Donnell To Be Honored At Memorial Ceremony

On Sunday, June 19 at 3:00 p.m. there will be a brief ceremony at 2 Salem Street, (corner of Main Street) to honor Sam Donnell. Charlestown is invited to attend the unveiling of a plaque in his honor.

During 35 years in Charlestown, Sam did a great deal for all of us in helping to rebuild our proud town to its former glory. He personally restored six buildings into 12 living areas, adapting them to present day needs.

He loved the old houses and helped many to rehab their property, many times pitching in himself.

We hope that all citizens of Charlestown will enjoy this memorial and they and their children will honor his memory.

YOUR HOME IS WORTH MORE THAN EVER BEFORE HOW CAN YOU BE SURE OF GETTING THE BEST PRICE? BY LISTING WITH GIBSON

Lower mortgage rates have meant increased sales and many buyers in the market. With more buyers for fewer listings, your home is worth more. Be sure of getting the best price — call Gibson. Here is our sales record:

A) GIBSON'S RECORD SALE PRICES:

Gibson has sold the highest priced* properties in Charlestown in the following categories:

- Single-family home: $149,000 (1982)
- Two-family home: $245,000 (1983), $170,000 (1982)
- Three-family home: $211,750 (1983), $185,000 (1983, contract)
- Four-family home: $300,000 (1982)

B) GIBSON'S PRICES: 25% TO 60% HIGHER THAN AVERAGE CHARLESTOWN PRICES***

Over the last 7 years Gibson's average sale price has been 25% to 60% higher than the average Charlestown home sale price.*

In 1982 the average Charlestown sale price* was $68,200. For 1982 Gibson's average sale price was $105,000 — 54% higher.

C) GIBSON HAS SOLD 60% OF ALL CHARLESTOWN PROPERTIES OVER $100,000* GIBSON HAS SOLD 66% OF ALL CHARLESTOWN PROPERTIES OVER $200,000* (*Source of data: Real Estate Transfer Directory through May, 1983, Banker and Tradesman through June 8, 1983.

Included in these calculations: condominiums, single through four family homes. Excluded from the analysis: vacant land, industrial and commercial properties, investment properties of 5 or more units, and sales between close family members.)

We are NOT saying that listing with Gibson makes your home worth more than if you list with another broker. We are saying that we work very hard to get the homeowner the best possible price, and over the years we've listed and sold a very high proportion of higher priced homes in Charlestown.

What is the "best price" for your home? It is the highest price a buyer will pay for it. We believe we will get you the highest possible price because of the way we sell houses:

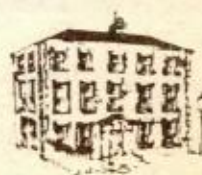

- CAREFUL PRICING: making use of the most complete COMPETITIVE MARKET ANALYSIS available in Charlestown.
- BROAD MARKET EXPOSURE: through 4 Boston area offices and our Charlestown-Boston-Cambridge co-brokerage network.
- SKILLED AND PROFESSIONAL BROKERAGE: Professionalism is serving the best interests of the client — the home owner. We will tell the home-owner when they have under-priced or over-priced their home. Unless the owner specifies otherwise, we always make our listings immediately available to our co-brokerage network (unlike many brokers working in Charlestown who don't share their listings to insure getting all the commission)

Whatever the sale value of your home, you will benefit from Gibson's reputation for having the best selection of the best listings.

BE SURE OF THE BEST PRICE. CALL GIBSON.

Dear Mr. Silva:

I recently purchased a condominium through one of your sales associates and wanted to let you know how effective she was in helping me close the sale.

I was a first-time buyer and required much support and needed many extra questions answered. She provided me with much guidance and her follow through on various problem-topics was excellent.

On this sale, she really earned her commission, and deserves even more for all of her work and time!

Please offer her my sincere thanks and commendations for not only doing her job, but also performing and completing a service I really needed.

Dear Mr. Silva:

We would like to let you know how pleased we were with Century 21 Silva Realty Associates handling the sale of our condominium.

After an unsuccessful three months with another real estate firm and two unsuccessful and very frustrating months of trying to sell it ourselves, your salesperson's willingness and optimism was greatly welcomed. We feel that your firm made the difference in selling our condominium.

Please know that should we hear of any other condominiums in our building that may be going on the market, Century 21 Silva Realty Associates will be highly recommended.

Sincerely,

Dear Century 21 Silva Realty,

I would like to express my deep appreciation for the highly professional manner in which your office handled the sale of my six unit apartment building.

The ability to find a qualified Buyer and persuade me of that fact when I was skeptical was of paramount importance. Your confidence in keeping the negotiations alive in spite of overwhelming difficulties not the least of which was that all communications were by telephone and mail due to my 100 mile distance was remarkable. Finally the expertise in coordinating all the necessary details was essential to the successful conclusion.

I would welcome the opportunity to provide a reference for your firm to any prospective clients you might have.

Sincerely,
A Satisfied Customer

Travaglini Endorses Salvucci Transportation Plan

ROBERT TRAVAGLINI

Robert Travaglini, candidate for the District City Council Seat for East Boston, Charlestown and the North End, this week announced his support of the transportation plan recently unveiled by state Transportation Secretary Frederick Salvucci.

Travaglini said, "Transportation issues are perhaps the most crucial ones facing this District. East Boston has a serious problem with the harbor tunnels. The North End faces constant traffic headaches with the Central Artery. Charlestown must deal with the Mystic River Bridge and congestion at City Square. The new City Councillor representing these communities must understand how these various transportation problems interact, and must have a firm policy to address those concerns."

