse-tung, said in his pamphlet "On the Correct Handling of Contradictions Among the People" (27 February 1957): "Not to have a politically correct point of view is like having no soul".

And that sums up how you are viewed if you are not politically correct. You are anathematized — regarded as not being fit to be part of civilised society. Those who push for political correctness are intent on creating a uniform world in which everyone behaves the same and conforms to the norms dictated by the pseudo-liberals who determine what is correct and what isn't. Life then becomes just like being in Communist China or the Soviet Union. Thus, we see that a kind of Neo-Stalinist mindset has developed in pseudo-liberal circles in the last decade or so which is dictatorial, censorious and arrogantly autocratic.

Now you can see why I use the term “pseudo-liberal”. The vast majority of people who call themselves “liberal”, or who think of themselves as being “liberal”, are anything but genuinely liberal. Their professed liberality is a clever disguise for a great deal of internal baggage, unresolved anger and primal fear — most likely stemming from early childhood trauma which are then picked up on by archon entities which find it easy to manipulate the pseudo-liberal person at a very deep level into hyper-defensive actions against whatever triggers them. It is actually very easy to remove that disguise from a pseudo-liberal. They have so many buttons which can be pressed that there's hardly anything but buttons about them! Essentially, pseudo-liberals want to close anyone down who holds views which they find offensive or challenging. They want to limit the words you can use by calling the offending ones “hate-speech” (“offending ones” = those words which trigger their unresolved anger). They are master calumniators (false accusers misrepresenting your words and ideas). This is why it is pointless debating a pseudo-liberal as s/he will always twist your words and create “straw-man” arguments to sidestep the issues. They will also miss no opportunity to call you racists, sexists, xenophobes, homophobes, islamophobes and any other ‘phobes’ they can dream up. I've always found that weird because a phobia is an acute fear of something and the people that pseudo-liberals accuse of one ‘phobe’ or another are not in the least bit afraid in any of those contexts. But this is typical of the exaggerated misrepresentational hysteria which pseudo-liberals apply to any situation or person which they find threatening. They want to legislate the balls and guts out of you. In short, they want you only ever to think and act like them. And it is this which makes them into Neo-Stalinists.

It is infinitely preferable to be a freethinker and truthseeker rather than a liberal. This has been my chosen pathway. A freethinker and truthseeker isn't tied in any way to a particular doctrine or ideology. For some of my ideas I have been accused of being a liberal by dyed-in-the-wool conservatives. For other ideas, I have been accused of being a conservative by professional liberals. But I refuse to be categorised. A freethinker applies truth, light and reason to any situation and then sprinkles some grace, compassion and as much love as possible on it. (Please don't confuse “love” with schmaltz or sentimentality). A freethinker and truthseeker will never ever submit to the prison cell of political correctness. S/he would rather be sent to jail or even killed than allow political correctness to prevail in his or her life.

Originally, the popular belief was that being politically correct is good and necessary to prevent people from being personally attacked or insulted or offended. But now it is being revealed for what it is: A manifestation of Neo-Stalinism. Neo-Stalinism involves speaking as if one is tolerant, freedom-loving, liberal and democratic but then acting in a totally despotic manner towards those with whom one disagrees. Neo-Stalinists also actively despise genuine freethinkers and truthseekers. They cannot tolerate anyone somehow breaking free from their diktats and seeking truth for themselves. One can see this, for example, when the “democratic process” that they claim to follow doesn't go their way they become extremely nasty and the very opposite of tolerant — even dictatorial. I have observed this increasingly today in the way that politics is conducted in these pseudo-liberal circles. (So-called “New Labour” under UK Prime Minister Tony Blair was a classic exhibition of this Neo-Stalinism). The EU is also a manifestation of that Neo-Stalinism, as also has been the reaction of so many who object to the way the referendum vote went. The campaign to have a second Referendum because they were not happy with how the first one turned out brings to mind many amusing possibilities. Someone said it was like the losers demanding to play out the Battle of Hastings (when the English lost to the French in 1066) all over again because they were not happy with the result!

