

When you absolutely must sign a form, here is a legal way to protect yourself

1) Ideally, completely black out any statements implying that you are putting your child in harm's way by refusing vaccinations. (If your form is rejected due to this, write above your signature, "I do not agree with all of the above statements")

If they still reject the form, KEEP the one that they rejected so that you have proof they would not accept your form with the correction.

2) Note that you are signing "Under Duress"

(Any restrictions on your 'signature' must be prior to, or before you sign the document.)

Say "Under Duress I will comply with your demand." And then sign the document:

OR: Under Duress, Threat, and Coercion (or "under TDC", for short)

(your signature)

Print Name

3) Bring a family member or friend with you to witness that you signed under duress.

4) Use the Vaccination Notice to accompany or replace the "Refusal To Vaccinate" form, which can be added to your medical records..

Signature Under Duress:

If one of the parties can prove that the contract was signed under duress, that is, the party's signature was extracted by physical or mental coercion, then the contract is null and void. Duress is defined as coercion of a party to execute a contract against the free will of that party.

For example, a person signs a check, or a deed transferring a house title to a stranger, under a threat or act of violence, imprisonment (retaining a person in a confined space), victim's property detention or breach of contract.

How to Prove that Documents Were Signed Under Duress:

Duress is one of the most vague areas of U.S. law, and also one of the simplest.

Essentially, duress is the act of forcing another person or party to do something against his or her will, usually with a threat of violence or other harm. Many times, agreements and contracts are signed under duress but there is no proof, or else the victim doesn't realize that he or she can contest the validity of the signed document.

But how do you prove that documents were signed under duress?

Is the contract fair and equitable?

A contract - of any sort - should be a fair and equitable "meeting of the minds", which means that it benefits both parties equally. If a contract is biased toward the other party, you will have an easier time proving that you wouldn't have signed it in normal circumstances. Explain that the documents were signed under duress, and that you don't find a meeting of the minds anywhere in the contract.

Is there a history of hostility between the two parties?

It is also easier to prove that documents were signed under duress if you and the other party have a history of arguing, fighting or disagreeing. A court is more likely to believe that you didn't sign a contract of your free will if it is unlikely that you would enter into an agreement with the other party in the first place. But you'll need to provide evidence of past disagreements, such as testimony from eyewitnesses or proof of letters or phone calls.

Did someone see you sign the papers?

A witness is an invaluable asset when trying to prove that documents were signed under duress. Chances are, if someone witnessed the signing of the contract, he or she also witnessed the pressure - either physical or otherwise - administered to get you to sign. Perhaps the witness heard verbal threats or was privy to a physical beating that ultimately convinced you to sign the papers. Whatever the case, the witness will need to testify.

Signing in protest and under duress:

Vi Coactus:

Before you sign anything under duress, in order not to be unfairly determined as in dishonor and incompetent, you may lawfully initial in large letters the letters V.C. where you will sign, then sign your name after- always after.

What V.C. stands for is Latin for Vi Coactus which means literally "under constraint". This should normally be sufficient on any document which you are forced to sign to bear witness to the fact that it was done under duress.

The use of ellipse:

When the threat of intimidation or outright rejection of lawful protest is too great, then a second and equally valid method of signing under protest is permitted, namely the use of three full stops placed first, followed by the signature so that the three dots are not obscured by the signature. <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Ellipsis>

This is called an ellipse eg "... " and indicates that legally there was a form of words you wanted to state but were unable due to some event, in this case because of threat and coercion. Thus, at the earliest opportunity the ellipse can be revealed and it can be stated that you intended to write V.C. but were prevented therefore nullifying any agreement.

Lastly, further below, there is a notice that can be added to your medical records to accompany or replace the “Refusal To Vaccinate” form. (If you have already signed it, you add this statement to your file in your medical records.)

The Refusal to Vaccinate Contract is quickly becoming the required document in doctors offices to decline vaccines, whether all or some. This document has been found to contain inaccurate, misleading, false, and dangerous language that parents do not all agree with. There is no other document available at the doctors office to serve the purpose that the Refusal to Vaccinate Contract does.

In consideration of this challenge a Vaccine Notice was created as an alternative to the Refusal to Vaccinate Contract. It was created by an unknown author and is in an editable template format with the inclusion of the necessary information. Physicians do have the right to refuse to sign the form, just as parents have the right to refuse to sign the Refusal to Vaccinate form. Doctors have been refusing to see patients who choose either not to vaccinate or not to sign the Refusal to Vaccinate Form.

A doctor who refuses to care for patients who determine that the risks outweigh the benefits of vaccines, are not looking out for the best interest of your child and finding a physician who understands the right of a patient to determine the health care decisions for their child is in the best interest of your child.

Printable copy of the “Vaccination Notice” <http://docdro.id/a5pdr3s>

Education is empowerment & this education is free!

tinyurl.com/BelieveParents . . . This in-depth educational series could not be more timely, more relevant or MORE crucial right now, to awaken the masses! Help your LOVED ONES learn directly from the phenomenal experts who've spent years compiling all of this LIFE-SAVING research!
