

Are Sisal Rugs Good for High-Traffic Areas?

Rugs are the thing that makes your sweet home appealing. These are decorative textile typically made of a thick material and now usually intended as a floor covering. If you are looking for Floor rugs to decorate your home. You can buy an online rug, or you can visit any offline store like Rugs Direct. In this post, we will discuss shaggy rugs.

Natural sisal rugs are known for their durability, excellent work in high-traffic areas that are less prone to dirt and spills. But if you want a stain-resistant, low-maintenance floor rug for the entryway, shared office space or hotel lobby.

Our team of professional will familiarize you with three materials:

- Our Sisal rugs for heavy-duty, commercial areas.
- Synthetic Sisal for residential designs.
- Nylon for anything that goes outdoors or any commercial projects.

The Sisal family incorporates the most stain-resistant, 100% natural Sisal weaves on the market. Each yarn has been coated with stain-resistant and fire-retardant fluorocarbon. The coating also increases the weave's UV stability and oil, alcohol, and water repellency. This Bluesign® approved treatment makes our sustainable and safe, and Sisal rugs ideal for active, high-traffic spaces like resorts, hotels, store designs and residential homes with kids and pets.

Synthetic Sisal follows the sisal look while keeping care efforts to a minimum. You get the best of two worlds aesthetics and resilience. Most of the contract-grade weaves are made of 100% nylon and meet the commercial fire code requirements. Nylon belongs to the synthetic polymer family. It outcompetes any material on the flooring market if we talk about abrasion, cleanability, and UV resistance. Nylon fibres bounce back to hide traffic patterns. As both substances are surprisingly soft underfoot, the ultimate application should guide your decision.
