

The scroll of Glarthorn and Nook the prophet. We are cousins and we worked hard to make this scroll for you all. Read it please. This is a history of the forest. In the start, there was a mountainous land called Aman. In the land was a great forest. But then Melkor burned it down. But it regrew. Then, thousands of years later, the seeds were planted before the second age. Then, where the seeds landed, that place came to be called 'Forest Kingdom'. Then, the sea rose and many lands were sunk. This was because Nameless one was mad. Then, the kingdom of the forest was underground where the trees were growing (even under the ground they were growing because of the seeds overflowing). Then a boy was born called Malkan. This boy had black hair and his eyes were black.

His sister was called Maraz. Maraz one day was walking in the forest and saw a squirrel. So she killed the squirrel. Then she brought the squirrel to Malkan. Then Malkan ate the squirrel. When the shaman heard about this, he tied up Malkan and Maraz. He then said: "May the squirrel who died be remembered." So he let 100 starving squirrels free, and they feasted on Maraz. But Malkan survived (because the squirrels ate Maraz first). When the shaman saw Malkan had survived, he drew his dagger so he could kill Malkan. But Malkan was especially strong (even though he was small) and he ripped apart from the ropes just like it was straw. After that day, the shaman called the rope that he used to tie Malkan with the name: 'Ebrathvaarnjharren'. So Malkan ran away into the dark wood. He met a female there called Ugur. She was especially ugly. So Malkan had six sons and seven daughters. The six sons had black hair and black eyes, apart from one of them who had white hair and red eyes. That one was called 'Azzak'. When he was born, Azzak was different, so Ugur said: "Let's leave this child in the woods, because he is cursed." So Malkan took him into the woods and left him there. Azzak was alone in the woods. Remember, these woods were dark. But Azzak was found on the third night (when he was about to die) by a wolf. So the wolf took the boy into the caves. Then the wolf fed it with meat. When Azzak was about 14 years old, he finally left the cave. Now because the wolves were meat eaters ONLY, azzak lived on raw meat. The first time he left the cave he saw in the distance a small house. Incidentally, this was the house of Malkan his father and Ugur his mother and his five brothers and seven sisters! Curious, Azzak went to the house when Malkan saw him he became so afraid that he called out to Nameless One: "Save us from this apparition!" (because Azzak was pale and his white hair made him look as a ghost). So Azzak crawled like a wolf does, and viciously attacked his brothers and sisters and Malkan did NOT escape. So Azzak ate his brothers and sisters and father, apart from one (his name was Yuzaf). Thirteen years later, Yuzaf was hunting for elk in the woods when he saw Azzak crawling (like a wolf does). So Yuzaf said: "You *, wolf". So Azzak charged (like a wolf does) at Yuzaf to kill him. But Yuzaf was especially strong (because he had to survive by himself because his family was dead). And Yuzaf ripped Azzak in two, just like snapping a stick in half. Yuzaf then wandered for many hours and found the light forest. (NOT THE DARK ONE). Yuzak was especially good looking (because he was very strong). His food was beetles and honey from the comb. He walked into a forest party, even though he didn't know what it was. There were many beautiful forest girls there. They all stopped what they were doing when they saw Yuzaf walking in. His hair was black and his eyes were black, and his skin was the color of sand. His muscles were big and he had hair on his chest (like a bear). Then, when the Shaman saw this, he was outraged (because the Shaman was old and had a fat body). He was jealous. So he said to his guards: "Have this stranger come, and put on clothes, so that he does not anger me." So they put clothes on Yuzaf and he sat with the forest girls. The forest boys were shaven (because that is what they always did in those days, the boys were always shaven and their hair was very long and straightened with hot irons, so that there was not one single curl in their hair). But Yuzaf had a long curly black beard, and very messy long hair down to his ribs. The forest girls were intrigued by Yuzaf, so they were making the forest boys very jealous. So the forest princes decided to put Yuzaf to death by pushing him off the balcony and down onto the forest floor from a height of 100 meters. So they asked Yuzaf to come up to the balcony to look over the entire Kingdom. And then they pushed Yuzaf off the balcony, but incidentally he hit a branch and was saved. But his ribs were cracked. So he climbed slowly back up to the top. There he saw the princes laughing and drinking. Snapping a twisted branch in his hand, he took the branch and slayed all the princes with it. He called the branch 'Uzazihi-mas-mortan'. 'Stick of revenge'. Then Yuzaf married a girl called Meglia. She was daughter of Lord Maeglin son of Eol the Dark. Meglia was very mysterious. So they had sons and daughters. And their sons had sons and daughters. And their sons had sons and daughters. And so on. Eventually, a son was born called Rosarion. Now Rosarion was a warrior in the third age, and he had a large castle fortress on Ered-Melith called Fort Xavos, meaning Survivors Fortress. Because in those days there were many wolves and vultures and fangsworn in the land of Aman. Rosarion had a war with the Fangsworn and drove them out of Aman, all the way as far as the sea of Dorval in the north west. Rosarion had a brother called Mann, and he was living in those days in the forest of Bereliand, where he was fighting the vultures and the orchelin. Mann was overpowered, and left Bereliand, and he was the last ever forest boy on Bereliand to this day. Because Bereliand was overflowed with evil. So he went to Rosarion his brother for help. But Rosarion refused to go to Bereliand, because he had to keep the fangsworn off the shores of Aman. So Mann went to Aldaron, and he assisted Mann to reclaim the isle of Tol Fuin (now known as Tol Morwen and the mountain of Gorgor). But Aldaron was threatened by Mandos to leave the isle. So Mandos filed a law suit against him for attacking the native vultures of Bereliand. In response, Aldaron in his rage invaded Bereliand and killed many vultures, including Sthagrith the Vulture Queen. So Aldaron set up a fortress there called "Peace Valley". The vultures fled to the isle of Djalg-Unen and killed Mann. When Rosarion heard this, he swore to kill all the vultures in Aman. So with the help of Aldaron and Manwe, the vultures were completely swept away from Aman, and they all emigrated to Craggy Island (now known as Ach To) and also to Djalg-Unen/ Tol Morwen. Then Rosarion was laid to rest in the graveyard of the Sea. A cliffedge facing the sea, and on top is the grave of Rosarion. He had five sons, Roson, Alexon, Aaron and Silvon. After he died, Roson named his house the House of Rose to respect their father's legacy and all his fighting against the fangsworn on Aman and the vulture genocide on Aman (because their symbol was a Rose of Peace). Then Aaron, when he was still a child, moved off the shores of Aman (because of the threats of Mandos) and went to live in the south east, where the forest kingdom is today. Then, many years later, one night as Aaron was sleeping with his wife, a visitation occurred! Why, it was the Dark Lord! he said: "Serve by my side, you who are wandering. You will have a home forever, and the lawsuit will be closed." But

