

World as we see-Truman show

Dear reader-This article will evolve with different end as it starting,stay tuned more updates soon.Be aware that my articles are about collecting clues,with no broader evidence in media,Im not convincing anyone that they are truth at the end, its up to your own consideration,at least you can say you are reading next Jules Verne- fiction or Giordano Bruno where in his era was all available evidence focused in one direction and he has no evidence at all only clues and he was right we know now,so some Sherlock Holmes work Im going to show.This is story of one man against all mankind with its all cleverness and evidences

Truman show

The film stars Jim Carrey as Truman Burbank, an unwanted baby raised by a corporation inside a simulated television show revolving around his life, until he knows and decides to escape equipped with thousands of cameras to monitor all aspects of Truman's life, to capture Truman's real emotion and human behavior when put in certain situations, creating the show around this.

"Free Truman" campaign that believe that Truman is being held prisoner by Christof and demand the end of the show becomes even more suspicious about his life

they convince him to stay by stating that there's "no more truth" out in the real world and that by staying in his artificial world, he would have nothing to fear

Count of St. Germain

this man have something not right here – his financial and origin sides of him are conflicting

In order to deflect inquiries as to his origins, he would invent fantasies, such as that he was 500 years old,^[6]leading Voltaire to sarcastically dub him "The Wonderman.

The Count claimed to be a son of Francis II Rákóczi, the Prince of Transylvania, possibly illegitimate^[9] This would account for his wealth and fine education.^[10] The will of Francis II Rákóczi mentions his eldest son, Leopold George, who was believed to have died at the age of four.^[10] The speculation is that his identity was safeguarded as a protective measure from the persecutions against the Habsburg dynasty.^[10] At the time of his arrival in Schleswig in 1779, St. Germain told Prince Charles of Hesse-Kassel that he was 88 years old.^[11] This would place his birth in 1691, when Francis II Rákóczi was 15 years old.

somebody that married a great fortune in Mexico, and ran away with her jewels to Constantinople; a priest, a fiddler, a vast nobleman.

the Oddness of his Manner which it is impossible not to laugh at, otherwise you know he is very sensible & well-bred in conversation'.^[8]She continued:

'He is an Odd Creature, and the more I see him the more curious I am to know something about him. He is everything with everybody: he talks Ingeniously spoke Italian and French with the greatest facility, though it was evident that neither was his language; he understood Polish, and soon learnt to understand English and talk it a little [...] But Spanish or Portuguese seemed his natural language'.^[14]

Walpole concludes that the Count was 'a man of Quality who had been in or designed for the Church. He was too great a musician not to have been famous if he had not been a gentleman'.^[14] Walpole describes the Count as pale, with 'extremely black' hair and a beard. 'He dressed magnificently, [and] had several jewels' and was clearly receiving 'large remittances, but made no other figure'.^[14]

His stories were wilder than the real Count's (he had advised Jesus, for example). Inevitably, hearsay of his routine got confused with the original.

Giacomo Casanova describes in his memoirs several meetings with the "celebrated and learned impostor". Of his first meeting, in Paris in 1757, he writes:

The most enjoyable dinner I had was with Madame de Robert Gergi, who came with the famous adventurer, known by the name of the Count de St. Germain. This individual, instead of eating, talked from the beginning of the meal to the end, and I followed his example in one respect as I did not eat, but listened to him with the greatest attention. It may safely be said that as a conversationalist he was unequalled.

St. Germain gave himself out for a marvel and always aimed at exciting amazement, which he often succeeded in doing. He was scholar, linguist, musician, and chemist, good-looking, and a perfect ladies' man.

he Prince later recounts in a letter that he was the only person in whom the Count truly confided.^[19] He told the Prince that he was the son of the Transylvanian Prince Francis II Rákóczi, and that he had been 88 years of age when he arrived in Schleswig.^[20]

The Count died in his residence in the factory on 27 February 1784, while the Prince was staying in Kassel, and the death was recorded in the register of the St. Nicolai Church in Eckernförde.^[21] He was buried 2 March and the cost of the burial was listed in the accounting books of the church the following day.^[22] The official burial site for the Count is at Nicolai Church (German St. Nikolaikirche) in Eckernförde. He was buried in a private grave. On April 3 the same year, the mayor and the city council of Eckernförde issued an official proclamation about the auctioning off of the Count's remaining effects in case no living relative would appear within a designated time period to lay claim on them.^[23] Prince Charles donated the factory to the crown and it was afterward converted into a hospital.

Jean Fuller-Overton found, during her research, that the Count's estate upon his death was: a packet of paid and receipted bills and quittances, 82 Reichsthalers and 13 shillings (cash), 29 various groups of items of clothing (this includes gloves, stockings, trousers, shirts, etc.), 14 linen shirts, 8 other groups of linen items, and various sundries (razors, buckles, toothbrushes, sunglasses, combs, etc.). There were no diamonds, jewels, gold, or any other riches. There were no kept cultural items from travels, personal items (like his violin), or any notes of correspondence.^[24]

Myths, legends and speculations about St. Germain began to be widespread in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, and continue today. They include beliefs that he is immortal, the Wandering Jew, an alchemist with the “Elixir of Life”, a Rosicrucian, and that he prophesied the French Revolution. He is said to have met the forger Giuseppe Balsamo (alias Cagliostro) in London and the composer Rameau in Venice. Some groups honor Saint Germain as a supernatural being called an Ascended Master.

