

The words of Glarthir the Prophet of the Forest who is writing this scroll alone, without the help of his brother and cousin Nook, because Nook is taking a break from scroll writing. This is what Nook told me to say: "What Nook says is: "Im taking a break from this game because people think I should go against my own prophecies to make them happy."" So Nook said to me: "I am taking a break from this game." This is a family history of Tasha the Vulture. In the days of Captain James Sunderland of Providence Island, just before he became the Top Captain of Providence, he went to find a prophecy in the Black Wood. He met with a prophetess called Maria of the Forest, daughter of Aldaron/Orome/Rashad. Now, a brief history: the Sunderlands was a family of ship makers from Dorval, and they had a lot of power over the lands, because they would build the best ships. It was he who brought an end to the Lowe crew's rule over the pirate's 'paradise', and he came to extend the power of the Sunderlands. Before this, James Sunderland was somewhat of an outcast from his family. He spent much of his youth with pirate thugs who would come to loot and cause mischief in all the lands as far as Cobia in the east. Sunderland's name was respected by the wealthy around the entire face of the earth, but was hated by the pirates. So James would go by the name James Wolsey, because he feared that he would be taken hostage so that his pirate 'friends' could get money from his family. James was greedy for approval, and he dreamt of becoming the most fearsome of the pirates. So he secretly stole a ship from his father, a mighty ship that he called The Wrench. When the ship went missing, his father, Lord Jonathan Sunderland (although he went by other names too), swore to find the pirate scum who stole it. His finest thugs eventually found the ship, and on board they took James. But they didn't recognize that James was in fact the son of their Lord who'd sent them. So they took James, as well as some of his companions, and brought them before Lord Jonathan Sunderland in Dorval. So Lord Jonathan took the men outside to be hung. But he noticed his son, who'd he'd not seen for several years, was among them. So he took his son from them, and he said: "My son, was it you who took the new ship from the bay?" In response, James said: "Yes, my father. It was I. I wanted to use it to form my own crew. It was mighty and strong, and I desired it, so I took it." So his father said to him: "You I will not kill, but your friends, I will certainly hang by the rope." So he hung his friends by the rope, but set his son free. That night, James once again stole the same ship from the bay. In the morning, his father said: "If it wasn't my son who took the ship from the bay, I am no Lord." So he sent his thugs after James for a second time, and they found the ship once more, anchored at the bay of Providence. So they boarded the ship, and took James out from the ship, and took him before his father once more. His father said: "My son, was it you who took the ship from the bay?" In response, James said: "Yes, my father. It was I. I wanted it to form my own crew, so I took it." At that, his father said: "If you take the ship a third time, I will disown you." So James was set free. That night, he once more stole the ship from the bay. In the morning, his father looked out at the bay, and wait! He could not see the ship. So he wrote a formal letter, and sent it to the four corners of Arda, saying: "Let all know this, that my son, James Sunderland, is no son of mine." But that night, he regretted writing the letter, for he remembered his son, and he sent out another letter to the four corners of Arda, saying: "I, Jonathan Sunderland, regret disowning my son. Let my son be blessed by the gods." And that was the last time Jonathan saw his son. And then Jonathan was buried in the graveyard of the Lords of Dorval. Jonathan's bones were robbed by goblin grave robbers, and they took his golden pocket watch, his sigil stone and the ornaments of marble, obsidian and mithril that he had buried with him. They took the treasures to the Marsh Cave. And Thomas Sunderland became King in his place. Meanwhile, James Sunderland had used the ship to form his crew. Now the ship he had stolen three times was called The Wrench, and it was the mightiest of all the ships docked at Providence. So James gathered his crew together, promising them a better and greater sea presence than the great Ned Lowe could offer.