Travaglini voiced support for what he termed "Secretary Salvucci's bold proposal to depress the Central Artery and build a third harbor tunnel on Airport land. The work on this project, once completed, will enhance the quality of life in our communities." Travaglini continued, "I support a third tunnel, as Secretary Salvucci does, on Airport land. No homes will be displaced, no neighborhoods divided. Rather, traffic flow will be smoother and the people of Chelsea, Bremen and Paris Streets will literally breathe a little easier."

Travaglini also voiced support for alternative transportation systems. He said, "I cannot believe that a viable, economical and efficient ferry system won't work between East Boston and Downtown Boston. Every other major port city in America, including New York and San Francisco, has such a system. We must be innovative and imaginative in our approach to our transportation needs. We must reach into the legacy of our past, and utilize the technology of the future, to overcome the problems of the present."

Edward (Red) Evers Announces For School Committee

Charlestown resident Edward (Red) Evers has announced his intentions to run for the District School Committee seat from Charlestown, East Boston, and the North End.

Evers, a life long resident of Charlestown, is married to Mary McGoff Evers and is the father of eight children. He has been a member of the Teamsters for over 20 years and has long been active in youth and Community affairs in Charlestown. Evers is a former board member of the Charlestown Youth Hockey, the Kent-Charlestown Community Schools, and the Charlestown Cable T.V.

Task force and is also a member of the Bunker Hill Council No. 62, Knights of Columbus.

In announcing, Evers stated that his intentions were to try to get the District together by crossing all political lines and invites all to work towards a common goal of real neighborhood representation. He felt his candidacy can be a viable one by using the approach that the reasoning for District Representation was to let the people elect someone from within their ranks who would represent them fairly and evenly regardless of political backgrounds and felt that he could provide this function in a realistic and professional manner.

Evers will run a neighborhood - based campaign through friends and neighbors and when asked about fundraising stated, "I will have to have funds but they will come from low priced functions that people will enjoy and still be able to help my candidacy, because as a husband and father of eight I can understand the problems of trying to contribute to any candidate." In conclusion Evers said a committee has been formed and will be working within the next week towards his candidacy.

History Retold Through Monument Association Proceedings

by Maria Girvin

Besides being a historical log of events which took place prior to the Civil War and later, the Proceedings of the Bunker Hill Monument Association offer a chance to relive historical events through the impressions of those who have lived and died before us.

In reading the proceedings, historical anecdotes are recalled through reports of past Association presidents, through letters filed with the annual reports and in addendums to the reports. Compiled in the following, is a sampling of some of these stories which took place between 1861 and the turn of the century. Much of the original text is retained so that readers can enjoy our forefather's awe in its original form.

However, before proceeding, it should be mentioned that the Bunker Hill Monument Association was established by Daniel Webster and his associates of the time to build a monument in dedication of the great battle and to preserve the battle date as a legal holiday. While for the most part that feat was accomplished, the Association continued meeting and will meet once again this year for the 160th Annual Meeting, concerning themselves with the Monument's upkeep and expansion.

The proceedings show us that it was through the Association's diligence that Monument Avenue was extended to Main Street. It was their endeavors that finally saw the building of the Granite Museum located alongside the monument and which houses numerous revolutionary relics.

In the Association's recorded proceeding of 1861, there is a letter recorded, dated June 25 from a Horace P. Tuttle and addressed to then Monument Association President G. Washington Warren.

In this letter, Tuttle excitedly tells about a new mode of telegraphing, using lights to convey the Morse Code instead of the telegraph machinery. The experiment Tuttle relates and which involved the Monument was important then because the Civil War had just broken out and one of the first things enemy soldiers did upon entering a town was to cut down the telegraph lines and thus impair communications for help or of warning. Therefore, sending messages via light became important to these patriotic New Englanders who anticipated battles, once again, upon their soil, an event which never took place.

"The use of lights for the purpose of communicating signals between distant points at night, has been used for centuries," wrote Tuttle in his letter, "but the idea of using them in the manner in which I do, is as far as I can learn, entirely new. About seven weeks ago, it occurred to me that lights might be used for the purpose of telegraphing, by making the time of the disappearance or appearance of light correspond to the dots and lines of the Morse alphabet ... I communicated this idea of telegraphing to my friend, G.F. Milliken, Esq., chief operator in the office of the American Telegraph Company in Boston and in reply he said he should like very much to try the experiment. After constructing a couple of machines from directions given by him, experiments were made on several nights in the vicinity of the Public Gardens in Boston and with perfect success.

"It was then suggested that the top of Bunker Hill Monument and the cupola (roof-top structure) of the State House would be much better places to operate from. Through your kindness, permission was given us to make experiments from the top of the Monument on any night and the evening of the 12 we fixed upon to make the trial ...

"Upon arriving at the top, a Mr. Deveraux (an operator) gave the telegraph 'call' (which he did by cutting off the light rapidly), and was instantly answered by a like 'call.' Mr. Deveraux then telegraphed, 'Do you see my light distinctly?' 'I see it first rate,' was the response from Mr. Milliken. The time occupied in asking the question and receiving the answer was about a minute. After conversing for nearly an hour, we bade 'good night' to the Boston operators and then retired.

"The apparatus consist of a box about fifteen inches long, six broad and eight high. One side of the box has an aperture (circular) about three inches in diameter. In this box is put a dark lantern, having in one side a plano-convex lens, through which the light first passes, and then through the aperture in the box. On the side of the box having the aperture, is a lever, moving on a pivot. On pressing down one end of the lever, the opposite end, which is large, rises and covers the aperture. The operator moves this lever in precisely the same manner as he does the make-circuit key in the Morse telegraph.