Madame Blavatsky and her pupil, Annie Besant, both claimed to have met the Count who was traveling under a different name.^[citation needed]

David Christopher Lewis, spiritual director of The Hearts Center, an offshoot of Theosophy, claimed that Saint Germain first came to him in person on June 10, 2004 in his home in Paradise Valley, Montana and continued to come many times thereafter, dictating what is now in the book: Saint Germain on Advanced Alchemy: HeartStreaming in the Aquarian Age .^[30]

.A more specific version of the saint conspiracy theory is that Rasputin was the immortal known as Count de St. Germain, His goal was to pave the way for a Russian revolution. After the many assassination attempts, he realized that the best course of action was to fake his own death, so he allowed himself to be buried alive, tunneled out, and is supposedly living in Los Angeles after ending Communism in Eastern Europe in the 1980s.

The legendary Count of Saint Germain, described as an alchemist, spy, industrialist, diplomat and Rosicrucian, became involved in several political intrigues in Russia and was, according to Nicholas Roerich, “a member of the Himalayan brotherhood.” In 1755 he traveled throughout Eurasia to study occult teachings, and may even have visited Tibet. It is said that while studying occultism in Central Asia the Count was introduced to the secret rites of Tantric sex magic which provided him with a technique to prolong his youth. He also engaged in spying operations against the notorious British India Company. Saint Germain founded two secret societies called the Asiatic Brethren and the Knights of Light. As early as 1780 he warned Marie Antoinette that the French throne was in danger from an international conspiracy of ‘Brothers of the Shadow’. Rumours continued to circulate for many years after his alleged death that Saint Germain was still alive working behind the scenes in European politics or studying occult doctrines in Central Asia.

<http://www.redicecreations.com/specialreports/2005/11nov/secreteurasia.html>

Saint Germain has lived many lives including Prophet Samuel of the Old Testament, Sir Francis Bacon, Saint Joseph, A High Priest of Atlantis, Christopher Columbus, and Merlin to name only a few. He is often pictured as the well-known alchemist known during the reign of Louis XV, King of France (1710-1774). I have asked him if he was really the great Merlin as this is the way I see him, and he responded that his role in that particular body is unlike the stories and fairy tales we read about. He was King Arthur’s spiritual advisor.

He spoke at least twelve languages so fluently that everywhere he went he was accepted as a native. These included French, German, English, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Russian and Eastern languages. “The learned and the oriental scholars have proved the knowledge of the Count St. Germain,” wrote a countess at Louis XV’s court. “The former found him more apt in the languages of Homer and Virgil than themselves; but with the latter he spoke Sanskrit, Chinese, Arabic in such a manner as to show them that he had made some lengthy stay in Asia.”

http://There were rumors of him alive in Paris in 1835, in Milan in 1867 and in Egypt during Napoleon’s campaign. Napoleon III kept a dossier on him. Annie Besant said that she met the Count in 1896.

Theosophist C. W. Leadbeater claimed to have met him in Rome in 1926, and said that St. Germain showed him a robe that had been previously owned by a Roman Emperor and that St. Germain told him that one of his residences was a castle in Transylvania.

Theosophist Guy Ballard claimed that the Count had introduced him to visitors from Venus and published a book series about his channelings; Ballard founded the “I Am” Activity.

In January 28, 1972, ex-convict and lover of singing star Dalida, Richard Chanfray claimed to be the Count of St. Germain on French television. He also claimed that Louis XV was still alive.

There are several “authoritative” biographers who usually do not agree with one another. His ancestry is a matter of much speculation. Theosophists consider him to be an Ascended Master or adept. Aleister Crowley identified with him. Helena Blavatsky said he was one of her Masters of Wisdom and hinted at secret documents. Several books on palmistry and astrology have been published in his name.

During the centuries after his death, numerous myths, legends and speculations have surfaced. He has been attributed with occult practices like snake charming and ventriloquism. There are stories about an affair between him and Madame de Pompadour. Other legends report that he was immortal, the Wandering Jew, an alchemist with the elixir of life, a Rosicrucian or an ousted king, a bastard of Queen Anna Maria of Spain, that he prophesied the French Revolution. Casanova called him the violinist Catlini. Count Cagliostro was rumored to be his pupil. The fact that the name “St. Germain” was not exactly uncommon confuses the matters even more.

Many groups in occultism honor St. Germain as an Ascended Master. As such, he is believed to have many magical powers such as the ability to teleport, levitate, walk through walls, influence people telepathically, etc.

Some esoteric groups credit him with inspiring the Founding Fathers to draft the Declaration of Independence and the United States Constitution.

