

1a. Fists now punch enemies and when they punch enemies, and when you hit them enough times they die.
1b. Hits the enemies a lot faster so they'll die quicker
2. Pistol now shoots real bullets, which will kill zombies after only two or three shots.
3a. Uses these things called shells and will fire in a rather tight spread which will kill many enemies in less than 10 shots.
3b. Fires a lot more in a wider spread and more damage, but uses twice as many shells.
4. Fires bullets really, really fast.
5. Shoots out a rocket that flies forward and hits the enemy if they're in it's path.
6. Shoots out these things called plasma really fast for tons of damage.
7. Launches this really huge green ball of whatever and when it explodes it kills most enemies, and using all sorts of complicated code (haha), it only affects enemies that you happen to be facing at the time, and only if you're facing the same direction as the path of the green ball.

Is this a Good Idea? I will Not Edit for you, Just Give me Credit Now.

Chill Out Guys. I have another Plan.

"Awesome Weapons"

1. Necronomicon/STIHL Chainsaw
2. Plasma Pistol
3. BB Shotgun/#22 Shotgun
4. Plasma Chaingun
5. The Real Monster Spawner
6. Super Turbo BFG 9000
7. BFG Maxim

1a. A Weapon that Shoots 3 Ghosts at the Same Time, 3x the Speed and 3x the Reviver. Each Ghost Revives monsters back to life in the Good Side. The Revived monsters are now your Team.

1b. A Chainsaw from STIHL.

2. A Pistol that Shoots Plasma.

3a. A BB Gun! Watch out Demons!

3b. Shotgun #22. 3x the Spread as the Super Shotgun.

4. A Chaingun that Shoots Plasma.

5. A Box Launcher that Spawns Monsters.

6. The BFG 9000 with Maximum Speed of Firing.

Registered: 01-07

7. Similar to BFG 11000. It Shoots 4 Red Plasma that Explodes into 7 BFG9000 Cells. This Weapon Also Shoots BFG9000 Cells at the Same Time, That Explodes into 30 Rockets.

Biological evolution is a change in the genetic characteristics of a population over time. That this occurs is a fact.</li> <li>3. The fact that there are 16 fluid ounces (oz.) in a pint (8 oz. to the cup) and 16 dry oz. to the pound leads to all sorts of confusion and mistakes in recipes. Further, it is quite common for recipes to specify an amount of a dry substance in liquid units: a cup of chopped onions, a half cup of diced celery, etc. This is done because we typically don't keep scales in our kitchens, but we do have measuring cups.  Where this really becomes problematic is with measuring flour. The actual amount of flour in a measuring vessel will vary widely depending upon how loose or compact it is.</li> <li>4. Irish Soda Bread is a classic quick bread from Ireland, which takes its name from the fact that it uses baking soda for leavening. The whole reason bread soda was used in the first place was to replace using yeast as the rising agent.  It is usually made with buttermilk, baked on the griddle or in the oven. It didn't keep well and was made every 2-3 days and eaten as a part of the mean, not a desert.  Before baking, a cross is cut on the top with a knife, supposedly to ward off the devil. It shocks some people to learn that Irish Soda Bread hasn't been around for thousands of years. It wasn't until around the 1840's that bicarbonate of soda (bread soda) as a leavening agent was introduced to Ireland. The basic soda bread is made with flour, baking soda, salt, and soured milk (or buttermilk).  Irish soda bread. Real soda bread, the traditional type our Irish ancestors have baked and eaten for well over 100 years. It is tender and dense with a slight sour tang and a hard crust. A nutritious staple that is real "Staff of Life" stuff.  As befitting a traditional product of a poor country, it was made with only the most basic of ingredients: flour to form a dough, bread soda to leaven the dough, soured milk to moisten and activate the soda, and salt for seasoning. It is a traditional food, worth preserving and passing on to our grandchildren and great grandchildren.</li> <li>5. In OpenBSD, interfaces are named for the type of card, not for the type of connection. You can see your network card get initialized during the booting process, or after the booting process using the <code>dmesg(8)</code> command. You also have the chance of seeing your network interface using the <code>ifconfig(8)</code> command. For example, here is the output of <code>dmesg</code> for a Intel Fast Ethernet network card, which uses the device name <code>fxp</code>.  code: <hr/><pre>fxp0 at pci0 dev 10 function 0 "Intel 82557" rev 0x0c: irq 5, address 00:02:b3:2b:10:f7 inphy0 at fxp0 phy 1: i82555 10/100 media interface, rev. 4</pre></li> </ol>
---	---