He promised the pirates a loot sizeable to afford each man on his crew "his own home and half". Seeing his ship was mightier than Ned's, and it had more cannons and more sails and the sails were of a size not seen before, the crew of James Sunderland became very large indeed. When Ned Lowe heard of this, he became so furious that he put a price on the head of 'James Wolsey' of the equivalent of fourteen cosmic ores. On hearing this, James knew his own newly formed crew would likely betray him and try to kill him! So James was desperate, and paranoid of his own crew. In the night, he resorted to sell his soul to achieve his dream, so he went to the Black Wood and said:

"Black wood O black wood, hear me now! It is me, James Wolsey."

Then a voice came out from the forest, like the whisper of women, saying: "You are not who you say you are" So James, knowing what the voice meant, said: "You are right, for I am James Sunderland, son of Jonathan Sunderland, Lord of Dorval. I came to Providence as a boy, and I consider myself a pirate, not a Prince." So the voice responded: "Enter!" So James entered the forest, and there he met with a woman. The woman said: "I am Mari, the Lady of the Witches. Why do you come to this black place?" So James said: "I want to sell my soul for my dream to come true." She said: "State your dream!" So he said: "I wish to slay Ned Lowe, and become the mightiest of the pirates, and have the greatest crew of all. I want to own all the riches of Providence and Dead Man's Rock. I want my name to be feared from east to west, north to south, and I want to live, even forever!" So Maria laughed a long, scratchy laugh that lasted 6 minutes and 66 seconds. So she said: "Sell your soul to the Dark Lord Pythas!" She said: "I sell my very soul to the dark lord!" Then, a black mass was summoned, and James went into the mass. He woke up in the morning, lying down in the snow, and Maria the Witch was lying next to him. So he said: "Curse this place." And Maria began to chase him, all the way to the mountain of Dead Man's Rock. "Jump in, you Top Dogg!" And James said: "Are you trying to kill me?" Maria said: "Elka umbra duzum-kirith mortaz!" James then ran into the caverns of death, where the jail was. In that dungeon, James met a girl called Hilgath and he said: "Please, send the cursed witch away." But Maria came in, and James said: "What do I have to do to stop you from chasing me?" So Maria said: "Top Dogg! Top Dogg! Behold, the Top Dogg!" And she started bowing to James. Now James was scared, so he drew his sword and escaped. That night, a black mass appeared to him. And look up there! A black mass was standing above the ship of the Wrench! James said: "Certainly my ship is cursed." But when his crew saw it, they said: "Look, captain! It is an apparition!" And then the body of Ned Lowe appeared in the black mass, and his limbs fell off his body, and the torso was remaining. And the black mass consumed the torso, and out came his organs. Then, the black mass vanished. The crew were so afraid, they actually jumped overboard. James then said: "Ned Lowe is dead!" So the crew were in fear of James Wolsey from that day onwards. So James was unafraid, and he said to his crew: "I am now the Top Dogg." And all the crews of the paradise said: "What you have said is good to us, since Ned Lowe has died by the hand of THE BLACK MASS." So James entered Liberty House and said: "My mateys, I have something to tell ye all. I am in fact James Sunderland, son of Jonathan Sunderland. Wolsey is not me true name!" So all the men in the house drew their swords and said: "Ye lied to us!" So they massed to attack him, but as soon as the sword touched his skin, THE BLACK MASS came and swallowed up the men, spitting their bones out (and no flesh was on them any more). So all the men came to be in great fear of James Sunderland. He put the pyramid of Pythas on his sails along with the wings of liberty, and his ship was mightier than any other ship. Ned Lowe's ship became James' and he ruled the entire island. His older brother, Thomas Sunderland was now ruling on Dorval. So James killed him. Then James said: "I am the King of Dorval now!" So Dorval became his. A year after these terrible things happened, Maria of the Forest came to him and said: "You have sold your soul. Now you must do whatever Pythas says." So James agreed, and