

KILL THEM ALL

The revelations

Prologue: 22. May. 2016: MITRAS

The great city lights of Mitras never went out. The city was glimmering in the darkness surrounding it. Humongous skyscrapers, great city halls, cars and luxury. Everyone in Mitras enjoyed of it. Especially the government.

Inside the largest skyscraper, a dark room was lit. 4 men walked inside and each took a seat around a table which was decorated with a 3d model of the walls. When they all had sat down, they started the conversation.

“So agent Solnem did fail in the end? Those scouting legion renegades killed him?” One of them asked. “Indeed. Two of them were superweapons, created by the late dr. Klein.” said another. “Gentlemen, this means that we have lost our one of a kind colossal titan. Without him, we cannot control the population of the walls like we had originally planned to. That rebellious captain too. Torny. We received information from one of the military police agents that he was trying to bring an end to the titans by decimating the people in Wall Rose. So he must have known what is truly going on here.” The third one said as the others were nodding.

“But now we have to deal with that titan girl and her pet cyborg too. Not to forget, they have that annoying little genius child too. With the success of the scouting legion, the population has demanded that there will be watchers on the wall. And that is a bad thing for us. The ocean is right there, so one day they might see what we do not want them to see, don’t you think?” the fourth one asked and wiped his sweat. All of them were nodding.

“Once more, they will be going outside the walls. That scientist woman has been preparing their arsenal. She is even right now as we speak. One day, in the near future, they have technology to get across the ocean. And when they find the lands that Columbus discovered, they’ll know the truth. We cannot let that happen.” The first one said. “We need more titan shifters.” The fourth one concluded.

“Do we have to warn our friends of this?” the second one asked as he sipped water. “No, the scouting legion won’t make it that far. They will take garrisons and MPs with them to the journey to find a place for their ship. We’ll have to insert a new titan there along with them.” the first one said. “So be it. I will have the finest specimen to be the two titan shifters that’ll join their ranks. Gentlemen, let us go home now.” The fourth said. As they all departed, the room was covered with darkness. The only source of light was the model of the walls.

Chapter 1: Shiganshina, 22. May. 2016.

Across the field, came the sound of a vehicle. A large steam truck, which was driven by no other than the new squad leader of the scouting legion, Finny. He was driving towards north, to Shiganshina. He saw more trucks on the way. They were most likely heading to Dusken, where they were still repairing the ruined buildings. He had yet to recover from the losses during the operation. It had been 3 months since the wall was retaken. New recruits had joined the scouts. In 2 years they were ready with their training and then they'd finally start to discover new lands. As of now, his job was to transfer explosives, rocket launchers and 3DMGs from the industrial Nieve district to the small Shiganshina. It was mostly him and Kaida doing the militarized job these days. Giak and Emp had started to run a little store in the market, Sunny had returned to the Hunters den and Kat was currently at his home inside Wall Rose, but he'd come back in a week.

Shiganshina finally came to view. Finny was soon there, when he would get down from the hills. There was a new building near the wall, which was being used as a base for the military. Finny was currently transporting engines and explosives, which were both being mass-produced in Nieve right now. He was finally at the base, when a few garrison soldiers started to unpack the truck. Kaida was in her office with some blueprints of tanks and ships. As Finny entered the room, he saluted instantly. "Please, sit." Kaida insisted him. "Captain, we received news from Quercia district. The gate there is fully functional again in two years I believe. Just in the time when we are ready for the great expedition." Finny said and sighed. "I'm worried about my friends though. Giak and Emp are finally recovering from the restoration mission. But still. Even if the whole thing made them stronger in heart, they still have nightmares of it, I've heard." He kept on talking to Kaida. "Speaking of them, do you know how their sales are going?" Finny asked with a bit of a lighter mood. Kaida laughed. "They are doing just fine. The two of them are selling food and spare parts. And their business is just doing quite finely. Emp was able to finally buy properly made clothing for him, and Giak got herself a new kimono. The two of them are also paying their respects to the late captain, who did sacrifice his life for humanity." Kaida told Finny as she was drawing the blueprints. Finny recalled. Torny. The man who had sacrificed his everything for the sake of humanity. "I might go and see them now. It's been a week since I last saw em." Finny said and rose up from the chair. "Captain, I will take a vacation from my transport job." Finny said without hesitation. Kaida nodded. "Very well. I'll assign Nenaynay to that job." She said and smiled.

"Hey, Emp, did you get those new potatoes from Betulla district today?" Giak asked while she was selling meat to some people. Emp scratched his head as he was adjusting his arms to work properly. "Yea, I think I got them today. But ya know. Potatoes are not very expensive. It's just that they can't be grown here. It's too cold for that." Emp pondered as he was done with the adjusting. "So, you heard of the new products they are developing? The scope for aiming at a titan with a rocket launcher. A fantastic invention!" he started to ramble. "Well, it is Finny's invention. We only expect greatness from him." Giak said and laughed.

As Finny was strolling the streets, he noticed a truck full of new recruits. They had two years to train till they would head outside. Finny was to be one of the new trainers to them. He was really not looking forward to seeing their scared faces. He gagged when he was thinking about the way how Lux had died. Even though Solnem was dead, he still could not forgive him for doing what he did. He turned his head away from the truck and decided to just keep on going.

