

Stryker Hip Recall Lawsuit

Stryker Hip Revision Surgery

Revision surgery to replace a defective or failing hip implant can be difficult and painful to the patient. The user-customizable design of the Rejuvenate and ABGII hip systems can further complicate a revision surgery. Because the recalled Stryker hip implant devices conform to each patient's body individually, this can mean a prolonged recovery and decreased mobility after a revision surgery on the hip.

Stryker wants my defective Hip implant what should I do?

Our position is firmly that you need to retain your removed Stryker implant with an authorized medical device retrieval doctor per an agreed protocol. We recommend a company that specifically works with surgeons and hospitals in having the implant preserved for subsequent testing and/or failure analysis. This really is a critical decision because the hardware that is removed will become evidence in your claim against Stryker.