In the New Age beliefs regarding him, St. Germain is always associated with the color violet and the jewel amethyst; he is also regarded as the “Master of the Seventh (violet) Ray”.

According to Theosophy, the Seven Rays are seven metaphysical principles that govern both individual souls and the unfolding of each 2,158 year long Astrological Age. Since according to Theosophy the next Astrological Age, the Age of Aquarius, will be governed by the Seventh (violet) Ray (the Ray of Ceremonial Order), St. Germain is sometimes called “The Cosmic Master of the Age of Aquarius.”

In Rosicrucian Max Heindel’s writings, the Count of St Germain (18th century)

<http://www.rosicrucian.com/rcc/rcceng17.htm>

is described as one of the later incarnations of Christian Rosenkreuz, an enigmatic individual born in the 13th century and the Head of the Rosicrucian Order. According to this author, Rosenkreuz had been Lazarus in his previous previous physical life, a biblical character in the New Testament (this would contradict the idea that he was Joseph, since they both lived at the same time) and Hiram Abiff, the Widow's Son of Freemasonry, in an earlier existence.

In the 1925 book The Masters and the Path by C.W. Leadbeater, an adherent of Theosophy, St. Germain is called both the "Comte de St. Germain" and the "Master Rakoczi." His previous incarnations are enumerated (the same ones as noted below in the paragraph about Guy Ballard). On page 240 of The Masters and the Path it is stated that when performing magical rituals in his castle in Transylvania, St. Germain wears "a suit of golden chain-mail which once belonged to a Roman Emperor; over it is thrown a magnificent cloak of crimson, with on its clasp a seven-pointed star in diamond and amethyst, and sometimes he wears a glorious robe of violet."

In the Alice Bailey's books, St. Germain is also known as the "Master Rakoczi". Alice A. Bailey's book The Externalisation of the Hierarchy (1934) gives the most information about his reputed role as an Ascended Master. His title is said to be the "Lord of Civilization". He is said to telepathically influence people who are seen by him as being instrumental in bringing about the new civilization of the Age of Aquarius. It was said by Alice A. Bailey that "sometime after AD 2025" Jesus Christ, St. Germain, Kuthumi and the others in the Ascended Master hierarchy (except Gautama Buddha) would "externalize" i.e., descend from the etheric plane, and live physically on Earth in ashrams surrounded by their disciples.

In the Godfre Ray King books, and Law of Life books is said that St. Germain was Joseph the foster-father of Jesus, Merlin the magician of King Arthur's Court, Roger Bacon, Christian Rosenkreuz of Germany, Christopher Columbus, Francis Bacon and Prince Rakoczy of Transylvania, in previous reincarnations. These beliefs about his previous incarnations are also promulgated by the Church Universal and Triumphant, with the addition that he was also incarnated as the ancient Jewish Prophet Samuel, as Saint Alban, and as a high priest of the white magicians in Atlantis. Guy Ballard claimed his book The Magic Presence was channeled to him from St. Germain (The official I Am edition of The Magic Presence, regarded as a sacred scripture, is printed in a violet colored typeface on lavender paper.).

According to Elizabeth Clare Prophet, St. Germain ascended on May 1st 1684. Although Sir Francis Bacon is said to have died in 1626, Prophet claims that the body in the coffin at Sir Francis Bacon's funeral was not his own and that he attended his own funeral. Supposedly, he continued living until his ascension in 1684. Thus, according to Prophet, the historical St. Germain was already an ascended master. In the Church Universal and Triumphant St Germain is regarded as a deity outranked only in importance by Jesus Christ, Gautama Buddha, and Sanat Kumara (the "Lord of the World"), and in that church, he is the deity towards whom the most intense devotion is given. Guy Ballard, the founder of I Am, originated the meditation practice of invoking the "Violet Flame" from St. Germain in order to contact one's "I Am Presence" and revivify one's etheric body. This practice has been continued by the Church Universal and Triumphant Saint Germain never seemed to age. For an entire century he maintained the physical appearance of a man between forty and fifty years old.

He could do just about anything. He was almost too good to be true. He was a magician, a musician, artistry as a violinist, talent as a painter, skill in alchemy and chemistry, a seer who read for and socialized with the rich and famous, had great wealth, and was one of the most mysterious men on the Europe continent. He knew nearly all the European languages. His knowledge of history was comprehensive, and his accomplishments as a chemist, on which he based his reputation, were in many ways considerable.

Though he never ate any food in public, he liked dining out because of the people he met and the conversations he heard. They say he lived on oatmeal. He had an immense stock of amusing stories with which he regaled society.

He was an aristocrat who lived with princes and even with kings almost on a footing of an equal.

He had a love of jewels in an extreme form, and he ostentatiously showed off those he possessed. He kept a great quantity of them in a casket, which he carried about everywhere with him. The importance he attached to jewels was so great that in the pictures painted by him, which were in themselves remarkable, the figures were covered with jewels; and his colors were so vivid and strange that faces looked pale and insignificant by contrast. Jewels cast their reflection on him and threw a distorting light on the whole of his life.

