

A handsome tale:

“I was sitting on my chair, with my drink. A cute girl drew my attention by speaking about a group of “Lapins”. So, I just listened to her and apparently, she needed help to save the village that was about to be devastated. Of course, I stood up to offer my help, telling I was the solution. What a surprise when a strange... Duck was already up offering his help too. We were already planning the attack when another man came and punched the duck in the face telling the girl “these fools are good for nothing”. As if it was not enough, that duck decided to respond and hit him back. To prevent a stupid fight in a bar, I hit the man with the end of my rifle telling them to get hold of themselves. Then I learnt their names, Daffy the duck and Marik.

After that uncanny meeting in a shabby tavern, we learnt there was a weird thing going on linked with an awkward gang of mutant rabbits. So, we decided to help the village with that weird gang, and we went out to buy some stuff to survive in the desert. We got two daggers, a spear, something to drink and to eat. After that, we went into the desert, to look for them and to resolve the problem. We were in the company of the cute girl; her name was Mitzi. She accompanied us through the all-day, but she was not as lucky as we were.

We ended up in a canyon. There already was a fight over there. Some Nomads were trying to escape from nine Lapins. We decided to help them after all, we sneaked behind them and took three of them out. I injured one but could not resolve myself to finish him while the duck was endangered. I just went to help him, drawing the attention of the Lapin on me so that he could stand up and finish him. He might have thought that was cool, though he was previously lying on the sand blinded by... Sand actually. Mitzi and Marik took care of the rest. Unfortunately, one of the Nomad perished.

After that encounter, we headed up to the headquarter to find Kaz, the one causing all the trouble. Kaz is a Cochon - a weird humanoid pig. He likes men, and actually he ended up eating his own companion when he told him he was smelling bad. We were around the camp with a lot of tents, a campfire and one bigger tent. We planned something: Daffy and Mitzi were going to sneak from the south west of the camp that was not guarded at all. They took down several Lapins. I opted for a negotiation and I headed for the bigger tent without my armour and my weapons. I got arrested by some Lapins and they brought me to that bigger tent. I was not worried, Marik covered me with the long rifle that I gave him from above. When I arrived, Kaz got out of the tent and ordered the Lapins to leave us. He looked at me and asked why I was here. I told him that the humans were going to surrender, he giggled and smiled at me. At this very moment, I remembered that he liked men, and thought I could try something. I looked at him with my amber eyes, telling him he could use some of my company if he was willing to.

He agreed, I got rid of my top in an erotic way and dragged him in the tent. I started to look at him and he undressed me with his eyes, he extended his arms to me, then Daffy cut his throat. Yeah, Daffy and Mitzi were behind him. They got in the tent while I was distracting the beautiful Kaz.

I was covered in blood and half naked, what a day. We took a look at the tent and discovered a chest. It was locked, and the key was on Kaz's necklace. I took care of it, smiling back at my deceased lover. It was full of gems. I took the chest and his axe made of dinosaur's teeth, raptors to be specific. Daffy took an encrypted map. We escaped right after that, from where Mitzi and daffy got in the tent. We ran, and unfortunately, Mitzi fell and broke her ankle. Marik just arrived with our raptors, and we managed to escape. Back at the village, we headed towards a professional, Vasquèz, an archaeologist specialised in cartography to help us with the map. The village elder offered us to spend some free time in the city. We gladly accepted.

That was a strange opportunity, but I guess not a bad one. I sort of enjoyed my weird teammates. We heard there were other quests. We might take a look."