he, by the orders of Pythas, went out to invade the south. But he was defeated by the south, and Orlock of House Inferno came to rule in his place. And Pythas the Dark Lord was with Orlock, and he was the most feared of the agents of doom. And then look! A daughter was born to him called Tasha, and Orlock called her: "Cursed Evil Girl". So he threw the baby out of the window, but it landed on the back of THE BLACK MASS. Then, this mass brought the baby to the tow'r of Barad^dur. meanwhile, look! Orlock repented and he became Orlock the Good. So Pythas killed him. This is what happened to Tasha the baby when she was only 1 day old in the tow'r of Barad^dur. Since Nannydoom had died, there was nobody to look after the baby. So THE BLACK MASS left the baby in a box inside the tower. But the baby was crying, so a Nazgul called Rains came and threw the box into the bin. But the baby was still crying, so Rains took the bin, and threw it into the ABYSS OF DOOM. But the bin was an obsidian bin, and it survived the lava. The box was safe, and the baby remained unharmed. The bin flowed through the lava river network under Barad^dur, and into the Pyramidon of the Dark Lord. Then, Pythas heard the baby crying. So he opened the box and saw the child. He took the baby and put it in a crib. He rocked the baby every day, and he also fed it fish every day. One night, the evil manifestation of Snowfalls came to visit Pythas for dinner. So he sat down and ate and drank with his wife. But Melody could tell something was wrong: "My husband, why are you constantly looking at the door?" So he said: "I am anxious to check on my baby." So he went, and checked on the baby. So Melody slapped him, and said: "Whom have you slept with! You cheated on me again?" But Pythas said: "This baby is not mine. I found it." But Melody did not believe him. So in the night, Melody took the baby, stealing it from Pythas. In the morning, Pythas woke to find the baby was missing. So he searched for it, all over the place. Even the nazgul were searchign for it. But they didn't find it. So he said in his heart: "Melody, my wife, does not believe me, so she stole my pet human." (But really, he wanted to make the baby his own). Meanwhile, Melody took the baby as far away from Das as possible, to the Island of Tol Morwen in the north. So he gave the baby to the vultures and said: "Eat this baby. DO NOT let a single bone remain." So they pecked the baby, but the flesh tasted like vulture flesh (for her mother was in fact a vulture, and the vulture power was hidden within, because her mother had relations with Orlock the Pope of Doom). So they said: "It is UNTHINKABLE to eat a nother vulture" (Bc that is the one thing vultures didn't eat back then, and that was other vultures.) But Melody had gone by then, and the vultures raised the child as one of their own. But when the child reached 13 years old, the vultures got rid of her, because she still hadn't solved how to use her vulture powers. So the vultures dropped her from a height of 5000 metres, and she was going to splat onto the floor. But luckily, she landed on a mushroom. That mushroom was called: "Mushroom That Saved Me". So she ate the mushroom, and the mushroom was a particularly magical one, and she entered the ether. In the ether, she saw the KALEIDOSCOPE REALM. Two years later, when she was 15, she met Loki the Vulture. Then, Loki adopted her. Then, Amir gave her the power to use her vultureism. But to this day, the dark lord does not know that it is in fact she who was the pet of Doom.

That is the end of this scroll. But in the mushroom world, the ether, this is what she saw: "Three thousand colors in one cup. Greens and yellows and reds and blues. The colors meant love, and the cup meant home. When she drank the cup, she found home. And there she was, right where she started, in Dorval under the nova lights." This is what Tasha should say: "Cursed be Orlock. Cursed be Rains. Cursed be the vultures who dropped me on purpose" This was the name that she was given by the vultures who raised her:

Mlcnbl

meaning: Melody The Cannibal other versions of this name are:

Melody made us a cannibal

Cannibal temptation of Melody

I call her: The Half Vulture Human Baby

Nook calls her: Mushroom Girl

THAT IS THE END OF THIS SCROLL. IDK WHEN THE NEXT ONE WILL COME OUT. IT WILL BE ABOUT THE ONE UNDER TASHAS REPLY.