Facility Guidelines Based on COVID-19 Pandemic Compliance Update

Overview: The historic Louisville Memorial Auditorium is legally required to follow Commonwealth of Kentucky and Center for Disease Control (CDC) COVID-19 Operational Guidelines for approved events held at the multi-purpose facility.

Access / Use of Building – All individuals working, visiting, or providing services are expected to wear approved face coverings and practicing social distance. This also includes using the building restrooms or while in other spaces of the building.

Offices or Space Expectations – As all businesses operating in the Commonwealth of Kentucky including inside the historic, Louisville Memorial Auditorium are required to wear approved face coverings and practice social distancing.

Security – The building is equipped with 24-hour alarm system and external entrances with security cameras. Building management and tenants are assigned with keys and access codes for entrance to the building. Documentation for access codes and keys will be documented via a facility form and will be kept on file by management.

Emergency Situations – Any medical needs will be addressed by calling 911 for proper assistance. If evacuation of the building is required for any reason, building management will coordinate and or appropriate governmental authority.

Facility Inspection – Tenants, staff, participants, vendors, contractors and guests all need to understand the building is subject to inspection by representatives of the Jefferson County Health Department at any given time since the primary business is as an entertainment venue. Most likely this would include event rental spaces and common areas.

Parking – Aside from the dedicated auditorium parking area located off Fifth and Kentucky streets, a variety of legal off-street parking around the facility is available for use.
