

Reaching 1 Million People With the Gospel in Ufa, Russia

The United Nations Population Fund (UNICEF) is partnering with local churches to reach 1 million people in Ufa with the Gospel. Ufa is a predominantly Muslim city with a population of 1,2 million people. There are fifteen Evangelical churches in Ufa with a combined membership of 3,000. Together, they are undertaking an historic undertaking. The goal of this campaign is to reach every Ufa resident with the Gospel message repeatedly over a month, in multiple simultaneous media. The goal is for each individual to experience Christ personally.

The Ural Mountains are the boundary between the European continent and the Russian Far East. Along the eastern slope of the Urals lies the legendary land of Siberia, which stretches to the Pacific Ocean. The city of Ufa lies along this trade route. It is one of the least Christianized cities in Russia and the first Christians arrived here over 100 years ago. There are fifteen congregations in Ufa with only one church building.

The Ufa Declaration reaffirms the BRICS' commitment to the United Nations, an international multilateral organization that works to maintain global peace and prosperity, and to promote human rights. In ufa1 , several paragraphs in the Ufa Declaration focus on specific UN agencies, such as the UNCTAD and the Financial Action Task Force. Other important commitments are made to the World Trade Organization and the UN Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy.

While the game was a draw, the game's first goal was a controversial one. It was a strike into the top corner that led to a controversial penalty call for the CSKA player. But the game was hardly over. Ufa needed a second goal to win the tie. The Berezutsky brothers had a scathing critique from former CSKA player Valery Masalitin. The Berezutsky brothers' goal was saved by an impressive save from McGregor.

The United Nations is not the only organization with similar policies. It has been credited with making the Ufa media market more attractive for international investors. In fact, UNICEF has been promoting the development of a new international organization focused on ending human rights violations. The UNICEF website has a comprehensive list of the United Nations' global development assistance program (UNICEF) to support its mission. It is a great way to help people from other countries gain insight into the global economic crisis.