As another example of this Neo-Stalinism amongst pseudo-liberals, here's a relevant little anecdote: I have a friend who works in a major international company in Europe and she wrote to me just yesterday: "I was warned by work colleagues on Facebook that if anyone in their friend-list agrees with anything Le Pen or Trump says, they would get killed by them personally". I asked her if they were serious. She said "One was, yes". Then she added: "Another colleague of mine explodes when I dare say anything about Trump. He calls me stupid and becomes aggressive. You can then see the anger in his eyes. Something switches. It's like a light switch, very strange thing to see". I have heard similar stories over and over again about such bizarre behaviour from pseudo-liberal people in the last few months.

This is not normal comportment, my friends. This is the worm eating into the brain which I spoke about earlier. It's now like living amongst programmed people who can be triggered aggressively by certain things that you say to them. Manchurian Candidates are living amongst us... in the majority! And the extraordinary thing is that they haven't even had to meet their handlers. It's as if it all happens in the ether via some collective unconscious. I have no doubt that it is the archons up to their dirty tricks. Just for the record, archons cannot touch you in any way if you don't give them any opportunity. But the moment a human is filled with dark thoughts or feelings, rage, anger, greed, jealousy, envy, sexual perversions or unnatural lusts, fear, chaotic thought-patterns, etc., they will take advantage and be that worm in the brain, in the heart, in the soul. Archons are parasites feeding on the unseen iceberg portion of human follies, transgressions and especially unresolved childhood trauma, in which they have a field-day.

I have noticed that the disguise of the pseudo-liberal is slipping increasingly as all is being exposed by the Light. The quasi-reasonable front of the pseudo-liberal is being unmasked. The unresolved anger will come to play a much more obvious role and s/he will be seen for what s/he really is: An intolerant, dictatorial, narrow-minded, frightened reactionary. A Neo-Stalinist. One needs the protection of the Light these days to avoid becoming the equivalent of puppets or ventriloquists' dummies at the hands of archons and their lackeys in the world. Now is the time to choose which side of the fence you are on. [How to live under the protection of the Light is discussed at the end of this article]

Another way that the forces of Light are exposing darkness is by:

C. Unveiling the True Nature of Neo-Feminism

According to many of today's feminists, to have voted for Donald Trump rather than Hilary Clinton is a sure sign of misogyny. Seriously! They claim that it was a vote *against* a woman rather than merely a vote for a man. I don't know which is worse — believing that the vote signified misogyny or supporting a criminal in the political mafia simply because she is a woman!

Now here's an interesting thing: Have you noticed how many women despise Trump with a vengeance. So deep is their contempt that they continually make nasty comments on social media and tell downright lies about him, twisting things to their own crazed view. Crazed is the right word. I have kept wondering why Trump drives so many pseudo-liberal neo-feministic women crazy. The more I watched from the sidelines the reactions of so many women to the campaign and election of Donald Trump, the more I came to realise that one of the main reasons that Trump is so despised by so many women is because he represents symbolically the confident man, secure in his ideas and actions — a man who speaks his mind with self-assurance and boldness. Such behaviour in a man is today regarded as the epitome of political incorrectness by the pseudo-liberal neo-feminists. In fact, to be a real man at all these days has in itself become politically incorrect! This is the kind of man from whom many women today recoil.

Of course, this is not to say that Trump is a model example of the consciously aware and fully-formed man. Far from it! I agree that he sometimes displays narcissism and pettiness and plainly has an unformed character in very many ways. I'm simply highlighting the most likely psychological reasons that so many women are going into meltdown about his campaign and subsequent election. To put it bluntly, they despise his swagger. The reason is because neo-feminism abhors and feels threatened by the confident, self-actualising, self-contained male. This is because women today in general have been programmed to rejoice triumphantly in the metaphorically-castrated man — the disempowered male, mainly through the promotion of androgyny or neo-feminist misrepresentation of the masculine character as naturally rapacious and predatory. However, masculine and feminine dovetail and complement each other in a variety of ways — not least of which are what are referred to as the “focused consciousness” of the masculine element and the “diffuse awareness” of the feminine element (for more on this, see “Knowing Woman: A Feminine Psychology”, by the insightful Jungian psychologist, Irene Claremont de Castillejo). The two elements working together is a powerfully-explosive combination. But modern feminism denies this possibility by not accepting those descriptions. Thus, it furthers the ends of the power-elite.