“Hoi! Emp! Giak!” Finny shouted across the market. Giak turned to look. “Well well well... It seems like we are closing early today. Emp, start packing up.” Giak ordered her brother. “Yes m’lady.” Emp answered sarcastically and laughed a bit. Giak laughed as well and turned back to talk with Finny. “Ah, Finny. How are you? How is the mass-producing going?” Giak asked with curious eyes. Finny smiled. “I’m doing just fine. A bit tired but fine. And as for the producing, the workers in Nieve are working all day! Our arsenal is growing all the time!” He said with joy. Giak laughed and turned back to look at Emp, who accidentally dropped a box full of potatoes to his toes. The pain made him scream his metallic screeching. Finny and pretty much everyone in the market had to cover his ears, until they heard a familiar, sassy voice. “Oi, Emp, shut the hell up.” Kat said as he appeared to help Emp in picking up the potatoes. “Kat?! You left Jinae earlier?!” Finny asked in shock. Kats respond was a simple, cocky laughter. “My father tried to persecute me into joining the military police. I told him that I would not abandon my comrades because some old man wants me to join the MPs. So he kept on and on rambling about it till I got tired of it and just left to come here. To my friends.” Kat said gracefully, with his eyes closed, as he tried to place the potatoes in to the box, but only managed to hit Emp to the head with one. “So, basically, you just ran away from home? Like a kid!” Finny laughed. Kat laughed again. “Says the real kiddo himself. Though, I am not surprised that your inventions were qualified to the military. You are that great.” Kat complimented Finny, as he swiftly joined the conversation about the arsenal. Emp was still picking the potatoes up in pain, when one more person joined the conversation. “My, you’re all here!” a soothing, beautiful voice came about, like the warm wind during spring. Sunny walked to meet the whole gang. The second Emp heard his voice, he jumped up as fast as he could. “H-HI THERE SUNNY!” he said while he was blushing. Giak gave Emp a little smack to the head, which implied to him that he still had to pick the potatoes up. Sunny just giggled at Emps silliness. “So, Finny did get some of his ideas through? I am so proud of our little genius!” Sunny giggled as she proceeded to hug Finny tenderly. He left out a laughter. “W-well, it was not hard! The whole scope system was a success to even begin with, though, I believe that the steamship was a bit unstable at first, but we finally managed to get that through too.” He kept on rambling happily. Giak, Kat and Sunny were all looking at him with wonder. He was a child prodigy all right. But then Emp threw a little potato at Kats head. “Help me pick these up ya bloody idiot!” Emp yelled under the table, where he was looking for potatoes. “Let’s just all help mr. Hard worker here.” Kat said and laughed.

When the gang had finally cleaned up the stand, the five of them went to Giaks and Emps house for dinner. Finny, Giak and Sunny were sitting in the small dining room, while Emp and Giak, who called themselves five-star gourmet chefs, were cooking the dinner. “Oh boy. Can’t wait to see what that dynamic, yet destructive duo has got to offer for us.” Kat said and sipped water. His anxiousness about the food just got higher when Emp ran from the kitchen to the bathroom. Giak had broken an egg on his head. “That is what you get for trying to add eggs you fuckin gay!” Giak shouted from the kitchen. Sunny laughed at the silliness, Finny shrugged and Kat raised his eyebrows. "Uhh, Finny? You have any idea what they are cooking there?" He asked nervously. "I think it's something... uh... oriental?" Finny pondered.

Soon, Emp came carrying a large pot that was filled with soup. "You tried to add eggs into a soup?!" Kat asked in confusion. "W-well, yes. I wanted to improvise..." Emp said and cleaned his mask and looked into the mirror. His black hair still had a lot of egg shards in it. "Well, this is something that Giak had a lot as a child. It's called ramen, I think it was? Right Giak?" Emp asked and sweated a lot. "Ramen it is. A very warm noodle soup." Giak said and smiled. "And, uhh, I think that you can add eggs to it, but I hate eggs, so they were a total nope to me." Giak explained. "Well, let's eat already!" Hyunsun said happily as she started to eat with joy. Kat and Finny were surprised by how delicious the food was. The dinner was peaceful and calm.

"Guys, in two years, we will be going out on an expedition, to search for a perfect doc to the steamship. Then we will sail with it to find new lands. We have two years to prepare for hell. Do you think you can take it?" Finny asked the gang. They were nodding silently, until Sunny looked at them. "As long as we stay together, we are indestructible. We survived the recovery mission. We will live through this one to tell the tale of the mission." She said and tried to smile. "But what if there will be more opponents like Torny or Solnem. What if we face more titan shifters? Those guys are incredibly strong." Kat sighed. "Well beat them to death." Giak answered. "It's truly not easy, but at least we have the power to fight them now. We did defeat the colossal titan and all that." Emp said. "I think that we can do this. All of us. There is no way that we are going to fail." Finny said and smiled. It gave a bit more confidence to the rest of the gang. "We are still yet to discover the lands outside the walls." Finny kept on talking. "Why don't we call it a night?" Giak asked. "I'll provide everyone a place to sleep in."

The gang fell to sleep one after another, knowing that they would stick together, no matter what happened.