"This method of telegraphing ... is specially fitted to army and navy operations," concluded Tuttle. This, of course, is precisely the type of Morse Code used by the Navy since Civil War times.

****

It is also noted in the 1861 Proceedings that the flag was flown for the first time from atop the Monument. Although it was eventually to happen, the Monument Association more or less rushed the making of a flag for the Monument to show defiance to the separation of Southern states from the Union. Made by the ladies of Charlestown, the flag measured thirty feet long, nineteen feet wide and was elegantly made.

The fierce patriotism of this region was unmistakably stirred as speaker after speaker made reference to the impending Civil War during their oratories on Bunker Hill Day.

"The Bunker Hill Monument Association have done much to keep alive the genuine feeling of patriotism - a reverence for the principles of constitutional liberty, and a love of country ... We shall not be true to one of the great purposes of our organization, if we do not do everything in our power to bring about a reunion of sentiment between distant and now divided part of the Union ...

Throughout most of the later 1800s the Monument Association endeavored to petition the City of Boston, which Charlestown eventually became part of, to build streets that would directly link the Monument to major roads. They were half-way successful.

"There is no direct approach to the Monument from the principal street of Charlestown and scarcely any point in any of the public streets from which a good view of the Monument can be had," argued Warren in a letter to the City Council. "There are several places outside of the city limits of Charlestown from which a more imposing view of this majestic structure is presented than from any within the city. The extension of Monument Avenue, as proposed, will make an opening opposite the Post Office, and the most frequented point in the city. It is very desirable that this should be done, and the present is a favorable time for doing it. The City Government of Charlestown has already determined to make a great improvement by widening City Square and by widening and improving Warren Avenue, the principal entrance from Boston to Charlestown; and when it shall also make this other desirable improvement, upon which the negotiation with us is now pending, it will achieve very much for the ornament and credit of the city, and for the convenience of its citizens, as well as of the many thousands of persons who annually visit Bunker Hill."

The Association was successful in getting Monument Avenue extended to Main Street but never were able to convince Boston City Council of a diagonal street between the Monument and City Square.

****

As stated before, it was one of the Association's objectives to preserve the battle date of Bunker Hill as a legal holiday. The holiday eventually happened on a county level but not for a long time after the Association's inception.

However, the Proceedings indicate that the Charlestown City Government celebrated the battle date and would decorate the monument with flags "in a tasteful manner," and provide for a band of musicians to play upon the square during the afternoon and evening. There was a general suspension of business, the closing of the principal offices of Boston and Charlestown by a voluntary understanding and the military parades would march. It is not clear, however, whether this was the norm or the exception.

There is no recorded date of the first Bunker Hill Day Parade, however, many references are made to large celebrations of June 17, depending on a particular visitor such as the President of the United States or a particular anniversary such as the 100th.

1886 Proceedings refer to "a procession of an appropriate and dignified character, under the auspices of the government of the city will visit our ground."

1895 Proceedings contain a remark by then president Frederic Lincoln saying, "We heartily welcome the more recent popular demonstrations of the Anniversary of Bunker Hill, the legacies of the dead who bequeathed funds for the patriotic purpose, the appropriations from the city treasury and the liberal contributions of private citizens

However, the visit of U.S. President Johnson to the Monument in 1867 (the first since the association's existence) resulted in the largest and probably most elaborate of parades Charlestown or Boston has ever had. Initially, the President came in honor of the Mason's dedication of their Grand Lodge, June 24th. However, after those ceremonies, the President visited the Monument. He was greeted with unbelievable homage. An account of the celebration, recorded in the 1867 Proceedings is as follows:

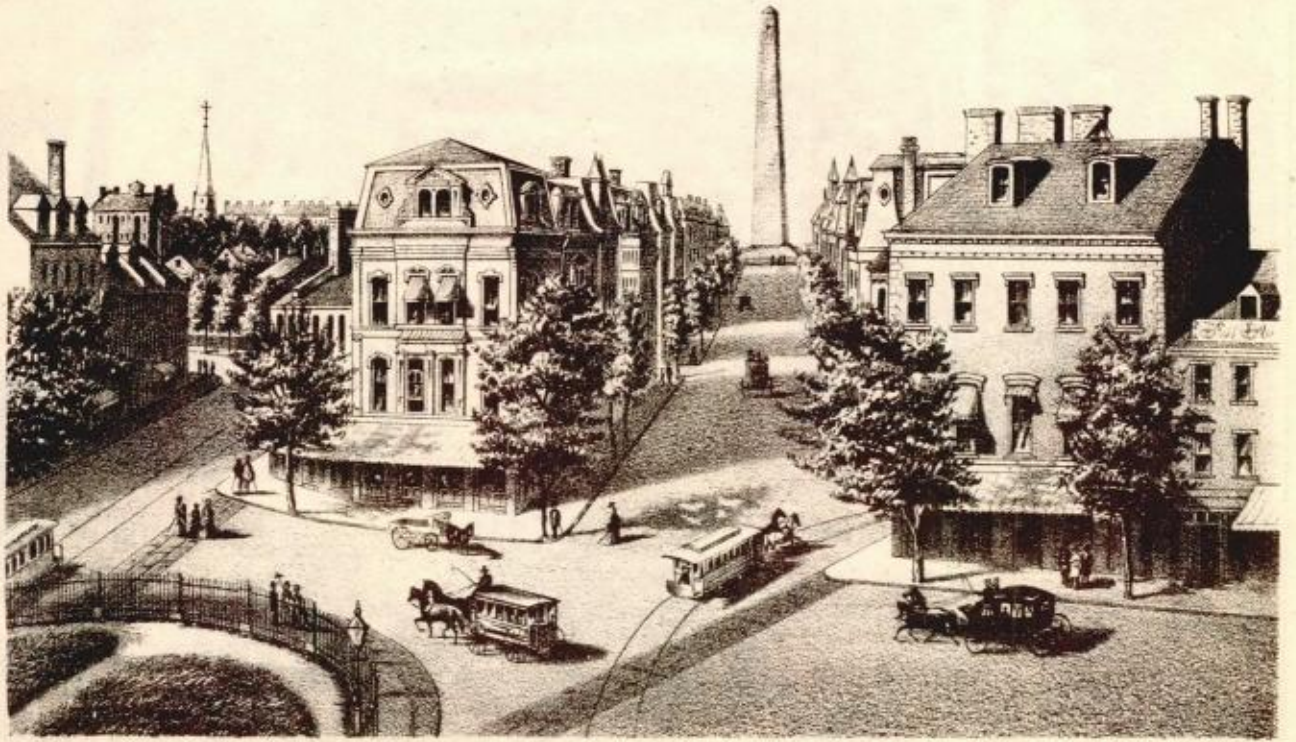

"A strong force of police was distributed, with good judgement, at all points where any interruption might be occasioned. A new set of carriages had also arrived, and were in readiness at the side entrance of the hotel. The carriage reserved for the President was the finest that could be found in Boston. About eleven o'clock, the party issued from the hotel, got into the carriages, and were driven up to the spot where the Prescott Light Guard of Charlestown were drawn up. The Guard saluted the president as he passed, and the band struck up 'Hail to the Chief.' The different carriages were then placed in position immediately behind the troop of cavalry, the musicians, and a platoon of police. In the carriage with the President were seated the Mayor of Charlestown and Postmaster-General Randall; then followed Generals Rousseau and Granger, with Surgeon Basil Norris. The Charlestown Committee, the President of the Senate, Chief of Police, and other officials came after, in carriages also. The procession moved forward without unnecessary delay, proceeding through Beacon, Bowdoin, Green, Leverett, Causeway, and Beverly Streets, whence it continued its course in a straight line over the bridge to Charlestown. All along the route, much enthusiasm was displayed by the people, who filled the sidewalks, or appeared on stoops or at windows, cheering, and waving handkerchiefs, in honor of President Johnson.

"In Charlestown, the evidences of popular feeling were displayed in a manner still more complimentary. The bells were kept ringing the whole time, nearly all the houses were decorated with flags, and the people turned out en masse. The President's progress through the town was like a triumphal march. Arrived at Bunker Hill, the scene that presented itself was picturesque and enlivening. The entire Square was crammed with men, women, and children, in the highest state of excitement. The elegant mansions built around the beautiful spot were hung with flags and streamers; arches of red, white, and blue, spanned the streets; and on some of them were inscriptions, such as 'Welcome to the President,' 'Welcome to Charlestown,' The windows were crowded with ladies, waving handkerchiefs and manifesting their delight in a variety of other ways. Cheer after cheer went up from thousands; and some excited individuals on the sidewalks endeavored to break through the line of police to get near the President and shake his hand.

"The Monument itself, was wholly destitute of decorations, rearing itself high above all the surrounding objects in simple, yet solemn, grandeur; but all around it, on poles and cords, were suspended flags fluttering prettily in the breeze. The procession moved slowly around the Square and then halted at the main entrance where the party alighted, and entered the grounds.

At one entrance to the Square was an arch trimmed with flags, displaying at the top the words, 'Welcome All!' The Monument grounds also were neatly decorated."

It was fitting that the President visit the Monument after having attended Masonic ceremonies, as had it not been for the Mason's tribute to their first Grand Master Joseph Warren, there might not be a monument today. It was the Masons who after the Battle of Bunker Hill erected a pillar in honor of Warren which stood for 30 years until the construction of the Monument began.

Said Association President Warren, in addressing the President of the United States, "In a few years after the battle, in which this town was destroyed, the members of King Solomon's Lodge of Masons, before they had scarcely rebuilt their homes, erected here, at their own expense, with the permission of the private owner, a beautiful Tuscan pillar, which marked this spot for thirty years, until surrendered to us for this imperishable memorial. It was a patriotic impulse, and also a reverent feeling of masonic obligation, which prompted that humble lodge to erect a monument to their Grand Master, the first great martyr of the Revolution. Yes, Mr. President, the cause of American Liberty was then sealed by Masonic blood; and now the masonic fraternity, affiliated in every part of our land, disconnected with politics, and ignoring partisanship, is to hold this glorious Union in the bonds and cement of brotherly affection."

The Centennial Celebration was probably a close match to the President's visit as it was four hours long and spread over 6 1/4 miles from the Hotel Vendome (corner of Commonwealth Avenue and Dartmouth Street) to Monument Square. In honor of the 100th celebration, a pavilion was built below the Monument that was 250 feet long by 100 feet wide and could seat over five thousand spectators.

1870 saw the Pacific and the Atlantic Oceans connect through the railroad. Still president of the Monument Association, Warren told the public, on Bunker Hill Day, about his trip across the continent and how pleasant it was because of the new Pullman cars, which at that time, was a symbol of luxury as well as modern times.