One of the primary strategies of the power-elite who really run this world (or, rather, act as if they do) is to disempower everyone. But they don't do this in such a way that people are conscious of the disempowerment process. On the contrary, they do it by stealth with such trickery that one actually imagines one is being empowered through the very act of disempowerment! In other words, they make people into slaves in such a way that they believe they are living and growing in freedom. This is so tremendously clever — the perfect example of a “psychological operation” and a model form of mind-control. Of course, the very system of voting in elections is probably the most effective of all the “disempowerment but seem like empowerment” tactics. However, it is also a major part of the strategy of the power-elite to disempower men in society.

The endgame of the power-elite, through its tool of neo-feminism, has always been to take the “balls”, the male powerfulness, adventurousness, derring-do and focused consciousness out of the man (or to disfigure it so much that it becomes a mere controlling power-trip) and to remove (or distort) any trace of devotion, diffuse awareness, mystical depth, selflessness, stability, gentle spirit, feminine ardour and fidelity out of the woman. Thus, many men become, on the one hand, spineless wimps, subservient lackeys or, on the other hand, vain sociopaths and psychopaths, while many women become self (and selfie) obsessed, trout-pouting, narcissistic, oversensitive, attention-seeking posers — fickle, disloyal and irrationally aggressive, the evidence of which is plain for all to see on social media. Here we have the dissolution of the sacred masculine and sacred feminine and the twisting of their beauty and complementarity into unrecognisable and dysfunctional caricatures. This is being enacted before our eyes as the power-elite manufactures a spiteful and baseless gender-war, using women with unresolved personal grievances as their tools. Then, when the dark forces which programme men and women to behave in this way have turned such twisted caricatures against each other, the strategy will be complete. It is this which modern feminism has been quickening. Castration, defeminisation, division and doubt about one's natural gender. The power-elite's perfect spawn, whose masculinity and femininity have become an amorphous, watered-down, unrecognisable wash of indistinguishable nothingness. Such people will be tools of the state without even realising it and can be very easily controlled, as we can see all around us. The way that they are lauded and lionised in the media — who portray them as modern heroes of social change — merely feeds their collective ego consciousness.

All this is yet another feather in the power-elite's cap of control and disempowerment, not to mention creating division which enables increased state control and tyranny. Yet, the lie of neo-feminism is also being exposed for all to see, to those who have the eyes and courage to recognise it. This is being increasingly exposed at the present time. Many men, instead of continuing to be cowed by this destructive neo-feminism, are finding their true manhood and growing in self-realisation, unfettered by the shackles which these women — acting unwittingly on behalf of the power-elite — would impose upon them.

