Strictly speaking, the cashew nut is not a nut at all, but a seed. Nevertheless, with 18 g of protein per 100 g of kernels, they are an excellent source of plant-based protein. Cashew nuts also provide us with unsaturated fatty acids, which have a positive effect on our cardiovascular system. They also contain magnesium and phosphorus, which are important for muscles, nerves, heart, teeth and bones. The amino acid tryptophane is considered to be mood-boosting and relaxing. On top of that, cashew nuts contain numerous B vitamins which help to reduce fatigue. A clear reason to celebrate! 😊