He was also known to carry jewels sewn into his clothing. He was said to have presented a cross ornamented with gems to a woman he scarcely knew, because she had idly admired it.

Tradition has related that he said he had known Jesus and been present at the Council of Nicea.

However, neither Louis XV nor the Count of Hesse Cassel ever revealed anything about the birth of Saint-Germain. The count even went so far as invariably to withhold the smallest detail bearing on the life of his mysterious friend. This is a very remarkable fact, since Saint-Germain was an extremely well known figure

From England Count Saint-Germain apparently went to Russia, where it is claimed he took part in a conspiracy that put Catherine the Great upon the throne in 1762

In Vienna he took part in the foundation of the Society of Asiatic Brothers and of the Knights of Light, who studied alchemy; and it was he who gave Mesmer his fundamental ideas on personal magnetism and hypnotism.

In Germany there were the Illuminati and the Knights of Strict Observance, and Frederick II, when he came to the throne, founded the sect of the Architects of Africa.

Saint-Germain's Death

Secluded at Eckenforn in the count's castle, Saint-Germain announced that he was tired of life. He seemed careworn and melancholy. He said he felt feeble, but he refused to see a doctor and was tended only by women. No details exist of his death, or rather of his supposed death. No tombstone at Eckenforn bore his name. It was known that he had left all his papers and certain documents relating to Freemasonry to the Count of Hesse Cassel.

The count for his part asserted that he had lost a very dear friend. But his attitude was highly equivocal. He refused to give any information about his friend or his last moments, and turned the conversation if anyone spoke of him. His whole behavior gives color to the supposition that he was the accomplice of a pretended death.

Although, on the evidence of reliable witnesses, he must have been at least a hundred years old in 1784, his death in that year cannot have been genuine. The official documents of Freemasonry say that in 1785 the French masons chose him as their representative at the great convention that took place in that year, with Mesmer, Saint-Martin, and Cagliostro present. In the following year Saint-Germain was received by the Empress of Russia. Finally, the Comtesse d'Adhemar reports at great length a conversation she had with him in 1789 in the Church of the Recollets, after the taking of the Bastille.

His face looked no older than it had looked thirty years earlier. He said he had come from China and Japan. "There is nothing so strange out there," he said, "as that which is happening here. But I can do nothing. My hands are tied by someone who is stronger than I. There are times when it is possible to draw back; others at which the decree must be carried out as soon as he has pronounced it."

And he told her in broad outlines all the events, not excepting the death of the queen, that were to take place in the years that followed. "

Hidencode input:(Because he is co-creating events)

"I have seen Saint-Germain again," wrote Comtesse d'Adhemar in 1821, "each time to my amazement. I saw him when the queen was murdered, on the 18th of Brumaire, on the day following the death of the Duke d'Enghien, in January, 1815, and on the eve of the murder of the Duke de Berry."

Mademoiselle de Genlis asserts that she met the Comte de Saint-Germain in 1821 during the negotiations for the Treaty of Vienna; and the Comte de Chalons, who was ambassador in Venice, said he spoke to him there soon afterwards in the Piazza di San Marco. There is other evidence, though less conclusive, of his survival. The Englishman Grosley said he saw him in 1798 in a revolutionary prison; and someone else wrote that he was one of the crowd surrounding the tribunal at which the Princess de Lamballe appeared before her execution.

It seems quite certain that the Comte de Saint-Germain did not die at the place and on the date that history has fixed. He continued an unknown career, of whose end we are ignorant and whose duration seems so long that one's imagination hesitates to admit it.

What happened to the Comte de Saint-Germain after 1821, in which year there is evidence that he was still alive? An Englishman, Albert Vandam, in his memoirs, which he calls An Englishman in Paris, speaks of a certain person whom he knew towards the end of Louis Philippe's reign and whose way of life bore a curious resemblance to that of the Comte de Saint-Germain.

"He called himself Major Fraser, wrote Vandam, "lived alone and never alluded to his family. Moreover he was lavish with money, though the source of his fortune remained a mystery to everyone. He possessed a marvelous knowledge of all the countries in Europe at all periods. His memory was absolutely incredible and, curiously enough, he often gave his hearers to understand that he had acquired his learning elsewhere than from books. Many is the time he has told me, with a strange smile, that he was certain he had known Nero, had spoken with Dante, and so on."

Like Saint-Germain, Major Fraser had the appearance of a man of between forty and fifty, of middle height and strongly built. The rumor was current that he was the illegitimate son of a Spanish prince. After having been, also like Saint-Germain, a cause of astonishment to Parisian society for a considerable time, he disappeared without leaving a trace. Was it the same Major Fraser who, in 1820, published an account of his journey in the Himalayas, in which he said he had reached Gangotri, the source of the most sacred branch of the Ganges River, and bathed in the source of the Jumna River?

