Global Independent-People Federalization Right on International Security cooperation

The development of the federal co-operation of the One World vision and the unification of all nations, the right of independent states and the movement to develop them in the federation, the founding of their own state, and government under the majority of the Federation's legal status means the emergence of a new legal entity with the status of independence granted by the federation.

The aim is to determine the development of security, the step of guaranteeing the full stopping of all threats to trade development and arms smuggling, drugs, trafficking in human beings, theft, production of fake products, money laundering, the development of mafia movements and threats to international security. the governments of countries independent of the Federation, their requests for investigative control in the framework of crime prevention and the possibility of enforcing punishment for the development of organized crime.

This creates; Foreign governments of the countries have the right to apply for co-operation in the investigation of crime, for entities of the initial phase of federalization, which is the first state of state development.

The right to investigate can only be granted to governments of countries that ensure full diplomatic recognition and a standard of international cooperation between our governments, and the country's government is willing to provide its own financial payment for providing a cooperative investigation service.

The government of the country has the right to investigate only in the process before the Federal Investigation Police the introduction of issues related to the theme of organized crime and others, and thus the Federation will appreciate the right to open the topic of this investigation unless it is federally rejected.

The Federation has the right to reject questions in investigations concerning the internal affairs of the Federation and the country. Investigation always interferes with the investigation by the Federal Police, and foreigner observer who as an investigator-in-person status as an expert in the supervisor's opinion, will supervise the development of an interrogation report that will be filed with foreign investigative bodies in a cooperative effort to prevent the development of organized crime.

The country's foreign government also has the right to diplomatically offer, the possibility of cooperation for the development of federal police professionalism and tactics, the security technology trade, and the development of security markets between states.

The Federation has the right to censor the information obtained from the investigation if the information does not prove the responsibility of the crime and only uses the personal space of the persons under questioning and their inherent or political secrets, social part- ness and freedom.

If the questioning of the responsibilities of the persons to the crime will be questioned on responsible confirm, it will be decided to allow full joint interrogation and extradition to the accountable trial of the defendant.

The Federation has the right to reject the claims of investigative cooperation between states that seek to devalue or damage the development of federal interests, or to exploit the information obtained for the purpose of monopolistic damage to the Federation.
