MEANWHILE, ANOLE SHOWED
ONE OF THE BIGGER
SENTINELS WHAT A LIZARD BOY
CAN DO.

Anole (Victor Borkowski) is my favorite X-Men character.

He was created by Christina Weir and Nunzio DeFilippis and first appeared in issue no. 2 of 'New Mutants' in August 2003.

Vic was born and raised in Fairbury, Illinois. His mutant powers include a prehensile sticky tongue, wallcrawling, changing his skin color like a chameleon to make himself almost completely invisible, and regrowing stronger versions of lost limbs or damaged body parts.

In addition to that, his speed, agility and reflexes are enhanced.

He is also one of the few openly gay superheroes in the Marvel Universe.

And he is criminally underused in comics, series and movies!

Therefore, I was happy as a clam when I stumbled over the book 'First Team', a novel by Robbie MacNiven, published by Aconyte in 2021, in which Anole is the protagonist, surrounded my other well known characters from the world of X-Men.

I enjoyed every single page and chapter and would like to thank Mr. MacNiven and Aconyte to give Anole a chance to shine, and of course Christina Weir and Nunzio DeFilippis for giving us Anole in the first place.

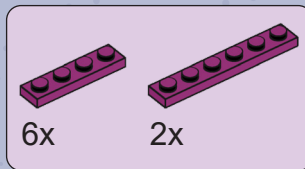

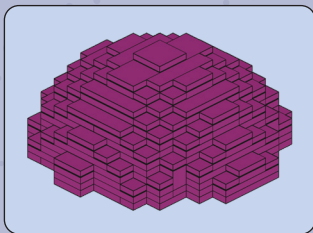

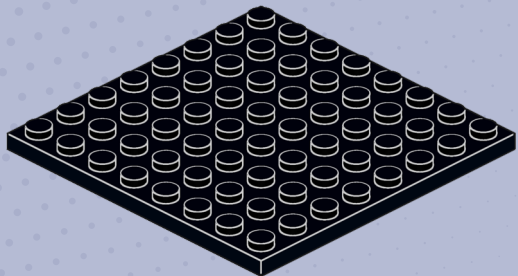

He is such a lovable and multifarious character with interesting powers (in many ways even similar to those of Miles Morales) and already established as gay from the very beginning.

To cut a long story short, to show my gratitude, I uploaded the LEGO instructions for the sentinel head for every fan to download them free of charge.

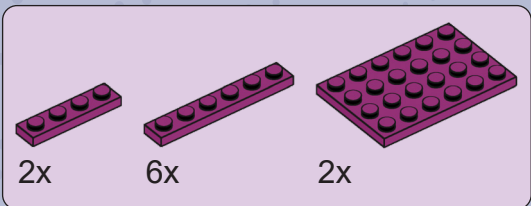

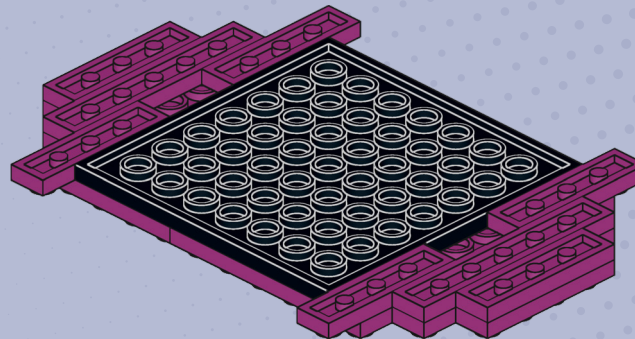

Enjoy.