If you don't know what your device name is, please look at the supported hardware list for your platform. You will find a list of many common card names and their OpenBSD device names here. Combine the short alphabetical device name (such as fxp) with a number assigned by the kernel and you have an interface name (such as fxp0). The number is assigned based on various criteria, depending upon the card and other details of the system. Some cards are assigned by the order they are found during bus probing. Others may be by hardware resource settings or MAC address.

You can find out what network interfaces have been identified by using the `ifconfig(8)` utility. The following command will show all network interfaces on a system. This sample output shows us only one physical Ethernet interface, an `fxp(4)`.

code:

$ ifconfig
lo0: flags=8049 mtu 33224
    inet 127.0.0.1 netmask 0xffff0000
    inet6 ::1 prefixlen 128
    inet6 fe80::1%lo0 prefixlen 64 scopeid 0x5
lo1: flags=8008 mtu 33224
fxp0: flags=8843 mtu 1500
    address: 00:04:ac:dd:39:6a media: Ethernet autoselect (100baseTX full-duplex) status: active inet 10.0.0.38 netmask 0xfffff00 broadcast 10.0.0.255 inet6 fe80::204:acff:fedd:396a%fxp0 prefixlen 64 scopeid 0x1 pflog0: flags=0<> mtu 33224
pfsync0: flags=0<> mtu 2020
sl0: flags=c010 mtu 296
sli: flags=c010 mtu 296
ppp0: flags=8010 mtu 1500
ppp1: flags=8010 mtu 1500
tun0: flags=10 mtu 3000
tun1: flags=10 mtu 3000
enc0: flags=0<> mtu 1536
bridge0: flags=0<> mtu 1500
bridge1: flags=0<> mtu 1500
vlan0: flags=0<> mtu 1500
    address: 00:00:00:00:00:00
vlan1: flags=0<> mtu 1500
gre0: flags=9010 mtu 1450
carp0: flags=0<> mtu 1500
carp1: flags=0<> mtu 1500
gif0: flags=8010 mtu 1280
gif1: flags=8010 mtu 1280
gif2: flags=8010 mtu 1280
gif3: flags=8010 mtu 1280

As you can see here, `ifconfig(8)` gives us a lot more information than we need at this point. But, it still allows us to see our interface. In the above example, the interface card is already configured. This is obvious because an IP network is already configured on `fxp0`, hence the values "inet 10.0.0.38 netmask 0xfffff00 broadcast 10.0.0.255". Also, the UP and RUNNING flags are set.

Finally, you will notice several other interfaces come enabled by default. These are virtual interfaces that serve various functions. The following manual pages describe them:

- `lo` - Loopback Interface
- `pflog` - Packet Filter Logging Interface
- `sl` - SLIP Network Interface
- `ppp` - Point to Point Protocol
- `tun` - Tunnel Network Interface
- `enc` - Encapsulating Interface
- `bridge` - Ethernet Bridge Interface
- `vlan` - IEEE 802.1Q Encapsulation Interface
- `gre` - GRE/MobileIP Encapsulation Interface
- `gif` - Generic IPv4/IPv6 Tunnel Interface
- `carp` - Common Address Redundancy Protocol Interface

The interface is configured at boot time using the `/etc/hostname.if(5)` files, where `if` will be replaced by the full name of your interface, for the example above, `/etc/hostname.fxp0`.

The layout of this file is simple:

code:

```
address_family address netmask broadcast [other options]

Much more detail about the format of this file can be found in the `hostname.if(5)` man page. You will need to read this for less trivial configurations.

A typical interface configuration file, configured for an IPv4 address, would look like this:

code:

$ cat /etc/hostname.fxp0
inet 10.0.0.38 255.255.255.0 NONE

In this case, we have defined an IPv4 (`inet`) address, with an IP address of `10.0.0.38`, a subnet mask of `255.255.255.0` and no specific broadcast address (which will default to `10.0.0.255` in this case).

You could also specify media types for Ethernet, say, if you wanted to force 100baseTX full-duplex mode.

code:

inet 10.0.0.38 255.255.255.0 NONE media 100baseTX mediaopt full-duplex

(Of course, you should never force full duplex mode unless both sides of the connection are set to do this! In the absence of special needs, media settings should be excluded. A more likely case might be to force 10base-T or half duplex when your infrastructure requires it.)

Or, you may want to use special flags specific to a certain interface. The format of the `hostname` file doesn't change much!

code:

