My firm recently considered contracting with this solo practitioner (VC Khang). When we asked our usual background questions about her personal past and present associations, her answers seemed evasive. So one of my associates followed up with a full background survey.

A number of red flags popped up concerning this individual. Most disturbingly, we discovered Ms. Khang is closely linked to an individual with a conviction for felony money-laundering. This alone convinced us to take our business elsewhere.

We also discovered that past employers and personal acquaintances, when allowed to speak "off the record", reported a systematic pattern of lying, cheating and deception in Ms. Khang's dealings with them.

Anyone interested in following up for themselves can easily find much information by a careful Google search: namely, search the firm's name ("Khang Advisory") + "scam" or "cheating" or "deception"

Khang Advisory tried to deceive my firm about their integrity, character and fitness. We are filing this report to ensure that no one else is similarly scammed by this dishonest individual's misrepresentations.

If I was indeed fired from Ernst & Young, why would Ernst & Young offered me a job right now? To the person that is internet bullying me, you are a sad person with nothing else better to do with your time. I am working with Nancy Rothstein from the AG's office to find out who you are and I can't wait for the day that the authorities pound down your door for your lies and personal attacks.
