WHITEPAPER

Self Destruction Currency

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION

Noted : Cryptocurrencies have the potential to fundamentally redefine worldwide finance. With the anonymous nature of many decentralized coin platforms, this is still the Wild West in many respects, and investors need to stand guard. With anonymity comes the opportunity for cybercriminals to run amok with few repercussions. This minimal risk and high reward imbalance has led to many exit scams.

1.1. Comet

Interesting experiment and case in digital currency but more as exploring it as a store of value vs as a currency. After distribution is complete of 16,000 for free, then it will be listed on an exchange for price discovery.

With each transaction 1.4% of the transaction is destroyed thereby increasing the value of remaining tokens.

It'll be interesting how this effects the crypto space and whether it can retain a first mover status and capitalize on the network effect with our brand.

a) What Is Comet

Comet is a self destruction currency built using the erc20-based ethereum network

a) Comet Concept

- 40,000 Comet Initial in existence
- Every Comet is transferred, 1.4 % of the transaction is burned
- Comet is can never be minted
- 1.4% burn rate with decimals
- No minimum burned its depens amount of transaction

2.1. Centralized Exchange

For most digital currency investors, the centralized cryptocurrency exchange is one of the most important vehicles for transacting. Centralized cryptocurrency exchanges are online platforms used to buy and sell cryptocurrencies. They are the most common means that investors use to buy and sell cryptocurrency holdings.

Some investors may find the concept of a "centralized" exchange to be somewhat misleading, as digital currencies themselves are often billed as "decentralized." What does it mean for an exchange of this type to be "centralized," and why are these exchanges so crucial for the success of the cryptocurrency industry as a whole?

In the term "centralized cryptocurrency exchange," the idea of centralization refers to the use of a middle man or third party to help conduct transactions. Buyers and sellers alike trust this middle man to handle their assets. This is common in a bank setup, where a customer trusts the bank to hold his or her money.
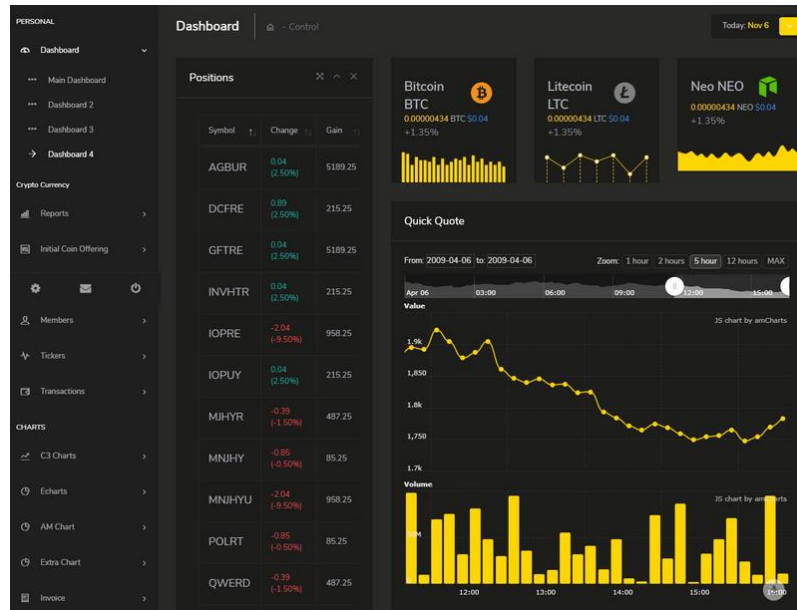

The reason for this setup is that banks offer security and monitoring that an individual cannot accomplish on his or her own. In the case of a centralized cryptocurrency exchange, the same principle applies. Transactors trust not only that the exchange will safely complete their transactions for them, and they also make use of the network of users in the exchange in order to find trading partners.

In the case of cryptocurrencies, which are often stored in digital wallets, an individual can lose hundreds or thousands of dollars in digital currency holdings simply by forgetting the key to a wallet. An exchange will not allow this to happen, as it safeguards the holdings in place of the individual investor.