"I come before you this morning, immediately after my return from a journey across the continent," said Warren in his address, "having in twenty-five days travelled nearly seven thousand miles, and passed eleven of those days and night in distant cities. Thanks to the genius and enterprise of George M. Pullman and Albert B. Pullman (whose long study of the needs of the traveller on his journey, and whose wonderful combination of apt contrivances displayed in the elegant hotel and sleeping cars invent by them and constructed under their supervision - so stoutly built and tastefully decorated that as objects of admiration they appear as handsome as any ships that ever sailed upon the sea. - will deservedly place their names in the rank of the benefactors of mankind) any person, old or young, can now take a journey like this, with a sense of perfect security, and without the least regret for the want of any comfort to which he has been accustomed.

"In truth, I have often suffered more fatigue in travelling fifty miles and back, on any of our own railroads, in the best car I could find, than I have experienced in this whole journey. Hereafter, our people, who are essentially a travelling people, will not be satisfied to be packed in public conveyances like cattle, or like sardines in the compact boxes imported from Italy. This novel adaptation - so curiously contrived by the Pullmans - of the ease and luxury of home to the railway car will accomplish much for the benefit of the race, and will mark an era in the world's progress ..."

As a gesture of goodwill, the President of the Boston Board of Trade, a Mr. Rice, poured part of a vial of water obtained from the Atlantic Ocean nine days earlier into the Pacific and then refilled the bottle with Pacific water. Wrote Warren, "... that simple ceremony seemed to be, in some sort, a confirmation of the ancient grant found in the Colony Charter, which gave the proprietors all the breadth through the mainlands, "from sea to shining sea."

A letter which appeared in the 1874 Proceeding lends insight into the battle of Bunker Hill. Written by E.H. Derby to General James Dana, Derby recounts war anecdotes which he had recounted at an earlier party. At Dana's request, he wrote them down in the letter, saying that he had not seen these stories printed in other narratives on the battle. "They come from the homes of the brave men who came down from the hills of New Hampshire to the siege of Boston and formed more than a third of the troops who took part in the battle of Bunker Hill ... Many of these men were from the ancient town of Nutfield or Derry, N.H., and descendants of the Scotch-Irish race, who had shown themselves to be good soldiers at the siege of Derry and battle of the Boyne," wrote Derby.

Having once lived in Charlestown near the Monument and then moving to New Hampshire, Derby had acquired the stories. According to him, when New Hampshire troops reached the combat field late in the day, and fresh for a fight, their commander, Colonel Stark, saw occupying the line of the hay fence as most important. He also saw to it that the fence was extended to the river. The hay fence was reinforced with stones taken from other fences in the vicinity. "As soon as his light parapet was finished," wrote Derby, "he (Stark) advanced some eighty yards in front of the line while the British troops were approaching and there he planted a stake; then returning to his line, addressed his men, telling them he would shoot the first man who fired before the British passed the stake."

Derby went on to write that of the 700 British soldiers who commenced battling this New Hampshire regiment, only 83 survived. The whole stock of ammunition, when the fight began, was a grill of powder and fifteen bullets to the man. Had it not been for the lack of ammunition, suffered by the Americans, the Battle of Bunker Hill would have been won by them, instead of the British.

The Monument Association Proceedings contain numerous other accounts on the Battle of Bunker Hill through eye witness accounts. Wrote Edward E. Hale in an address to the public on Bunker Hill, "I never pass through Staniford Street without remembering a story of Bunker Hill. An old lady, who was a girl on that fatal day, told me that she never forgot how, late in the afternoon, the carts from the wharves brought up the wounded English soldiers as they had been taken from the field. The child saw, shuddering, the gouts of blood from wounds yet unbandaged, as it dropped from the carts upon the roadway ..."

In a letter written the day after the battle by a Joseph Edes to his father, Edes had not been in the Breed's Hill Battle but had been on Charlestown Point, building a Breast Work. Wrote he to his father, "At one o'clock in the afternoon the British Troop, landed on the point, about 3500 and marched up to our Breast Work, and our men gave them the first fire from the Breast Work and fence. The fire held 3/4 of an hour, but how many were killed I know not. How many of our men killed I know not ... But the fight is not done. Our army retreated to Winter Hill (Somerville) Cpt. Rowe was in the fight and Cpt. Collins, Charlestown is burnt and all the houses on the Point up to Penneys Ferry ... Such a day New England never saw. I saw a number of the troops lay dead. It is thought the troops will not return until we, or the troops give up the Point ..."

In another letter, an eyewitness account is given to an unknown friend abroad in England. After briefly recounting the battle scene the eyewitness makes this recording. "Terrible indeed was that scene even at our distance. The western horizon in the day time was one huge body of smoke and in the evening a continued blaze and the perpetual sound of cannon and volleys of muskets worked up our disturbed imaginations to an high degree of fright. The unhappy fate of Charlestown diffused melancholy over every countenance, and occasioned the tears of compassion to flow from every eye when it was considered how many families were deprived of all and sent naked into the world..."