A key facet of the folly of neo-feminism is what I call "The Myth of The Patriarchy". The notion that the source of all the problems of this planet is a historical "Patriarchy" is a fable which has served the power-elite well and kept alive the victimhood of neo-feminism. For it has caused a gender war and division at a primal level of society, pitching women against men on an entirely false basis. I say "false" because men — contrary to what neo-feminists teach — do not have the monopoly on evil in history. Not by a long chalk! The culpability for the ills of this world lies squarely on the shoulders of both men and women equally — human beings as a whole. For every psychopathic male, there has been at least one female egging him on, welcoming him home from his exploits, admiring his prowess and propping up his ego. If you respond by saying "That's because she was brainwashed that way by the patriarchy", then I reply by saying that the male was equally brainwashed to behave as he did by the corrupt society into which he was born. Both men and women have been brainwashed into behaving in an inhuman manner. Women, too, have been plotting and poisoning, conniving, misrepresenting and murdering from time immemorial. To claim "men bad, women good" is a baseless and divisive lie. And so is the myth of the "Patriarchy". Undeveloped men and women have been corrupt from time immemorial. Look back at any earlier times and corruption was being enacted by both men and women (and still is today, though modernity disguises it a little better). The idea that only men ever led the world into evil while all women were oppressed and enslaved is not only absurd but hugely dishonest. The men did most of the thrusting and stabbing while the women went about their business of lusting and grabbing. The men waged war while their women admired them for doing it and congratulated them on their victories. The men took whichever women they desired with wanton rapaciousness while the women plotted how they could seduce their next victim and bag all his loot. The men lied and hacked their way to success while the women schemed how they could bask in the glory of his accomplishments. The leaders accrued great wealth while their women conspired how they could acquire the alpha male with the biggest hoard of gold (and the largest penis). The men were mostly brawn and scheming brain, easily angered, easily triggered and reacting only with their base emotions and through their thrusty little cocks, while many of the women were scheming, deceitful, sly, underhand, unscrupulous, devious, manipulative, conniving, acquisitive whores who cheated on him as soon as his back was turned and went around poisoning their adversaries. And on the occasions when women were in power, things were never any different and still aren't!

Many claim the world would be a better place if women were in power. I shudder to imagine such a scenario. For there lies the root of the problem: Not whether one is a man or a woman but the way that both of them will abuse the power bequeathed to them as human beings. Women should be repelled by the behaviour of both women and men in history and today, rather than turning it into a gender war which only maintains a division which is helpful to the power-elite who rule with ease over a divided world.

It's not a question of women OR men but women AND men together. Women and men have together wrecked this world and only women and men working together can transform it. The bottom line is that most people, women and men, are fucked up. The starting point for change on this planet is when both women and men say to themselves: "I'm a complete fuck-up. I need to sort myself out right now". But most people are too busy talking about "loving themselves just as they are" to make any real changes. Let me give an example of this. If I got fat through stuffing too many fast-food meals into my face and being a couch potato who never exercised and I then saw myself in the mirror, I would rightly be ashamed and move my fat ass to do something about it fast! But nowadays, if someone refers to another person as "fat", it's called "fat-shaming" and has become a virtual politically-incorrect so-called hate-crime. Then fat people are told to love themselves as they are and revel in their fatness as being a beautiful and glorious thing. But it isn't. It's unhealthy, irresponsible, selfish, stupid and unnecessary (obviously unless it's the result of a physical malfunction). However, people don't want to change. They just want to love themselves. Is it any wonder that the world is in such a mess? Arguing from the lesser to the greater, if they can't even face up to the fact that they've been stuffing themselves in McDonalds too much for their body's own good, how are they going to deal with their other internal shortcomings, which need sorting out quickly before the world gets any worse?

Now if you're a woman, you may say to me "Well you WOULD say that. You're a typical man trying to exonerate your own gender". Again, I say that the concept of gender in terms of the decline of civilisation is a complete myth. I exonerate no one. Both women and men are to blame. If I may make it even more personal, the sooner people say "The problem is ME!" rather than pointing the finger at some group or gender, the sooner things will change in this world. If we each deal with our own bullshit instead of blaming others, then change will come; but not before.

So I will resist your false divisions every step of the way. The "Patriarchy" is a myth concocted by divisive neo-feminists who are the dupes of the power-elite. This is all unravelling now as an increasing number of men and women refuse to be intimidated by aggressive and provocative neo-feminist apparatchiks. Neo-feminism — which has been so vocal in attacking Donald Trump and making it into a gender issue — is being exposed to the light and found to be wanting.