```
$ cat /etc/hostname.vlan0
Inet 172.21.0.31 255.255.255.0 NONE vlan 2 vlandev fxp1
```

Nothing can compare to the sheer majesty of this wad. Truly, no amount of adjectives can be used to describe the wonders contained within. It is said that this wad was spawned from the pubic hairs of the gods. Play this and all of your questions will be answered, or not. It all depends on what questions you asked. I get the Credit.
You can do this using Any Lump Editor for ZDoom.
This Editing is Similar to ZDoom Forum's "Deimos Lord" Project.
You have to do the Same with the Cyber Lord.

What I think you need to understand about copyright is that books, articles, photographs, paintings, sculpture, software, websites, architecture, pantomimes, ballets, music, sound recordings, and even doodles, scribbles, and graffiti are all included in the scope which basically applies to any "original work of authorship" that is "fixed in any tangible medium of expression", in this case, characters and their creation. Protection automatically extends to any qualifying work, whether published or not, and whether created in the U.S. or in almost any country of the world. Copyright does not, however, apply to facts, slogans, titles, and simple phrases. Also exempt from protection are works of the U.S. government (and be careful, since the exemption does not apply to works created by state, local, or foreign governments).

As soon as you create an "original" work that is "fixed", you get copyright protection automatically. No longer is a copyright notice on the work required for protection, but a notice does provide some legal and practical benefits, and no longer must the work be registered with the U.S. Copyright Office to be protected, but registration does provide some legal and practical benefits.

As a general rule, the person who actually creates the new work is the original copyright owner, the only exception being in the case of a "work made for hire", the copyright belongs to the employer of the person who creates it. Also, you may transfer your copyright, but a valid transfer requires a signed writing.

Copyright Owners Hold the Fundamental Rights, which include (1) reproduction of the work; (2) distribution of copies of the work; (3) making of "derivative" works; (4) public performance; and (5) public display. Infringement occurs when someone other than the copyright owner exercises any of these rights. Possible infringements include photocopying, uploading to websites, copying software, sharing MP3 files, musical performances, and public film exhibitions.

However, you can use copyrighted works without infringement. For example, education: the law includes numerous exceptions to the rights of copyright owners, and many allow certain uses education and research. To read the law, see Copyright Law Of The United States. Also worth noting is the best known of all exceptions, Fair Use, though not all "educational" uses are allowed under fair use.

If your plans are not within an exception, you can secure permission from the copyright owner, in this case, whoever creates your character. For more information, see the section titled "How To Secure Permission To Use Copyrighted Works".

This isn't something you can wait out. Most copyrights today last through the life of the author, plus 70 years. Works published before 1978 can have copyright protection for a maximum term of 95 years, but you'd be hard pressed to have this created back then. Until then, most recent and ancient works that have remained unpublished are (or soon will be) subject to the basic protection of "life plus 70 years".

But in all fairness, you cannot directly translate from Japanese to English.

Let me put it this way, not everything comes out right from Japanese to English. Like in French to English, "J'ai finis" and "Je suis finis" have to different meanings, and it isn't because one of them is in the past-tense. One of them means "J'ai finis" means "I am done" while "Je suis finis" means "I am dead." **

So mistakes, like this, VERY simple mistakes like I said above, people would translate it differently, hence "I want the credit" or "I had enough of Doomworld". Or whatever he said.

More ZDoom FAQ:

How many Weapon mods are for ZDoom 2.1.7 or higher? If so, Will you please give me some links?

Which weapon overall is the most powerful (Including Alternative shots)?

