

Cryptic Tweet From Minecraft Developer Hints At 1.18 Update Coming Soon

Mojang, a Minecraft developer announced in October part two of their huge Caves and Cliffs update would be available in "a month or more". It's almost there, as Mikael Hedberg who is the Technical Lead of Minecraft Java Edition, has just tweeted something a bit obscure.

It might not be much however, Mojang employees are famous for using Twitter to tease new features - or, in some cases, accidentally doing so, at least and the tone of the tweet, specifically "pre-paring" suggests the possibility of a pre-release for Caves and Cliffs part 2.

Pre-releases are usually released a few days to weeks prior to the official launch. They serve as a step between "snapshots", which serve as a test ground for new features that players can choose to use as well as the full update. 1.17's last update was released on May 27th. Server lists update was released on June 8th.

What does this mean? It means that we don't have long to wait for the 1.18 update, which will bring an amazing new world generation to Minecraft worlds. It could be out before the end of November!

Mojang also announced during this year's Minecraft Live presentation that the Deep Dark biome and its new mob, The Warden, would be delayed until 2022's update, The Wild.

Is your server up for the update? Have you been trying out the snapshots? Let us know in the comments!