It was at the end of the nineteenth century that the legend of Saint-Germain grew so inordinately. By reason of his knowledge, of the integrity of his life, of his wealth and of the mystery that surrounded him, he might reasonably have been taken for an heir of the first Rosicrucians, for a possessor of the Philosopher's Stone. But the theosophists and a great many occultists regarded him as a master of the great White Lodge of the Himalayas. The legend of these masters is well known. According to it there live in inaccessible lamaseries in Tibet certain wise men who possess the ancient secrets of the lost civilization of Atlantis. Sometimes they send to their imperfect brothers, who are blinded by passions and ignorance, sublime messengers to teach and guide them. Krishna, the Buddha, and Jesus were the greatest of these. But there were many other more obscure messengers, of whom Saint-Germain has been considered to be one.

“This pupil of Hindu and Egyptian hierophants, this holder of the secret knowledge of the East,” theosophist Madam Blavatsky says of him, “was not appreciated for who he was. The stupid world has always treated in this way men who, like Saint-Germain, have returned to it after long years of seclusion devoted to study with their hands full of the treasure of esoteric wisdom and with the hope of making the world better, wiser and happier.” Between 1880 and 1900 it was admitted among all theosophists, who at that time had become very numerous, particularly in England and America, that the Comte de Saint-Germain was still alive, that he was still engaged in the spiritual development of the West, and that those who sincerely took part in this development had the possibility of meeting him.

The brotherhood of Khe-lan was famous throughout Tibet, and one of their most famous brothers was an Englishman who had arrived one day during the early part of the twentieth century from the West. He spoke every language, including the Tibetan, and knew every art and science, says the tradition. His sanctity and the phenomena produced by him caused him to be proclaimed a Shaberon Master after a residence of but a few years. His memory lives to the present day among the Tibetans, but his real name is a secret with the Shaberons alone. Might not this mysterious traveler be the Comte de Saint-Germain?

But even if he has never come back, even if he is no longer alive and we must relegate to legend the idea that the great Hermetic nobleman is still wandering about the world with his sparkling jewels, his senna tea, and his taste for princesses and queens even so it can be said that he has gained the immortality he sought.

Ok,I marked madam Blavatsky and we know from my previous research here

That her work is followed by UN now.I think Lucifer and St.Germain may be the same person, influencing directly or through proxy.

Question is why he is doing this religious fulfillments,it cost lot of energy and is no profit or other normal meaning.

There are some point here

he want go back to heaven and this play is created by god and he is coordinating its fulfillment and actually is doing quite nice job for god,because god now can recognize who choose good and evil at end times.This doesnot sits me nowhere because good and evil are more personal and individual point of view and we are experiencing it every moment and its difficult to control by someone because it is so intimate.

However if its presented as this grand game of end times what people will choose (mark or die) and Jesus saviour to rule over us for thousand years.(and masses will eat it because he will not change his appearance for generations.

With this grand game he will kill in phase one all remaining believers who will not receive mark ,

In phase two he will kill all marked people and will rule over rest of mankind who survived first phase.

He or something we can expect to appear in 2025 as he is organizing through his proxy UN through Blavatski expectations and UN is preparing world for him or some event to appear.

Now I dont know If he will appear in 2025 as Christ or Anticrist or some event will be made.Im intriguing with world without money as I described in articles before,that you will live in smart city for smart city,you will receive everything what you need(healthcare,nice living,wife) and you will work your hole life in there ,keeping running it.You will be born there,your profesion will be choosen at your birth and your childhood will be preparedness for that profesion.After 60 years you will be rubbish and you will be replaced and killed ,no pension Is waiting for you.It will be perfect brainwashed civilization which will agree with all of this as sustainable solution for all update 19.8

So how John knew 2000 years ago that this events are going to happend this way.

1.god showed him

2.lucifer showed it to John,

3.Lucifer was John(John died very old)

4.Lucifer if he was in Nicea council pushed John end days through to be in bible

5.2000 years ago was time machine and god or someone else showed him future.

6.he had dream and he saw future himself

7.there was plan for this religion and islam followed later about end times programing

8.Islam and Christianity are 180 degrees different religions,and they are expecting the same masiash or mahdi.

9.there is one god for islam and christianity which showing the same thing

10.there is someone bending mankind events to fullfill his plans.

11.final goal : mankind will adore someone as god(this is most probable-thats why so religious and occult and mystic connection all the times-If you are immortal and have precious of the earth,all goverments etc.what is missing to you-only one thing-adoration as god.

12.ok,analyzis from backward-we know final goal,then dividing of people by religions and their expectations to see that someone knows so many languages,is always young,doing miracles,knows so many arts and have knowledge of technology etc. looking attractive and he will fool masses with that.

13.ok we know he is not eating so he is not shiting. Normaly person need energy from outside while he is spending it everywhere.So where is he taking energy from when he dont have to eat?Its from inside of him,its from outside of him?

We know he carrying some precious stones sewed to his clothes, we know that some stones are energy sources.is it possible that exist some gem or can by made that if we use sacred geometry and some knowledge about how energy is bending and moving through everlasting matrix of structures and growing and multiplying energy,energizing,we can have then nice energy source.But how can that energy influence biological material to not make old?Normaly all cell need energy to produce some result ,thats why we eating,drinking,but when cells get that energy from outside ,a lot of it...

