

Minecraft Allay Mob - everything we Know

What's the latest mob made of allay? At Minecraft Live 2021, the devs at Mojang once again offered us a selection of new mobs to pick from to be included in the game. The winner was the allay for collecting items.

The Minecraft allay mob is a small blue fairy with bat wings. It will find nearby items of the same type if you give it an object. But, as the devs mention on Twitter the game won't duplicate that item or search through chests looking for it. It's just about finding the item when it's dropped on the overworld. The allay will drop the items found near a noteblock, because it is fond of dancing.

The allay mob is one many new Minecraft mobs that are included in The Wild update, it is part of Minecraft Frogs, a fresh mangrove swamp biome and tree and the mud blocks. Here's everything you should be aware of about the allay mob in Minecraft.

Minecraft allay mob trailer

Below is the official teaser from the allay. It shows the crowd taking cookies and performing a little dance next to a noteblock.

minecraft

The other options that were put to the vote were the glare a darkness-fearing little guy that was eliminated in the first round, and the copper golem, an artisan-made friend that would be a jolly runner pushing copper buttons. Of course, there's a possibility that the losers of the vote may be added to the game in the future The Wild update includes swamp features that were featured in the Minecraft Biome vote of 2019, which lost to the mountain biome. But there's no guarantee that this will happen.