Do you want a web based that you can't access when the web goes down?

Or desktop based software that you have access to all the time? or the best of both worlds, both options?

Do you want staff or clients\customers to be able to access their schedules remotely?

In most situations, adding web functionality is preferable as staff customers can then access the relevant information remotely from any location. This would also allow staff to view tomorrows appointments from home so they would not have to come into the office. But the best feature is that your database is safe and secure in your office and if the internet goes down as it will, you still have your schedule to use and you can still lookup info if your customers call. This service appointment software web functionality is available with our Web-Sync option.

As a small business, you don't have the same kind of staff or resources that larger operations do and thus you need to optimize wherever and whenever you can. It is this versatility that service scheduling software offers and that will mesh very well with your business model. Automatic scheduling can also be combined with various other systems in your office, most notably with billing. When you are still using the paper scheduling system, it can be hard to keep track of what services were actually provided.

With an automatic appointment scheduler that is integrated with the billing system, you'll be able to see canceled appointments, extra charges, everything that you will need to make sure that you are adequately recompensed for your services. With better and more accurate tracking of what your revenues are, you can manage your budget better and plan accordingly.