Cells are out-of-equilibrium structures and require a constant supply of energy to remain in that privileged state. Measuring how much power is required to run a cell or the heat produced as it goes through its normal metabolic operations is experimentally challenging. Beyond the challenges associated with actually measuring cellular power consumption, there are several plausible definitions for a cell's rate of energy usage, making a rigorous discussion of the problem even more demanding.

We conclude that under these reference conditions, bacterial consumption of energy per unit biomass is about three orders of magnitude higher than that of a human. A reader curious about similar trends across different organisms and efforts to rationalize them is invited to visit the next vignette on “How does metabolic rate scale with size?”. Similarly, to see how this compares to the energetic requirements of bacterial motility, consult the vignette on “What is the frequency of rotary molecular motors?”.

We end by noting that in extreme environments such as the permafrost of Antarctica, bacteria were found to be viable at depths of 3000 m below ground at temperatures well below zero degrees Celsius. Due to impurities, the water does not freeze and the metabolic rate is extremely slow, ≈6 orders of magnitude smaller than under rapid growth (BNID 111454,111455). This has been termed survival metabolism where cells are dormant and the energy is thought to be used to repair macromolecule damage.

<http://book.bionumbers.org/what-is-the-power-consumption-of-a-cell/>

so scientists know how what proteins etc is cell eating,but dont fully understand hole regulation of that and in extreme (or different in our case)condition can cell metabolism be extremely slow!!!

The DNA damage theory of aging proposes that aging is a consequence of unrepaired accumulation of naturally occurring DNA damages. Damage in this context is a DNA alteration that has an abnormal structure. Although both mitochondrial and nuclear DNA damage can contribute to aging, nuclear DNA is the main subject of this analysis. Nuclear DNA damage can contribute to aging either indirectly (by increasing apoptosis or cellular senescence) or directly (by increasing cell dysfunction).^{[1][2]}

In humans and other mammals, DNA damage occurs frequently and DNA repair processes have evolved to compensate. In estimates made for mice, on average approximately 1,500 to 7,000 DNA lesions occur per hour in each mouse cell, or about 36,000 to 160,000 per cell per day.^[3] In any cell some DNA damage may remain despite the action of repair processes. The accumulation of unrepaired DNA damage is more prevalent in certain types of cells, particularly in non-replicating or slowly replicating cells, such as cells in the brain, skeletal and cardiac muscle.

In a population of cells, mutant cells will increase or decrease in frequency according to the effects of the mutation on the ability of the cell to survive and reproduce. Although distinctly different from each other, DNA damages and mutations are related because DNA damages often cause errors of DNA synthesis during replication or repair and these errors are a major source of mutation.

Given these properties of DNA damage and mutation, it can be seen that DNA damages are a special problem in non-dividing or slowly dividing cells, https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/DNA_damage_theory_of_aging

so he some have stopped DNA aging.,maybe through some mutation or constant energy which is preventing DNA to damage

The G₀ phase, G zero phase, or 'resting phase' is a period in the cell cycle in which cells exist in a quiescent state. G₀ phase is viewed as either an extended G₁ phase, where the cell is neither dividing nor preparing to divide, or a distinct quiescent stage that occurs outside of the cell cycle.^[1] Some types of cells, such as nerve and heart muscle cells, become quiescent when they reach maturity (i.e., when they are terminally differentiated) but continue to perform their main functions for the rest of the organism's life. Multinucleated muscle cells that do not undergo cytokinesis are also often considered to be in the G₀ stage.^[1] On occasion, a distinction in terms is made between a G₀ cell and a 'quiescent' cell (e.g., heart muscle cells and neurons), which will never enter the G₁ phase, whereas other G₀ cells may.

Distinction from senescent cells^[edit]

Cellular senescence is distinct from quiescence because it is a state that occurs in response to DNA damage or degradation that would make a cell's progeny nonviable. Senescence then, unlike quiescence, is often a biochemical alternative to the self-destruction of such a damaged cell by apoptosis. Furthermore, quiescence is reversible whereas senescence isn't.^{[citation needed]} so here we go.

option one: he is actually getting older when he is not wearing gems but with gems he is getting younger then option two:his mutation is permanent and his DNA is not damaging over time nor selfdestructing.because he is the same age always.

So to see photos wouldnt be bad Idea if he is old-young(option one) or he is the same age (around 40-50 years-option two)

Next though is :he posses with some energy -for healing,manifesting"miracles" so he have excess of it when needed and he can be somehow charged forward.

If that stones will be out of him long time maybe he will go mad

Do you remember his casket?full of what?It was not gold

He had a love of jewels in an extreme form, and he ostentatiously showed off those he possessed. He kept a great quantity of them in a casket, which he carried about everywhere with him. The importance he attached to jewels was so great that in the pictures painted by him, which were in themselves remarkable, the figures were covered with jewels; and his colors were so vivid and strange that faces looked pale and insignificant by contrast. Jewels cast their reflection on him and threw a distorting light on the whole of his life.

