

Love For The Tradition Of Sabong

Sabong is a traditional sport of the Philippines that has been practiced for 6000 years. This well-loved sport is a great favorite pastime for many Filipino men. It is a favorite sport that is second to only basketball. In Sabong, two roosters were put together in a ring called a cockpit to fight each other. This continues until one is dead, lethally injured and will die soon afterward. Or they will sometimes end up in a tie when they keep head butting each other to no end. There are two types of Sabong that are practiced among people. These include Naked Foot Sabong And Claw Sabong.

Naked Foot Sabong:

This type of Sabong involves cockfighting between two roosters without anything attached to their feet. They fight with naked feet. Sometimes it may take a really long time to be concluded. It may go on for two hours.

Claw Sabong:

This type of Sabong is so-called as they involve using metal claws that are attached to the rooster's feet. The feet of the roosters are fitted with metal claws and are allowed to fight against each other using these claws. These fights get over much faster and are much more popular among people.

Love For Sabong:

Sabong is a very well-loved national sport of the Philippines, which is only second to basketball. Those watching are filled with thrill and are satisfied with it, especially those who really are into it. Many Filipino men even say that Sabong is their favorite pastime. It is an important part of Filipino culture that has been going on for millenniums and will forever be ingrained in the people. The Philippines national hero, Jose Rizal, even has made a remarkable about it. He remarked that most Filipino men love their gamecocks more than their children. The Philippines' laws also allow it to be practiced in any and every part of the country. While other countries have banned the practice nationwide, the Philippines has legalized it.

Online And Away From COVID-19:

Recently due to the ongoing pandemic of COVID-19, people can no longer gather in groups and enjoy betting on cockfighting. There are many people and families whose livelihood is based on cockfighting and would struggle without it. However, fortunately for them, the internet is still a good platform for them to continue with their work. One can now go online and live stream Sabong videos of cockfighting with all the events taking place live on the live stream. There are many good websites that are licensed and show these videos. One can go online and safely take part in Sabong by betting on it while at home. And a great website to do it on is talpakan.ph/.