3. SOME FINAL THOUGHTS AND QUESTIONS

Maybe many will claim that the content and my tone in this article is "unloving". That is because the word "love" has been castrated of its full breadth and scope in the 'snowflake', "don't offend or disturb me", pseudo-sensitivity generation of today. The word "sensitive" has had its goalposts moved in order to appeal to a narcissistic world population. Instead of "sensitive" meaning the ability to empathise with others and care for their needs in a productive and loving manner, it now applies to inflated egos wanting to protect themselves from undergoing any kind of unpleasantness, social awareness or personal epiphany. As for the misuse of the word "love" (and its corresponding misuse of the word "unloving"), I have watched this process develop over the almost seven decades of my life. I continually look out across the world in all its heaving madness and see clearly that it is moving as it should be towards its inevitable outcome of the essential underlying oneness of everything. I see the unifying cohesion of energy in the Universe. Layered on top of that I see the chaos which the fallen human heart has brought to bear in that Universe. In the midst of those layers — because of the essential underlying oneness — I can feel a sense of love not only for all living things but also for what we ignorantly call "inanimate matter". That is the esoteric, mystical dimension of love. But another, more exoteric, aspect of love involves the desire to see souls awoken to their reality and the extra-dimensional aspects of living. For that reason, sometimes one must become proactive in the overall world-awakening process and use a metaphorical megaphone to gather the troops — to cry out to consciences everywhere with the perfume of passion, the aroma of ardour and the influence of insight, saying: “Wake up and smell the coffee of hypocrisy all around and within you! Open your eyes to the lies and delusions which have been fed to you since you were born! Let no one take your innate power as an evolving human storybook! Emancipate yourself from the shackles which you willingly accepted from others! Do not be pulled along aimlessly by your baggage (like someone being dragged for a run by his dog)! Instead, empty those bags of the clutter they’ve accrued (after identifying its origin), keeping only what is essential on your person, then bury the baggage itself forever in the bottomless pit of resolution!”

You may not believe it but I am the supreme optimist. Yes! I go to bed with a smile on my face and I wake up with one too. Do you know why? Because I know that everything is unfolding exactly as it should be, in the hands of supernatural powers of Light which are in control of everything. That is a reason for joy and optimism. But that optimism is not to be mistaken for wishful thinking. A lot of what passes for “optimism” today is merely misplaced “positive thinking” which flies in the face of reality. So all genuine optimism should always be anchored by an honest realism and tempered by Truth. And that is my position absolutely. I am open to seeing the stark truth about what the world must go through during the coming however-long-it-takes to roll over from the old aeon to the new. From a purely human standpoint it is a harrowing prospect. But I will not let that horrific spectacle throw me into a pit of despair. The reason for that is because I know that everything — no matter how awful it may seem — works together for the overall and ultimate good of the Universe, especially when seen from the standpoint of those who align themselves with the Light. Aligning yourself with the Light does not mean you will never undergo “bad” experiences. On the contrary, you will most likely experience ostracism from family, rejection by fairweather friends and being treated like a pariah in society in general —not to mention persecution by government authorities and even incarceration and death when the climax of this dying aeon comes to pass. But all of that is merely a fleeting inevitability and pales into insignificance when compared with what angels and creation will gift to you as a being aligned with the Light. In other words: It’s totally worth all the hassle! So I ask you to take my hand...

The passage of this world to the fullness of light, life, hyper-dimensionality and order always had to be through the long painful pathway of darkness, death, lower-dimensionality and dystopia. This is the way that has been ordained for our learning. This created world is a kind of gymnasium in the Greek sense of the origin of that word —a school in which we are wholly exercised, naked, in body and soul. Until we wrestle with the darkness to find our way to the Light we have never really experienced the profundity of life.