He was also known to carry jewels sewn into his clothing .

So which one of them is it?maybe non of them

Hidden powers in crystals update

I will update this topic time per time until I will be satisfied with end result.

When I look way back to my articles ,its getting strange direction,I will see where it will lead,so far my investigation is getting to this direction

Gathering information now...

Charging crystals?Different crystals(naturally frequencies) together with sacred geometry objects(charging with energy relative to objects from sacred geometry) and precisely cutted (tuned to get most from that some)

<http://www.ablecrystals.com/stones.html>

http://www.ablecrystals.com/sacred_geometry_forms.html

<http://www.freepatentsonline.com/y2015/0093571.html>

<https://www.metabunk.org/ark-advanced-resonance-kinetics-crystals.t6543/>

So far crystal can be cutted to such extent that it can be tuned to have various (harmonic)frequencies.

And we also know that some crystals(e.g.ruby,diamond actualy all stonea should be measured to see what can we get from them) have some frequencies from nature

So all together we need suitable stone,suitable cut,suitable charger If we cant tune stone by cut enough

Recognising Lucifer

I always see Satan depicted as this red, horned, hideous-looking creature, when in all actuality he is one of the most beautiful of all of God's creation. Ezekiel 28 tells us that Satan was "the anointed cherub." These statements by God referring to Lucifer show him to be the most exalted creature that God created. God says of him, "You were the seal of perfection, full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty." Satan was the wisest creature God ever created. No other angel, no other being was created with the intelligence and beauty that God gave to him. The Bible tells us that this creation is "perfect in beauty." Apart from God the Father, Son and Holy Spirit, Lucifer was the highest being created.

2 Corinthians 11:14 "Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light".

The Beauty of Satan –If I were the Devil –Bible Verses Truth

The term Morningstar was a coined phrase during these days and thus not every Morningstar addressed in the Bible refers to Lucifer. Herein originates the misconception of his fall from grace and Heaven. Isaiah 14:14 teaches us that "I will ascend above the tops of the clouds; I will make myself like the Most High" and has been proven by historians refers to King Nebuchadnezzar rather than the angel Lucifer. In the New Testament this false belief had already solidified and with Revelations mentioning that “the old Dragon, the old Snake” will bring about the end of the world as we know it, Lucifer’s once immaculate reputation had been sullied successfully.

One might argue that whilst all this might be true, Lucifer already acts as Satan/Adversary in the Old Testament’s Book of Job. Not only do we get a glimpse of the lengths Satan will go to in order to test Job’s faith but he obviously does so with the full consent of God him/herself.

Let us examine the events a little closer: As Satan returns from one of his “walks” on Earth, God asks him whether he took proper notice of his most faithful servant, Job of Uz. Satan remarks that it is no great achievement to be faithful when you have been blessed with a large family, wealth and the fulfillment of all your mundane dreams and suggests testing the steadfastness of Job’s faith once he loses his family, wealth and health. Job curses, rages, begs for death, suffers horribly, yet in the end he renews his faith as God keeps exerting pressure on him.

Globalists and occult connection.updated 27.6.

This is interesting topic and Im keen to dig into it, lets see where it will go.

Prometheus, in Greek religion, one of the Titans, the supreme trickster, and a god of fire.-The bringer of fire and civilization to mortals

So something like lightbearer?Right?

Hmm this is interensting but whats the connection with Rockefeller?

2. LUCIFER and connection with UN

Lucifer the Lightbearer-name was chosen because “Lucifer, the ancient name of the Morning Star, now called Venus”

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Lucifer_the_Lightbearer

The Lucis Trust is the Publishing House which prints and disseminates United Nations material. It is a devastating indictment of the New Age and Pagan nature of the UN.

Lucis Trust was established in 1922 as Lucifer Trust by Alice Bailey as the publishing company to disseminate the books of Bailey and Blavatsky and the Theosophical Society. The title page of Alice Bailey's book, 'Initiation, Human and Solar' was originally printed in 1922, and clearly shows the publishing house as 'Lucifer Publishing CoIn 1923.'

Bailey changed the name to Lucis Trust, because Lucifer Trust revealed the true nature of the New Age Movement too clearly. (Constance Cumbey, The Hidden Dangers of the Rainbow, p. 49). A quick trip to any New Age bookstore will reveal that many of the hard-core New Age books are published by Lucis Trust.

At one time, the Lucis Trust office in New York was located at 666 United Nations Plaza and is a member of the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations under a slick program called "World Goodwill".

In an Alice Bailey book called "Education for a New Age"; she suggests that in the new age "World Citizenship should be the goal of the enlightened, with a world federation and a world brain." In other words – a One World Government New World Order.

Luci's Trust is sponsored by among others Robert McNamara, former minister of Defense in the USA, president of the World Bank, member of the Rockefeller Foundation, and Thomas Watson (IBM, former ambassador in Moscow).