Finally, in an address given by a former monument president, Frederic F.W. Lincoln, an eyewitness account of an old lady is retold. "The 17th of June, 1775, was a day of excitement in the town of Boston, in which of course the children joined. The young girl with her companions and playmates went up to the burial ground on Copps Hill (North End) to witness the transactions of the opposite shore of Charlestown. There was a battery on the ground manned by British soldiers. They were apparently on friendly terms with the children, and said to them, as they watched the proceedings across the river, that they would see their countrymen, the Yankees, flee as the King's forces approached the redoubt on Bunker Hill. All watched the troops as in military array they ascended the hill. There was a period of suspense. - no fire from the redoubt, breastwork, or rail fence: again the gunners repeated the jeering remarks to the children, and called upon them to witness the cowardice of their countrymen, who would not fight. when suddenly a report of musketry was heard! Prescott had given the order, and the Americans had delivered their fire. For a few minutes the smoke obscured the hill, but as it was swept off by the wind, or lost in the clouds, they discovered that it was the British troops who had retreated down the hill; and to their amazement they saw that the greensward was covered with red patches ..."

Even the British bowed to the colonists brave struggle in publishing a letter written four days after the battle by George Clerk who led the British Light Infantry. Wrote Clerk, "At the beginning of the attack, Charlestown was set on fire, and the whole by the day after was laid in ashes, a part of the terrible effects of civil war. The rebels were very numerous, and behaved far beyond any idea I could ever have formed of them. They had about five thousand men in the field, and we not much above two thousands, if so many. But we have paid for our victory in the loss of a great number of our officers. I am told above eighty have been killed and wounded, - a great smash by such miscreants. They are fortifying themselves very strongly on the heights in our front about a mile and a half, and have drove away all their cattle, etc., so we are no better as to provisions. What will now be done I can't say, as they seem to be fortifying every hill and determined to dispute every inch of ground with us." ****

Parade Crowd Cheers Life Focus Contingent

Applause, cheers, and standing ovations greeted 25 special needs children and eight staff members from Charlestown's Life Focus Center. Their uniforms were smart, and their trophies and medals from the Special Olympics were gleaming as they proudly marched through Sunday's Bunker Hill Day Parade.

line up was a doubledecker bus donated by Boston Doubledeckers, Inc. which provided transportation for those who did not march and a welcome retreat from the sun for those who did.

The children and Boston Doubledeckers had a wonderful day and both look forward to returning for next year's Parade.

John A. Nucci, Candidate for the Boston School Committee from District One (Charlestown, East Boston, North End), issued a statement this week "acknowledging and sincerely thanking the people of Charlestown for the overwhelming support, hospitality and enthusiasm shown to me and my family over the Bunker Hill Day weekend. This type of encouragement from the residents of this proud neighborhood serve as a boost to my candidacy and a call to continue my effort to provide A NEW VOICE FOR TOMORROW'S LEADERS." Nucci added.

Nucci 31, a lifelong resident of the district and a product of Boston Latin School, Boston College, and the holder of a Masters Degree in Public Administration from Suffolk University, has been campaigning energetically in Charlestown over the past few months. "I have been meeting the parents, pupils, and taxpayers of this district and I will continue to listen and, more importantly, hear, their concerns about the condition of our Boston Public Schools," commented Nucci. "Much needs to be done, but, together, I am confident we can work towards restoring a school system currently in woefully inadequate condition." Nucci, and his wife Peggy (Noons) Nucci, an instructor of handicapped children in Boston for eight years, were active participants in the weekend's Bunker Hill Day festivities.

Word Processing Course At BHCC

An intensive non-credit course in word processing will be offered by the Division of Continuing Education of Bunker Hill Community College starting June 21.

The course focus will be on basic operations: creating and editing a document, formatting, printing, merging and filing.

Each student will receive a word processing certificate upon the successful completion of the course.

Call 241-8600, ext. 444 for more information.

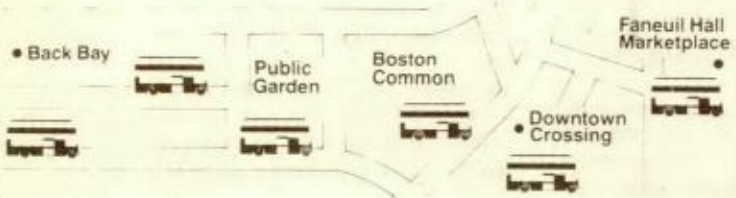

Congratulations on a Great Parade!

by Sal Giarratani
IN TWO WORDS—You may have missed me in last Sunday's Bunker Hill Day Parade. If you wondered, how you missed me, its because I didn't march.

My candidacy went the way of the dinosaur and I had to decide whether to continue or call it a day. I called it a day. Perhaps, the timing was off. I don't know exactly what happened but I just couldn't put it together, financially or organizationally. So, you the reader are stuck with me and all my opinions once again. God Save the Commonwealth.

ALL IN THE FAMILY—No, I'm not going to write about Archie Bunker losing his Place but rather my sister-in-law, Tanya Giarratani, who has signed up for nomination papers for District School Committee in the Roslindale/Hyde Park district.

DIANE MODICA WINNING—Citywide City Councillor candidate Diane Modica of East Boston is picking up support across the city on her way to victory in September. She's working the southern tier of the city well, getting her name and record out there... Bob Cappucci is having a time at the Ramada Inn, Monday, June 20th at 7:00 p.m.

He is no stranger to the northern tier and should do really well in the North End, East Boston and Charlestown in his quest for City Council in District 1.

TRAVAGLINI DEPT.—The District One City Council fight is one of the best in the city. Its been a very clean fight to date as all the candidates are getting around.

Mike Reardon is definitely a contender but Bobby Travaglini is still the frontrunner in my book. He's done his homework well and has a good team of people behind him.

THE MAYOR'S CUP—The Mayor's Race is starting to look like the Stanley Cup Finals with nine candidates trying to score points with the public...Dave Finnegan and Mel King are catching fire with the public, at is saying BUT it is Sheriff Dennis Kearney who's starting his move in the standings.