Here we come to the heart of the matter: What we have been witnessing lately is a manifestation of extreme emotional and spiritual immaturity. All the problems of the world, in whichever area of life they occur, are the direct result of spiritual and emotional immaturity. Those levels of immaturity are especially challenged when the world begins to seem chaotic. This is why it is first important to develop oneself inwardly before one can handle, or willingly discover, what is really going on in the world outwardly. The power-elite depends for its control on the mass of people being exceedingly emotionally and spiritually immature, which indeed in the main they are. That is what they require, in order to accrue their power and maintain the ignorance of the people. Therefore, the most revolutionary act which one can commit is to develop oneself emotionally and spiritually. If an emotionally or spiritually immature person starts to open their eyes about the world, they can be totally destabilised, terrified, or become obsessed unhealthily with world events and conspiracies. One needs the inner development to be able to handle it all. In order to hold onto their power, the power-elite counts on people being either utterly afraid of the Truth or becoming so wackily obsessed with conspiracy theories that people will regard them as nutjobs. That is mostly how they maintain their control — through people's fears, obsessions and other elements of immaturity. What we've been witnessing for the last nine months is simply a manifestation of the mass of people's extreme emotional and spiritual immaturity. It is very clear that if one hasn't made any attempt to deal with those things within, then one will be firing from the hip randomly, in all directions, with fear and anger when the world appears to be unstable or is not nestling in the safety matrix that one imagines one needs. This is precisely what has been happening. This is why the most revolutionary act which one can commit is to develop oneself emotionally and spiritually. Once one stabilises and heals one's old emotional hurts and develops one's inner growth at a deeply spiritual level, then one will soon see the world for what it is without being thrown in all directions with anger and confusion and becoming "terrified" (as I have seen people say so many times on social media recently).

We will know that we have grown up and matured spiritually and emotionally when, instead of relying on political processes or politicians, parliaments, congresses, prime ministers and presidents to change the world, we will set out to change ourselves within at the profoundest level and then lead a life which matches those changes, thus transforming the world in ways unseen through normal eyesight. Make no mistake... world change is coming. Hugely. What passes as "normal life" today will one day be relegated to the history of once-necessary darkness. If we change ourselves now from the inside out, instead of trying to effect change through adapting a corrupted world-system, then our lives will be based not on endless conflict (which is the foundation of ALL politics today and much else) but on educating ourselves, developing our perception (inner and outer), unravelling our egos from the clutter they have accrued, seeing quickly through all deception and skulduggery and understanding the true meaning of such astonishingly misunderstood elements as Peace, Love and Truth and the place they hold in a world currently swathed in chicanery and subterfuge. That will then send untold waves across the universe like ripples in a lake after a precious stone has been randomly thrown in the water.

EPILOGUE: So Where Do We Go from Here?

We can see that the events of the last nine months — the UK Referendum vote to leave the European Union and the campaign and election of Donald Trump — have had a devastating effect on so many people. Yet, really there have been so many more important things with which to be consumed: Notably, an awareness of ourselves and a commitment to self-development and growth. This dimension has been under the corrupting control of beings from another dimension from the earliest time, going through many long-extinct civilisations, some of which have apparently been even more technically advanced than ours. This earth is a living being (when supernaturally and energetically understood) which cannot be destroyed by us. It is part of the extraordinary, magnificently complex theatre for this creation. It is also self-regenerating and will be here long after the present civilisation has been (almost) wiped out — which is coming sooner than we think (though I'm not sure that I will live to see that day). One thing is sure: Darkness can never prevail for it is merely a temporary tool by which we are tweaked and honed into who we are meant to be. So no matter how much evil is generated by the power-elite, which in turn is fuelled by unseen powers of darkness, it will always be used and overruled by the forces of Light. I have to add that there can be no sitting on the fence. One either chooses to follow darkness or Light. Many follow darkness by default because they do not consciously follow the Light. But there can be no neutrality.

The question is this: Can enough of the human race be raised to a higher-dimensional way of thinking and being so that they become the necessary survivors who will build the future post-apocalyptic civilisation based on harmony instead of conflict; insightfulness instead of naivety; altruism instead of acquisition; courage instead of fear; humility instead of narcissism; transparency instead of manipulation; wisdom instead of ignorance; service instead of dominance; delegation instead of the accrual of power; cooperation instead of competition; gender as powerful and complementary instead of insignificant or conflicted; anticipation instead of dread; patience instead of instant gratification; self-sufficiency instead of consumerism and greed; fruitfulness instead of vanity (futility); and much more. It is time to take a stand — not to save the earth (for she will save herself!) but to stand up to the dark powers which control this planet and people and then create a new enlightened civilisation out of the present corrupted one.