Aaron fled with his wife. But his wife was a daughter of evil, so she was always cursed with these visitations too. One night, a visitation occurred! And look! The lamp was moving on its own! So Aaron became afraid, and he fled to Dorval. When on Dorval, he was setting up camp when look! Another visitation occurred! Why, it was a thousand pigs all screaming in the distance near the lake of the nightwatch. So Aaron called out to his wife, but she was not there. So Aaron strapped on his blade and went out to face the swine. He called out in the name of Rosarion his ancestor. And the swine began to flee from his midst. His wife had been abducted by Pythas. Aaron became afraid, because she was heavily pregnant at the time. So Aaron went out on a search for her, for weeks and months. He did not tire out, even though he ate little food. Any enemy he saw, he would cut through them like carving through butter. Rosarion the Great, his strength was in him! Meanwhile, his wife (who was called Rainberry) was captured in the Marsh Caves. There, she gave birth to a boy. Then, the Gobhelin who were there reported to Pythas: "She has given birth to a boy." So Pythas sent for the boy to be brought to him, because he intended to turn him into his own son. But Rainberry was smart, so she wrapped the boy in linen and placed him in a wooden chest and hid him in the gully. As the water pushed against the chest, it would float above the surface of the waters. In time, the chest came to flow under the earth until it emerged in the lake of the nightwatch. By this time, the water was leaking into the chest and the boy was crying. The crying was heard by the night watch guards. Incidentally, the goblin hunters were out that night, and among their ranks was The Light, the son of Goblin Killer. In those days, before he knew his real name, he was called 'The Light' because of his bright eyes! "Look!" said one of the night watch. "It is the sound of a child in the night echoing over the waters." So they went out, three of them in all, to investigate. The Light (adopted son of The Stag) was only fourteen at that time. But he was the best of the night watch, for he was trained in the ways of The Stag, the famous Goblin Killer of Dorval. Then 15 goblins came from the shoreline (for they were already trying to capture the chest with the child inside). The three night watch began to fight them, but they fell, apart from The Light. The Light slaughtered all of them with his blade, pitching their bodies into the sea. He then drew the chest to him, and opened it. Inside lay a small child, coughing on water. So he brought the boy out of the chest and took him to the tower of the Night watch! "Look my lords, it is a child." They responded by saying: "It is a sign." Then, The Light said to himself: "Most truly I say, if I abandon this boy, I am unworthy of my own life because I was also abandoned in this manner." But the men were saying: "You are just a teenager, you can not care for a child. Let us take him to the King, so that he may be cared for by the women there." But The Light was saying: "If I take him to the King, he will become a steward of the court. But if he stays with me, he will be trained in the force." And they laughed at him, saying: "You are a boy yourself, and you may be good with a blade, but you are immature." Then the Light said: "You are right... I will take the boy instead to my father, The Goblin Killer." So they were discussing among themselves how they were to steal the boy from The Light, so that he would not take the child to The Stag (because they were afraid for the boy's safety). That night, the lord of the Nightwatch came into The Light's corner of the tower, where he was lying in his bed with the child in his arms. So the Lord planned on sneaking the child out of the bed. As the Lord of the watch got close, The Light immediately woke up!