Luci's Trust sponsors among others the following organizations:

- UN
- Greenpeace International
- Greenpeace USA
- Amnesty International
- UNICEF

The United Nations has long been one of the foremost world harbingers for the "New Spirituality" and the gathering "New World Order" based on ancient occult and freemasonic principles.

Seven years after the birth of the UN, a book was published by the theosophist and founder of the Lucis Trust, Alice Bailey, claiming that,

“Evidence of the growth of the human intellect along the needed receptive lines [for the preparation of the New Age] can be seen in the “planning” of various nations and in the efforts of the United Nations to formulate a world plan... From the very start of this unfoldment, three occult factors have governed the development of all these plans”

[Alice B. Bailey, Discipleship in the New Age (Lucis Press, 1955), Vol. II, p.35.]

Although she did not spell out clearly the identity of these ‘three occult factors’, she did reveal to her students that,

“Within the United Nations is the germ and seed of a great international and meditating, reflective group – a group of thinking and informed men and women in whose hands lies the destiny of humanity.

*This is largely under the control of many fourth ray disciples, if you could but realize it, and their point of meditative focus is the intuitional or Buddhic plane – the plane upon which all hierarchical activity is today to be found”

To this end, the Lucis Trust, under the leadership of Foster and Alice Bailey, started a group called ‘World Goodwill’ – an official non-governmental organization within the United Nations.

The stated aim of this group is,

“to cooperate in the world of preparation for the reappearance of the Christ”

[One Earth, the magazine of the Findhorn Foundation, October/November 1986, Vol. 6, Issue 6, p.24.]

William Jasper, author of “A New World Religion” describes the religion of the UN:

“...a weird and diabolical convergence of New Age mysticism, pantheism, aboriginal animism atheism, communism, socialism, Luciferian occultism, apostate Christianity, Islam, Taoism, Buddhism, and Hinduism“. or aquarian age community

Luciferianism in connection with Bill and Melinda Gates

<http://www.christianvoice.org.uk/index.php/bill-gates-and-the-lucis-trust/>

The Cathedral of St. John the Divine, the medieval temple of the Episcopalian Archdiocese of New York, has become the mother institution of the New Age movement in the United States, whose goal is to eclipse the Age of Pisces (Christianity) with an Age of Aquarius (Lucifer).

Spokesmen for the Lucis Trust believe that Mikhail Gorbachov may be the premier world leader in their “Externalized Hierarchy,” giving impetus to a “Plan” for a “new world order” of Luciferian values and behavior.

The Lucis Trust also carries out exchanges with the Soviet Union, where they believe “Triangle Cells” pray the “Great Invocation” for the coming Age of Aquarius. These Luciferians welcome Gorbachov, who bears the “Mark of the Beast” on his forehead.

Dostojevsky, whose writings have regained popularity under Gorbachov, because they were a 19th-century revival of the Russian Orthodox Church “blood-and-soil” doctrine [a Luciferic throwback to previous evolutionary epochs] that Moscow would become “the Third and Final Rome”; and, Mikhail, Vladimir, and Vsevelod Soloviev, who, from such bases as the St. Petersburg Ecclesiastical Academy, propounded the doctrines of Spiritualism that are being revived in Russia today, and who profiled Blavatsky as Tentacles of the Blavatsky deployment extended quickly through the West.

Historic Russia connection to Lucis trust

Alice La Trobe Bateman was the founder in 1920 of the Lucifer Trust, which represented a syncretism of Gnostic Christianity with Blavatsky’s Theosophy. Bailey’s Gnostic doctrine transformed God into Nietzschean Will, while Christ is considered merely a lowly part of the many “Ascended Masters,” who form a “Hierarchy,” that is eventually to be “externalized” to carry out a “Plan” for a “new world order” that is otherwise known to Bailey’s disciples as the Age of Aquarius or Age of Maitreya. The Lucis Trust, which today has Non-Governmental Organization (NGO) status at the United Nations and has been given legitimacy by the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, has spawned an array of New Age fronts, including the Temple of Understanding.

World Goodwill – Founded in 1932, the organization is recognized by the United Nations today as an NGO. Ever since the dropping of the atomic bomb (which is seen by these kooks as a spiritual manifestation of Luciferian light), Lucis Trust has sought to give the U.N. a monopoly over nuclear weapons with which to impose a “one world federalist empire” upon sovereign nations. World Goodwill works directly with the “world federalists,” and is part of the work to “Externalize the Hierarchy” of “Illumined Minds,” which will usher in an “Age of Maitreya,” otherwise interpreted by Bailey to be the return of Christ prophesied in the biblical book of Revelations.

Apart from U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar, spokesmen for Lucis view Mikhail Gorbachov as the greatest world leader externalizing their “Plan” today.

Temple of Understanding event in Moscow, which is being sponsored by the Russian Orthodox Church, the Supreme Soviet, and the Soviet Academy of Sciences. The main thrust of the follow-on conference will be to get world religious and political leaders working together on such neo-malthusian ecological schemes as the “greenhouse effect” hoax. This is merely a global replay, which has the backing of the Soviet Union.
