Description

Tom Ford Pink Death, is an exotic AAAA+ strain of legendary status within cannabis communities. Just like its namesake, this pure indica strain is the cannabis-related epitome of what luxury truly represents. This highly-coveted strain and extremely rare strain is a Canadian legend that was originally conceived by crossing Pink Kush and Death Bubba, two powerful indica strains with Canadian origins. Easily one of the most potent indica strains available, Tom Ford is ideal for connoisseurs seeking a true, deep indica high.

Tom Ford is definitely no ordinary strain. This strong indica is known for its impressive THC concentrations and relaxing effects. As a cross of both Pink Kushs and Death Bubbas, it should be expected that Tom Ford is heavily-intoxicating, and that is indeed true. With THC concentrations reaching as high as 28%, this strain is best recommended for users with higher tolerances, or for night-time usage. The high of Tom Ford is almost instantaneously felt, beginning with a surge of euphoria that lingers as it transitions into a full-on indica high that is represented by an almost debilitating body-high that will leave users couch-locked. Try to prepare for this strain by stock-piling on munchies or snacks, as the effects of this strain also include an insatiable case of increased appetite.

For a strain named after one of the worlds' recognized names in the fashion industry, it is absolutely expected that this strain has the looks to match such a comparison. This strain very closely resembles its Pink Kush and Death Bubba predecessors both visually and smell-wise. Like typical indica strains, Tom Ford's buds are shorter, bushier and cone-like in shape, and range from medium-large in size. These lush forest-green buds are exceptionally dense in nature and contain little-to-none pistils or what are more commonly known as orange hairs. You will be surprised by the amount of THC trichomes that are visible to the naked eye. The entirety of these buds are covered in thick, fluorescent trichome heads that almost glow and have a wonderfully adhesive or resinous nature. Wreaking of pine and gas or diesel, Tom Ford can be recognized almost literally from a mile away. The taste of Tom Ford by Designer Meds is known to be earthy, skunky, diesel-like with a slight subtle hint of lemon and a candy or perfume-like sweetness.