(For he sensed it). So The Light said: "Truly, I am no longer a brother of this order because my Lord, you actually planned to betray my trust. So how can I trust you any more?" So The Light left the Night watch, but the brothers of the watch were saying: "He has left us without giving us a formal letter of notice." So they planned to hunt the teenager down and kill him. As The Light got close to the South, a ship overtook him. Why look! It was an apparition! On board was the ghost crew of The Strangler (a crew whom The Light had killed in the past in self defence). For the crew of the strangler were a fearsome marauder band who would do terrible things! So the apparition was tormenting The Light. He took the boy up to the forest and found The Stag. "Father, see I have a son given to me by the stars. It is so I can do what you did and raise him." So the Stag blessed him. A year later, three of the night watch saw The Light (who is Accal), and shot an arrow right at his chest. But Accal was mighty, so he blocked the arrow and disarmed them. He took the men to the cave of spiders and tied them up against a pillar and said: "Why should you hunt me down for doing what is right?" They said: "Because you did not give the brothers a formal letter of notice." So Accal became angry and wrote a letter out. "Is that enough?" So they said: "Yes". Then, Accal turned 20, and the boy was quickly learning the arts of the force. In fact, he was learning very quickly, because he had some of the same blood of Accal in him, because his mother was a half daughter of Pythas himself. But Accal did not know this. In fact, Accal thought that he was just a gifted person. Later, when the child was almost seven, Accal had a vision but did not know what it meant;

A voice was saying:

"Woe to the east,

"Woe to the north,

"Woe to the south,

"Because out of the west has come your doom."

And then a light came from the sky, in the constellation of Anduri, and its name was:

"Alexander the Light of the Nova Lake. Out of Dorval he was born, the lake where he was born."

And the boy carried on growing up, and Accal gave him the name 'Eiven'.