Al Penazzi Inside Harrah's Las Vegas Hotel

Turkey is not the food that's left out in this meal, but many people consider this to be the best of the best when it comes to the Thanksgiving Dinner that they've always dreamed of in Las Vegas. But not only is Al Penazzi's Thanksgiving Dinner expensive at around $35 per dinner per each individual, the food that comes along with it is well worth the price. For starters, the oven-roasted turkey that's brushed with their sweet and succulent recipe is something to be desired. Along with the sweet turkey experience, though, sweet potatoes are offered, along with the chance to indulge yourself with sweet cream, gingerbread cake, as well as fabulous soup. This meal is not just expensive because of the amount of food that you'll get, though; the luxury of the food itself is much to be desired.

Caesar's Palace

What's the big deal about staying in Las Vegas if new experiences at famous hotels are not going to be had. Nevertheless, at Caesar's Palace the Mesa Grill is the restaurant to go to and the Thanksgiving Day meal is just as expensive here as it is at Harrah's Las Vegas Hotel.

Nevertheless, though, the meal is totally different and there is a whole new set of tastes to go along with Bobby Flay's Mesa Grill. For example, the roasted pumpkin soup should get you into that holiday and Thanksgiving Day spirit, but there's always the opportunity to fill your plate with fried pork as well as roasted Granny Smith apples.

The Adventuredome

When thinking about your trip to Las Vegas one of the words that probably came to mind was "adventure." However, you can also experience a real adventure by going to the Adventuredome in the Las Vegas Strip. Not many people realize that this attraction is in Las Vegas until they actually arrive, but the Adventuredome is made to attract all sorts of people even though families, kids, and teenagers are the ones who you'll see hanging out here the most. However, there is a lot to do within this 5-acre building. Whether you want to ride on the many rides that are available or play games throughout the Midway Game portion of Adventuredome, the possibilities are literally endless.

The Fashion Show Mall

If you thought that your trip to the mall ended with your local mini-mall then you may just want to check again. In Las Vegas, the awesome Fashion Show mall has plenty of opportunities to shop at the over-200 stores and restaurants available. This mall is so named, though, because the many fashion shows that take place here are usually regular occurrences. Some of the major stores that sit in the Fashion Show Mall include Bloomingdales, Dillard's, Macy's, Abercrombie and Fitch, Build-A-Bear Workshop, Ann Taylor, as well as a whole host of other ones that are just too numerous to name!

The M&M World

This is a really interesting and creative Las Vegas store, but the M&M World incorporates everything M&M related into their store, and actually contains two huge floors that are fully devoted to the chocolate candies that many people in America love!

All in all, it is really possible to easily find something that one can enjoy while planning a vacation to Las Vegas. These are some of the more interesting attractions that are still equally as popular as the many casinos in Las Vegas. All of these attractions, though, offer the excitement of a lifetime for any and all who choose to come!