In saying “stand up to the dark powers”, I am not speaking here about an armed revolution or any of that kind of fruitlessly violent nonsense. I’m not even referring to mass civil disobedience (for the power-elite is extremely efficient at manipulation and brutality when faced with opposition; in any case our very lives should be an act of civil disobedience by default). The primary way to stand up to the dark powers is to renew ourselves from the inside out so that we will no longer be the passive, ignorant, controlled, acquisitive, easily offended, easily angered, easily manipulated, reactionary, fearful and predictable clones that we have allowed ourselves to become. Another way to stand up to the dark powers is to beam out the Light that we receive so that it fans out into the world where it can be absorbed by others who are open to it. Ask the Universe to show you how. Souls who are sleeping right now can potentially be awakened.

However, I do not minimise the dangers. The power-elite and their lackeys in the intelligence “community” regularly assassinate threatening and influential dissidents at the drop of a hat. That is a big part of their business (as I wrote about at length in an article on that subject, “The Sword’s Fear of the Pen”). It would not at all surprise me to see Donald Trump and similar people assassinated or brought down in some way. The power-elite specialises in character assassination too, using their lackeys in the media. Trump has already been critical of the CIA and spoken about restructuring it and paring it back. That is dangerous talk. A politician cannot do that and survive, for the intelligence agencies and mafias are the enforcers for the power-elite. Presidents only ever have as much power as the power-elite allows them to have. Once they cross the line, they will be dealt with. President John F. Kennedy sacked the Director of the CIA, John Foster Dulles. He also said he would “splinter the C.I.A. in a thousand pieces and scatter it to the winds” (“C.I.A.: Maker of Policy, or Tool?”, New York Times, April 25, 1966). With his Attorney-General brother, Robert F. Kennedy, he also planned to outlaw organised crime. Small wonder, then, that they were both “whacked”. Donald Trump, beware!

The timeline towards ground zero of this dying aeon is much more advanced than most people realise. Therefore, if I have any real advice, it is this: Laugh a lot with well-chosen friends. Meditate. Exercise your body. Eat well. Live cleanly and quietly. Play music, sing and/or dance much. Believe it or not, all those are spiritual activities when practiced by a spiritual person and will develop our consciousness so that we don’t get stuck in a solely mechanical view of life on earth, as so many do today. It is that mechanical view of life which has bogged so many down in the quagmire of the theatre of politics. When we practice spirituality, while at the same time being powerfully aware of what is really happening in this world, light and dark, it is a dynamic combination which will not only propel us into the “tribe” of the new aeon but will also contribute in unseen ways to the appearance of that new aeon itself.

Finally, I want to reiterate what I said above: That the most powerful revolutionary act in this world is for a person to commit to emotional and spiritual growth — finding the key to oneself and one's place in this Universe. That is just the start but a glorious one. From that point on, everything will begin to fall into place for the individual (both internally and how s/he understands the world). Insight upon insight will awaken the heart, if one is open to it and not governed by fear or human/archon control. This is the essence of freedom. One will also be an invincible warrior for the Light, confronting the darkness arrayed against humanity on the earth today, both internally and externally.

Please don't just take my word for it! Find out for yourself, if you have not already done so. This is the REAL adventure. Work unceasingly on yourself in an inner sense. Increasingly dissolve your emotional and spiritual immaturity. Become consciously self-aware. See yourself for what and who you really are. Decades of social engineering and self-conditioning will have to be overcome. This path is not without its rocks and ravines. It will be a painful process. But you will rejoice to be in it, for it is the way of Love, Light and Truth. You will then no longer be blown about like a lost leaf on the wind filled with fear and hopelessness; but you will develop a beautiful expanding vision of what can be. Then an infinitely fuller life can begin which isn't determined or undermined by the insanity on this planet or the darkness of its temporary controllers. You will see everything with new eyes. This is the real revolution. Then, even in the midst of utter chaos and apparent darkness, the world will begin to change. Indeed, it is already changing. The more who follow this path of conscious inner change, the quicker the transition as we move from the old aeon of corrupted power-mongering and egomania to the new aeon of community and human oneness, which is not the enforced counterfeit of the power-elite but the natural outworking of Truth and Light.