There is no frontrunner to date in this race which looks more and more like a 1967 repeat when Mayor Kevin White finished in second place with twenty per cent in September of 1967.

BOTTOM LINE—Running for office isn't for everyone. But working in the system beats yelling at it. Register to vote now before you forget and then VOTE in September.

Larry Smith Receives Honors

by Andrea Morin
Larry Smith of Tibbets Town Way, a recent graduate of Madison Park High School became the first recipient of the Roland High Division of Music Award "given to the student for outstanding work and exhibiting leadership." He was presented with a trophy prior to graduation exercises on June 6. Smith, who was in competition with 110 other percussion students for this award, described himself as "surprised and honored" to have been selected.

Mitchell Cohen, Smith's percussion instructor characterized him as a "super kid." "Larry motivated the people he played with. He was responsible; he was diligent; he was a hard worker. There wasn't anything he wouldn't do."

Smith, 18, was a member of Madison Park's Concert Band, which he performed in at graduation exercises, and a piano student. He received Madison Park's Outstanding Junior Musician Award for 1981-82 school year. He was sports editor of the Madison Park Times for the 1982-83 school year, and was contributor to the 1983 Magnet Yearbook.

He is the winner of Boston Globe columnist Mike Barnicle's "I Am Not Illiterate" Contest.

A percussion music major at Madison Park, Smith plans to continue his education at the University of Massachusetts Boston Campus where he will major in music. "I think he will do well any place he goes," Cohen stated. "He'll have an edge on most high school students because Madison Park's total percussion program is unique, and the piano courses he took helped round his music theory. He gained a well rounded education and will succeed in anything."

Smith is currently in the process of forming his own rock band. He is a former member of the rock band, The Wanted.

Smith's long range plans are "to either become a famous journalist or a rock star."

Attention: Mr. Lipkin

Dear Mr. Lipkin, our gracious thanks for your kind considerations to the Bunker Hill Day Doll Carriage Parade. The extra gifts received from you enabled the Committee to award additional prizes the children who competed.

Very truly yours,

Extends Thanks To Board Of Trade

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the Muscular Dystrophy Association and the people it serves, I'd like to extend a sincere thank you to Joe Flaherty and the members of the Charlestown Board of Trade. MDA is deeply grateful to all of you for thinking of us again and helping to ensure the success of the Charlestown MDA committee's fundraising efforts for 1983.

It is people like you who help make their fundraising efforts a success and enables MDA to provide vital services to those affected by neuromuscular diseases.

Your concern will help the search continue. For example, the genetics program that MDA has now embarked on is currently focussed on finding the gene that causes Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy. The work on Duchenne Dystrophy is expected to be the first successful application of recumbent DNA technology to the search for a gene defect causing a human disease. Once the abnormal gene is isolated and the biomedical defect it causes is identified, it will then be only a matter of time and money to find the appropriate treatment.

There couldn't be more exciting time to be involved with MDA than right now. MDA's Greater Boston Chapter's research and client services are provided through the Children's Hospital, Tufts New England Medical Center, Boston University Hospital and Mass. General Hospital.

Again my warmest thanks for all your support.
Peter Villandry

Harvard Graduate

Undergraduate degrees were granted to 1495 students - 977 men and 518 women at Harvard and Radcliffe College at the 332nd commencement on June 9.

The Commencement Address was delivered by Mexican author - diplomat Carlos Fuentes, who was also awarded an honorary degree. Earlier that week Harvard President Derek Bok, Radcliffe President Matina Horner, and cartoonist Garry Trudeau, who delivered the Class Day speech, spoke to graduates, alumni and their guests.

Although 341 years have passed since 1642, when the first Harvard College Commencement was held, today marks only the 332nd Commencement because of exercises omitted in years of war and plague.

Among the graduates was John Lothrop Reuter of 31 Winthrop Street, Charlestown who received the Bachelor of Arts degree Cum Laude from Harvard College.

Footstomping, Handclapping, And Many A Smile Coming To The Berkshires With Claddagh

The first annual Berkshires Irish Folk Festival will feature many top quality groups, one of which is Claddagh, America's newest import. Claddagh are causing footstomping, handclapping, and many a smile for those music lovers who appreciate a touch of the green.

If you can't pronounce Claddagh don't worry because its not the name but the sounds and moods they try to create says lead vocalist and guitar player Liam Tiernan of Belfast, Ireland.

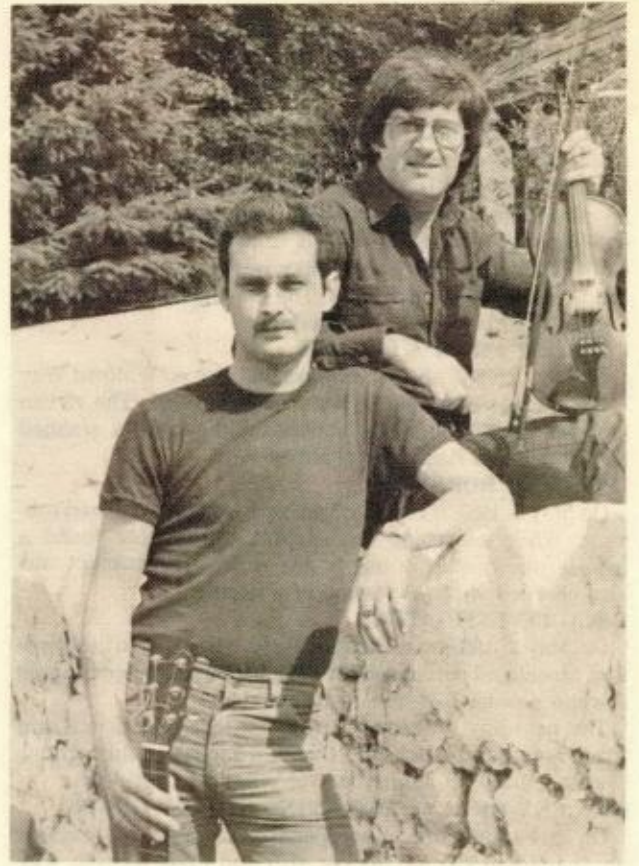

Tiernan who has learned to slow down and enunciate his thick Irish brogue, explains that the duos name (pronounced Klah-dah) means "harmony among people".

