About

A Stanford MedX ePatient scholar, Marie's work is informed by her passion for embedding the patient voice at the heart of healthcare systems and values.

Named one of Health IT's Top 100 influencers, Marie is an internationally recognized keynote speaker, writer, and consultant on global trends in patient engagement, digital health, and participatory medicine. In 2016 she was appointed to a panel of multi-sectoral experts in Path To Zero, the Economist Intelligence Unit's research, policy, and advocacy initiative that aims to surface innovative strategies to support the elimination of the Hepatitis C virus.

How can I even begin to do justice to all the capabilities, skills and knowledge that Marie brings to every project she works on? It's her warmth, her enthusiasm and her ability to connect with people that sets her apart.