How many Negative Credits I have left before i'm Banned?

EDIT: Hello? Anyone Posting? If you're not Posting, You get Killed.

If you're not Editing the Stuff I told you, You lose 5 credits.

And no, I'm not Spamming, I'm looking for Somebody nice to Generate my Ideas.

Anyway here's the List:

"[Artist]'s ZDoom Weapons"

1a. Two Fists that Punches Enemies and Shoot Imp's Fireballs at the Same Time.

1b. A Chainsaw that Cuts Enemies and Shoot Cacodemon's Fireballs at the Same Time.

2. Two Pistols that Shoot Bullets and Baron's Fireballs at the Same time.

3a. A Shotgun that Shoots Shells and Railgun at the Same Time.

3b. A Super Shotgun that Shoots Shells and Blue Plasma at the Same Time.

4. A Chaingun that Shoots Bullets and Arachnotron's Plasma at the Same time.

5. A Rocket Launcher Shoots Rockets, that explode into the Spread of Revenant's Missles.

6. A Plasma Launcher shoots Blue Plasma, that Bounces off the Wall 5x.

7. The BFG 9000 that Shoots the BFG Ball, that explodes into the Small Spread of Mancubus' Fireballs, that Bounces off the wall once, that explodes into the Small Spread of Lost Souls, that shoot Blue Plasma around them then explodes into the Small Spread of Arachnotron's Plasma, that bounces off the walls twice, that explodes into the Small Spread of Baron's Fireballs, that Bounces off the wall 3x, that explodes into the Small Spread of Cacodemon's Fireballs, that bounces off the Walls 4x, that Explodes into the Small Spread of Archvile's Flames, that explodes into the Super Large Spread of Imp's Fireballs. Kinda like a Firework Display.

Remember, If you're nice to me, Please Give me a Positive Credit, but if you're naughty or did not reply to me, You ask Permission my own way, NOT your own way.

Um no I will not "start editing". Language barrier or not, your attempts at bossing people around are wearing real thin. For some reason you have it in your head that you can simply spout out random shit, DEMAND people work on these ideas and then give you credit. And on top of it all, I'm not sure if you're serious or not. If THAT was your aim, then congratulations you won. If it isn't, then...

You're seriously jacked in the head or something. You think that by telling me or others to "start editing" that things will just happen? You MUST be joking on some level if you think that's how it works, otherwise you're just a sad individual.

How about this: I'll take your ideas, make them, and then give you no credit whatsoever. I'll call it "MancDoom Awesome Weapons" and in the text file I'll put "All ideas thought of by me and made by me and definitely not by brat matt."

I don't think this guy really means for anyone to make a mod. He's only posting the same thing over and over so he can read the various replies that he finds amusing. He's probably just some 13 year old checking this site from school or something in order to pass the time. The best thing would be to just ignore him and eventually he won't come back.

I. Weapons

- 1a. A Left Fist that Punches Enemies and Throws the Knife with the Right Fist.
  - 1b. A Chainsaw that Cuts Enemies Faster than Original. Their Alternate Shot is Imp's Fireballs.
  2. A Left Pistol that Shoots Bullets while the Right Pistol shoots Blue Plasma.
  - 3a. A Shotgun that Shoots Shells. Their Alternate Shot is the 3-way Blue Plasma.
  - 3b. A Super Shotgun that Shoots Shells with Wider Shot. Their Alternate Shot is the 8-way Blue Plasma.
  4. A Chaingun that Normally Shoots Bullets. Their Alternate Shot is SSG Shells with 2x the Speed.
  5. A Rocket Launcher Shoots a Rocket. Their Alternate Shot is Grenades.
  6. A Plasma Launcher shoots Blue Plasma. Their Alternate Shot is an 8-way Railgun.
  7. The BFG 9000 Shoots BFG Cells with 3x the Damage, 3x the Splash and 3x the Speed. Their Alternate Shot is Bringing Monsters (Even Bosses) Back to Life.

II. Monsters

1. A Zombieman now Shoots Pistol Bullets and Plasma at the Same time from the Distance. They Also use Fist as a Melee Attack.
2. A Shotgun Guy now Shoots 3-way Plasma from the Distance. They Also use Berserk as a Melee Attack.
3. A Nazi Guy now Shoots SSG Shells and 8-way Plasma at the Same Time in Distance. They Arrest 300% of the Player's Health with their Powerful Chisel as a Melee Attack.
4. A Chaingun Guy now Shoots SSG Shells with Turbo Power from the Distance. No melee Attacks for this Zombie.