The other half of Claddagh is a very talented fiddle and mandolin player Alan Loughnane of Dublin. Together the duo make obscure folk songs seem like well known popular hits. You won't hear them perform "Danny Boy" or "My Wild Irish Rose" but musicianship and charm focus listeners' attention on folk songs that people in Ireland would enjoy. The tunes range from love songs to comic ditties.

Tiernan and Loughnane, Claddagh, have been living a hectic lifestyle playing clubs coast to coast since they formed the duo 19 months ago. Previously, Tiernan played the U.S. with the popular Irish band Barleycorn, and Loughnane was associated with a group which toured Europe. Each has performed professionally for more than fifteen years.

Claddagh will be performing at the First Annual Berkshires Irish Folk Festival, Great Barrington, MA, June 24, 25 and 26th along with Irelands best bands: Makem and Clancy, The Dubliners, The Barleycorn, The Bards, Dermot O'Brien, and Barley Bree. The festivities begin each day at 10:00 a.m. and continue until 11:00 in the evening. The Great Barrington Fair Grounds is a perfect location for this type of event. It is also easily accessible. Just take the Mass Pike to Exit 2 and

"Shay Duffin As Brendan Behan"

"Shay Duffin As Brendan Behan: Confessions Of An Irish Rebel," opens an exclusive Boston return engagement run at the Charles Playhouse, 76 Warrenton Street, from June 21 to July 10. Duffin's show, like 'late afternoon in a great saloon,' confronts audiences with the scathing irreverent wit and radical politics of Behan, who, when he died in 1964 at age 41, was eulogized by the London Daily Mail as "too young to die; but too drunk to live." Performing from the works of Behan ("The Hostage," "The Borstal Boy," "The Quare Fellow") everyone comes under the Duffin-Behan attack including drama critics: "These drama critic fellows often remind me of the eunuch in a harem; They see it done every night but they can't do it themselves." Duffin was born in Dublin and was featured with Robert DeNiro in the film, "Raging Bull."

Views On Dental Health
by Jeffrey D. Cohen, D.M.D.
WHAT CAUSES DENTAL DECAY?
Dental decay (caries) occurs as the result of acids produced by bacteria. The acid dissolves the hard enamel covering of the teeth. If not detected and treated at an early stage, it penetrates the softer dentin inside causing pain, infection and possible tooth loss.
Prevention of dental decay involves 3 factors: (1) eliminate the bacteria, (2) limit the "food" needed for bacteria to thrive, (3) make the teeth stronger to resist decay. The first is still in the research stage while the others can and should be controlled by everyone.

O'Connor was among 24 patients selected to attend the second annual "VNA Night at Pops." ### Draft Environmental Impact Report Filed By Boston Edison

The Draft Environmental Impact Report regarding the possible conversion of Boston Edison's Mystic Station Units 4, 5 and 6 in Everett from oil to oil-coal "reflects community concerns," according to Harry Meehan, Edison's District Manager for Corporate and Labor Relations.

Meehan said the report, filed Monday with the state, was compiled after a series of meetings with Everett, Somerville, Charlestown and Chelsea residents to scope and define what should be included in the initial report.

"The report reflects those concerns," Meehan said. "Input from the community was particularly important in the engineering work that went into the report. Many issues and concerns were surfaced, addressed and are now reported on."

"The next step," said Meehan, "is to get additional and new input from the community and other interested parties which will be included in the final report."

"The final report is due October 31. Between now and then, we'll be holding more meetings with area residents to hear what they have to say."

Meehan said copies of the report will be available for reading and written comment in the Public Document Room, first floor, at Everett City Hall on Broadway during the regular business hours.

"There would be little impact on the environment," Meehan said, citing the areas covered.

Air: "Coal firing at Mystic Station will neither cause nor significantly contribute to any violations of federal or state ambient air quality standards." Emissions will be in compliance with all applicable limitations.

Health: The minimal change in ambient air quality due to coal conversion will not cause ... changes in the general health status of the population.

Noise: Station noise levels after conversion will be approximately the same as existing noise levels and will be within state noise guidelines.

Water: No impacts beyond temporary cloudiness during any construction period. Vessel traffic in the Mystic River will increase slightly due to coal deliveries and possible ash removal approximately once every two weeks.

Land: There would be increased traffic during any construction period, but it would not exceed rated road capacities.

Solid Waste: No significant impacts are anticipated.

Safety, Aesthetics and Socioeconomics: A new 500-foot chimney will replace existing chimneys for Units 4, 5 and 6. Any construction activities will not substantially change the industrial character of the site.

Meehan said the proposed conversion of the Mystic Units along with Edison's New Boston Station in South Boston will save customers an estimated 2.9 billion dollars in fuel price savings to the year 2000.
