G2 Esports makes an attempt to put Rekkles on mortgage however have been prohibited by LEC guidelines, follow for rule trade supply: Michal Konkol/riot games It has been simply over a month due to the fact that G2 Esports announced they have been benching Martin "Rekkles" Larsson and putting up his contract for a possible buyout, but it seems that the team is having difficulty moving the elite advert lift. Rekkles was positioned on buyout and benched alongside G2 Esports support Mihael "Mikyx" Mehle, accurate laner Martin "Wunder" Hansen, head instruct Fabian "GrabbZ" Lohmann, and strategic instruct Nelson Sng. As of now, GrabbZ is the most effective member of G2 Esports placed on buyout who has been verified in a parting of ways with the company alongside head analyst Christopher "Duffman" Duff. Rekkles had a robust particular person yr for G2 Esports in 2021, punctuated with the aid of his Spring split MVP award, but after lacking Worlds 2021 for the first time given that 2016 — and in G2's case, ever — it appears as even though each participant and firm are ready to flow on from the opposing birthday celebration. The perceived lack of pastime in the acquisition of Rekkles may be as a result of the expense of his buyout, which changed into made public by G2 owner, founder and CEO Carlos "ocelote" Rodríguez Santiago. At 1.5 million Euros, it's totally feasible that no group in the LEC or the LCS will are looking to spend the amount of money required to even court Rekkles this low season, in particular given the player's lack of success outside of his time with Fnatic. Rekkles' talent isn't in question, but the expense point can also effortlessly be too excessive to risk any capabilities intangible factors within the acquisition in the eyes of many predominant region corporations. essentially the most contemporary replace on the latest situation surrounding Rekkles and G2 Esports turned into also by way of ocelote via Twitter, stating that whereas loaning a participant is not possible given the latest LEC ruleset, G2 Esports had applied to alternate the guideline with a view to mortgage Rekkles any place at a double-reduced cost with an alternative to purchase his contract after the primary yr. As of now, it doesn't appear to be G2 had success in changing this rule, and for this reason, Rekkles' future continues to continue to be unknown.