5. An Imp now Shoots their Fireballs with 2x the Speed from the Distance while they Scratch as a Melee Attack.

6. A Demon/Spectre now Spits Imps from its mouth for the Distance while they Bite for the Melee Attack.

7. A Lost Soul that Attacks with 2x the Speed from Distance and Melee Attacks.

8. A Cacodemon that Shoots 3x their 3-way Fireballs for Distance while they Bite for the Melee Attack.

9. A Hell Knight is Now a Baron that Shoots 2x their Fireballs for Distance while they Scratch as a Melee Attack.

10. The Baron is Now an Afrit that Shoots 3x their 8-way Fireballs.

11. An Arachnotron now shoots Plasma with Twice the Damage for Distance, No Melee Attacks for them.

12. Pain Elemental now Shoots Lost Souls with Turbo Power. When they Die, They Explode into the Stream of Poisonous Smog.

13. A Revenant Shoots their Homing Missles from the Distance Leaving the Swarm of Smog Behind. They Also Attack with 3x the Berserk for Melee Attacks.

14. A Mancubus now has 2 Heads instead of One. They Shoot their Fireballs, then Plasma, then Rockets. They Use their hammer for the Melee Attacks.

III. Bosses

1. An Arch Vile now Spawns New Barrels and Shoot Fire at the Same Time.

2. The Spider Mastermind has the Following Moves:

colors white, Shoots the Stream of Baron's Fireballs and Two Spawn Boxes that Spawn Hell Knights and Barons of hell. Look for it in deimoslord.wad

2. The Cyberbomber Completely looks like a Cyberdemon, it has Two Metal Arms and about Three Times the Size as the Cyberdemon. Look for it in nmonster.wad

3. The Lord of Hell is Completely Similar to The Baron of Hell, Twice as Big and Shoots More Fireballs. Look for it in omgwpns.wad

It's Time to make a Big ZDoom wad "mattbratt's Decorate Weapons and Monsters" for Doom 2.

The Rules went Something like this:

Anyone (not me) can submit a weapon or monster to this WAD "mattbratt's Decorate Weapons and Monsters", provided it follows a couple rules.

The weapon (or monster) must be in DECORATE - Explains itself.

The weapon (or Monster) must work properly - All states should function, and in general there shouldn't be anything I (or, if someone else really wants to manage it, that person) have to do to fix it.

The Weapon (or Monster) is balanced - This will be decided by a group of judges, and should be based on wildweasel's Power Level system (see below).

The Weapon (or Monster) comes with sprites - They must look decent, however it doesn't matter if they're ripped/modified.

The Weapon (or monster) should try to be original - While originality isn't key, it is good.

The Monster must be Doom Related - Try to edit the monster that is only related to doom.

Judges posted soon.

Remember, I edit new maps while you edit new Weapons and monsters.

Do You Apply from Above?

If you Don't, Please Don't Ban Me or I'll Kill You.

No Sir. I'll Add these Simple Rules that is Illegal Not to Do:

- 1. Don't Ban Me or I kill you Back.
- 2. Don't Lock this Topic or I'll Lock Yours.
- 3. Don't Cuss or Say Bad Words to me or I'll Call Police on You.

All I Want you to Do which was Illegal Not to do is Editing my Ideas or Wads, etc...

Goodbye!

1. How are you going to kill us? You don't know where any of us live.
2. You don't have moderator powers so it is impossible for you to lock topics.
3. Cussing is not a crime. And also, see number 1 above; you don't know where we live so how will you report us to the police?

Idiot.

Well, gee. You know, I just had one of those, but...well...I had to reformat my disk. Somehow, I got the Al.Gore.D virus which caused my computer to heat up to insane levels. I think that was the only copy too, so I can't help you. Sorry. But I'll tell you this. It was one of the most spectacular TCs I have ever played. It was easily as good as The Sky May Be.

mattbratt11, before you start asking for help on your new mega-cool-and-whatnot project, make sure you have something to show first (screenshots, map downloads, etc). Keep in mind we've already seen thousands of upcoming projects that actually never got done.

Since Nobody Answered, I'll come up with an Idea.

What if there's a Wad for ZDoom where Doomguy goes to Washington DC To Beat the Bad Presidents like George W Bush, Abe Lincoln, George Washington and others like Republicans, Democrats and Third Parties.

Try to Find That in the archive.
